THE POOR BOARD AND ITS DOCTOR

The Selection of a Medical Director at the Poor House Causes Another Stir Last Night-Mr. McMullen's Flight Breaks Quorum and Holds Up Business-The Night's In-

The spirit of rancor which has divided the poor board members since they have tried to elect a doctor for the poor house, broke out again last night before the board assembled for its regular semi-monthly meeting with the result that there was no session to dispose of even the routine matters of the body.

There were four members of the beard present when the meeting hour was reached, President Thomas, Secretary Williams and Messrs McCabe and McMullan. This was a quorum, but Mr. McMillan had no intention of sitting in the meeting unless he was assured that the election of a doctor for the poor farm would not be taken up-that it would be allowed to rest until the next meeting of the board. The other members of the board refused to commit themselves as to what would be done with the doctorship and Mr. McMullan angrily withdrew from the room, but not until be and Mr. McCabe had a wordy war, in which they debated warmly on various questions, the one meeting the other with stinging retorts. Finally Mr. McMullan withdrew from the room, thus breaking the quorum and preventing the meeting, holding up the business of the board for another two weeks. Thus, once more, the divided forces fell out over the election of the doctor for the poor farm, a question that has resolved itself into a vexatious

When Mr. McMullan saw the meeting hour approach his anxiety over whether or not the doctor's election would come up grew and he seemed quite apprehensive as to the purpose of his colleagues. Mr. McMullen, it will be recalled, is a champion of Dr. Bailey, while the others present last night-Messrs. Thomas, Williams and McCabe, are the supporters of his opponent, Dr. Malaun, Mr. McMullen realized that if the election came up, he would be helpless to prevent the matter from being disposed of. The hopelessness of his case stared at him and he realized, too that his withdrawal from the meeting, and breaking up the quorum, was his salvation, Just as soon as he learned from hi opponent that they would not consent to allowing the election to be prolonged further, he hurriedly grasped his umbrella and prepared to leave the room. Some one suggested that if he would continue these tactics, he would be denied admittance. Mr. McMullen made a characteristic return, in which he assured both Mr. Thomas and Mr. McCabe that he was fully able to preserve his own rights. Mr. McCabe and Mr. McMullen then engaged each other. This was as Mr. McMullen was making his way towards the hall. The dialogue between them was about like this: Mr. McCabe-"What do you mean by not staying with us tonight." Mr. McMullen-"That's all right now; that's all right. You said at the last meeting that you would not take up this doctor question unless the others were here. Now Burke nor Lynch ain't here and yet you want to push this thing through," Mr. McCabe-Well, by gosh! (pounding his desk and shaking his head at McMullen) if they won't be here at the next meeting we will declare their seast vacated." What do you mean, any way, Mr. McMullen, by not electing a doctor?" Mr. McCabe broke out anew, "What you knew that some one was sick at the farm and needed a doctor, what would you do, ch?" "What would I do?" returned Me-Mullen. "Why I'd sent a doctor out there; that's all," he ended quite reassuringly,

"You would, ch? Well then you'd pay for itself," said Mr. McCabe, very positively, and with a determined shake of the head. Mr. McMullen did not reply, but left the room muttering something about being able to attend to his own business himself.

The other members who are united with Mr. McMullen in favor of Dr. Failey and against Dr. Malaun are Messrs. Burke and Lynch. The former is out of the city attending a funcral and the latter it is presumed preferred to absent himself until Mr. returns.

The board has the power to vacate seats of any members who without good cause absents himself from successive meetings and after Mr. McMullen withdrew it was stated that the power would be invoked if missing members would be absent again on next meeting night.

The report of Solicitor Butler as the the alleged shortages of the old board was among the matter scheduled for last night, but which will now go over to add to the interest of the next

TALK TO HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

Comrade George S. Kimball Represented Davies' Post and Gave Some Interesting War Reminiscences. Responding to an invitation to address the High school pupils on personal experiences during the War of 1861-1865, Comrade George S. Kimball gave a fifty-minutes' talk Friday afternoon to about 200 people.

It has been customary for several rears for some comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic to talk to the rising generation, previous to Memorial lay. Last May, Commander John Me-Comb told the pupils about Gettysburg and for one hour and thirty minutes held their closest attention. His description was entertaining and instructive; made a deep impression on the minds of teachers and scholars. Comrade Kimball's talk was on Farragut's fleet passing the batteries at Port Hudson, and the subsequent surrender of Vicksburg. He also told of issault by our troops on land, later, near Port Hudson, in which his regiment, the Twenty-sixth Maine, shed Comrade Kimball showed that this country is grand and glorious, because he men and women of the 60's were willing to forfeit property and life, to give it a further lease of freedom and nsure to coming generations greater the boys and girls of today are to assume great responsibilities, and that in order to properly do so they must qualify themselves to maintain the principles for which the boys in blue contended. Several members of the post were present, and were enthusiastic. Comrade Kimball's talks are ever full of interest.

On Monday morning next The Tribine's second Educational Contest will begin and all young men and women of this town should read the full description of it as it may prove to be just the opportunity they have been wishing for.

OVERCOME BY GAS.

An Incident of the Streets That Caused Excitement.

John Gavin, of Jermyn, an apprenice in the employ of the Sullivan and Ryan plumbing tirm, of this city, was overcome by gas yesterday, while he was assisting Mr. Sullivan in making gas pipe connection with the main in front of the People's shoe store on North Main street.

As the connection was about to be made a blast of gas come from the opening and before it could be closed lavin succumbed, He was carried to Mannion's resaurant. He revived in a few minutes, Earlier in the day there was a little scare caused by a body of gas being ignited in a trench that was being dug at Lincoln avenue and Church

A workman named Toni Terri was using a chisel in cutting on opening in the gas main, when a spark flew and ignited the gas that had accutrench. There was small flame that Terri was unable to avoid and his hair was slightly singed. His head was burned, but he continued at work, however.

THE CLERKS DANCE.

Enjoyable Social Event at Burke' Hall Last Evening.

Next in splendor and as decidedly successfully socially as the Knights of Columbus dance of Wednesday night vas the Clerks' social in Burke's hall last night. The rain was quite a facfor in withholding the attendance, yet he enterprise was a success and the treasury of the Clerks' association was appreciably augmented. The hall was becomingly adorned and decorated and the dancers in their elaborate gowns presented a series of moving pictures of color and beauty as they interpreted the dancing music of the waltz and other popular movements. Music was provided by Firth,

Mr. Moran's Improved Condition. Cheerful news has been received in this city from John Moran, son of the late Mrs. Ellen Moran, of Powderly street. Because of his frail health, Mi Moran has been compelled to live in the high altitudes in and about Denver, Colorado. He was here several months ago in attendance at the funeral of his mother. A cold that he contracted a few weeks earlier and the hurried journey he made across the continent greatly distressed him and ne was in a dangerous condition when he reached Carbondale. He continued in a weakened condition, and his intended visit of several weeks he was compelled to bring to an abrupt end and hurry back to the West. Mr. Moran is now located at Colorado Springs, the celebrated health resort, and is employed as collector on a daily newspaper published at that place.

Social Notes.

A pleasant family gathering was ield Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ella Colwell, on Seventh avenue. It was in honor of Miss Hearn, of Cleveland, O.

The Young Ladies' Cooking club were entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Jessie Moore, on North Terrace street. The stage hands' union of the Grand opera House will give a social at Gruer's hotel, Waymart, next Wednesday evening.

The Friday Night Social club have ssued the very pretty invitations for a shirt waist dance, which they will give in the Burke building on Wednes-day evening next. The full Mozart orchestra will be in attendance.

"Way Down East.

Perhaps the mest popular drama of the day, certainly the leader in the class of rural drama, is William A. Brady's realistic production of "Way Down East," which is to be seen at the Grand tomorrow night. Like all ood things, "Way Down East" was he result of an accident, and had not Lottie Blair Parker, the authoress, een compelled to take a long rest one summer several years ago this drama. chich has moved over a million peotle to tears, to laughter, higher aspir atlons and scorn of wrong, would never nas been written.

"Way Down East" when it appeared at the Lyceum in Scranton this season played to four performances of

A Society's Generous Donation.

The members of Branch No. 39, C M. B. A., displayed true public spirit at their meeting on Thursday evening, when they adopted a resolution voting the sum of $100 to the semicentennial fund.

Before the resolution was adopted there were brief but enthusiastic talks by several of the members, who voiced the sentiments of their brother members in declaring for a public celebration that would reflect the greatest credit on the citizens of Carbondale and would be the means of attracting attention to this city and win for it a more conspicuous place among the cities of the country. It was an opportunity, so the speakers expressed themselves, for the community to win glory for itself and advance its standing, and the motion to donate the $100 was heartily and enthusiastically concurred in.

The action of the C. M. B. A. branch is a hopeful indication of the interest that is being taken in the jubilee, that promises so much to the city.

At the above meeting twelve new members were received. This initia-
