When the report of the committee asking for the favorable consideration of common council ordinance, providing for the acceptance of the library gift from Andrew Carnegie, for a library site and the maintenance of the library and ordering the ordinance to be printed, was received, Mr. Manning arose and urged to have the matter go over until the plan for the management of the library could be thoroughly canvassed.

There was a good-sized scare started early yesterday morning by the news that came to town that Nathaniel Cobb, the principal in last week's killing, was hiding in a barn along Wilson creek, north of the city.

Chief McAndrew, who has been keenly on the alert for the capture of the fugitive, since last week, was about the liveliest of those who heard the startling news.

The chief hustled down to the city hall, where he was joined by Patrolmen Carden and Hiddy. The trio rushed off on a double quick pace, headed for the barn where the chief had been there since early in the night.

When the fugitive was captured, he was taken to the city hall, where he was held in a cell. The chief then returned to the city hall, where he was joined by the other officers.
