The Pennsylvania railroad now has a fast train service between Wilkes-Barre and Philadelphia, the trains going through the Lehigh and Schuylkill regions and giving an excellent train service to a region heretofore somewhat difficult to reach from this city and Wilkes-Barre. The trains are vestibuled and of the kind run on the main lines of the company. The trains leave Philadelphia on the Philadelphia and Schuylkill valley branch and run to Pittston. From there they travel the Lehigh Valley line to Tamaqua, then west to the Philadelphia and Erie or Pennsylvania road to Wilkes-Barre. The Philadelphia Inquirer sees in the putting on of these trains a fight between the Lehigh Valley and Pennsylvania companies for the business of this region, which has heretofore gone to the Lehigh Valley. Continuing, the Inquirer says:

"Nor will the Pennsylvania stop at Wilkes-Barre. It is common talk among business men of that section that the company is preparing to run into Scranton. There, however, it will not be a rival to the Lehigh Valley. At present the company, which has the right to build an electric line between Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, has one of those elastic charters, which permits it to use either electricity or steam as a motive power, and it is believed that as soon as the line is completed the Pennsylvania trains will be run over it into Scranton. The aspect of these two railroads as rivals is very new, one, for ever since the Pennsylvania assumed the Western New York and Pennsylvania, the two have had close competition with the Lehigh, but the Buffalo business, since both have admirable services to that city."

Fishermen will do well to keep in mind the recent changes in the fish laws in this state. The most important of these refer to sunfish, black bass, pike and pickerel, the season for catching which opens on June 15 instead of May 30, as heretofore.

The time of closing the season has been extended from December 31 to February 15. The season for catching trout opens the same as before and closes on July 31, fifteen days later than the old law required. It is absolutely forbidden to catch fish at any time in the year except with rod, hook and line, or with hand or dipsy, the line having not more than three hooks. The old law forbade hand lines.

The fish specified in the new law as game fish are: All species of trout, black bass, rock bass, rock rockfish, strawberry or eaten bass, pike-perch, or Squalius salmon, pike, pickerel, shad and muskellunge. Rockfish, or striped bass, is called food fish and may be taken with rod, hook and line or hand line at any time in the year. Catfish, eels, suckers and carp can also be taken with rod, hook and line at any time of the year.

The new law provides a penalty of $100 fine for any one that plants German carp in any water of the state, and this fish may not even be used for bait. A heavy penalty is placed on any person who catches black bass less than seven inches long, any trout less than six inches, any pike, pickerel or pike-perch less than nine inches long. No limit is placed on the size of sunfish. The new laws do not apply to the Delaware river.

DID SHE MEET A BEAR?

Belief That a Little One Who Disappeared Near Tobyhanna Was Eaten by Bruin.

The three-year-old daughter of Frank Simpson, who lives in a farm house in the dismembered Mondawmin, has not yet been found. It is feared that she has been devoured by one of the bears which from time to time are seen prowling about the wild country adjacent to the farm.

About noon Monday the children of Mr. Simpson were playing along the road adjacent to some woods. The youngest child strayed away from the others and the most diligent search has since failed to reveal the slightest trace of her.

The alarm was given and soon fifty people were scouring the woods for the little one, but up to last evening their efforts had been fruitless. A small stream which runs through that region was followed for miles, the father fearing that she had fallen into it and been drowned. The generally accepted theory now is that she fell into the clutches of a bear.

WORMSER IS NEW DIRECTOR

COL. HITCHCOCK REMOVED BY RECORDER MOIR.

Again Yesterday Morning the City's Chief Executive Asked the Director of Public Safety to Resign and When He Refused He was Formally Removed and F. L. Wormser Sworn in as His Successor. What Hitchcock Has to Say About His Removal.

Recorder Moir yesterday morning removed Col. F. L. Hitchcock as director of public safety and appointed in his place P. L. Wormser, an attorney at law.

Colonel Hitchcock and the recorder had a lengthy interview shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning. At this interview the recorder again asked the colonel for his resignation and the latter again refused to give it. The colonel went to his office and later left for his business place in the Commonwealth building, where Mounted Officer Joseph Bloch presented him with the following formal notice of removal:

City of Scranton,
Office of the Recorder, May 28, 1901.
Colonel F. L. Hitchcock, Director of Public Safety, Scranton, Pa.

Dear Sir: You having failed to comply with my request of yesterday for your resignation, I demand duty, in order that the best interests of the city may be served, to release you from further duties as director of the department of police, state, that you have been duly appointed F. L. Wormser director of the department of public safety to whom you will turn over all city property entrusted to your keeping.

Respectfully yours, James Moir.

TURNED OVER PAPERS.

Colonel Hitchcock went to the municipal building at once and turned over the books and papers of his department to Mr. Wormser, who had already taken the oath of office. His Recorder Moir, Mr. Wormser assumed the duties of his office immediately and had been installed but a short time when he issued his first order, directing the members of the police force to present themselves at the municipal building on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock for inspection and to participate in the Memorial Day parade.

The telephone bell in Recorder Moir's office rang merrily yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock and clerk Hatton, upon answering it, was heard to say, "Oh, that's Harrisburg, it is." He called to the recorder in the latter's inner office that he was wanted at the phone and then closed the door on the telephone and hung up the receiver.

The recorder in a minute or two sent for Director Wormser, who also talked with Harrisburg. Both men seemed to talk about the nature of their talk with Harrisburg and what it was at the other end of the wire.

RECORDER SORRY.

The recorder said yesterday afternoon that he was very sorry that Colonel Hitchcock had refused to resign.

He was sorry that he had been forced to remain in his office, and that he had been compelled to accept his removal, but he had been installed but a short time when he issued his first order, directing the members of the police force to present themselves at the municipal building on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock for inspection and to participate in the Memorial Day parade.

Harper, of Ohio; Nancy Carlin, of Monroe; Rebecca Horner, of Ohio; Beatrice Manley, of this city, and Carrie Puette, of North Carolina; Rev. Rogers Israel, of St. Luke's church, will open the exercises by prayer and an address will then be delivered. It has not yet been determined who will be the speaker. Dr. G. E. Dean will address the graduates. James P. Dickson, president of the board of trustees, will present the diplomas.

At the Moses Taylor the graduates are: Miss Blinggold, of White Haven; Miss Rosengarten, of Wilkes-Barre; Miss Strong, of Toronto, Canada, and Miss Shaffer, of this city. The programme has not yet been arranged.

The exercises will be held in a barrel supposed to contain refuse matter, created all kinds of excitement around Hewitt's fertilizing plant, near the Pyramids, caused the circulation of rumors to the effect that a ghastly murder had been committed.

The discovery yesterday morning of the dead body of a woman packed in a barrel supposed to contain refuse matter, created all kinds of excitement around Hewitt's fertilizing plant, near the Pyramids, caused the circulation of rumors to the effect that a ghastly murder had been committed.

Careful investigation has revealed the fact that the body was an anatomical subject which had been dissected by a carbondale physician.

The body was found yesterday morning about 9 o'clock by Ralph Robbins, the foreman, who was unpacking a barrel of refuse. He took off the cover of the barrel, which had been originally used for sugar, and found first a cow's head and several bones, and then the body. It was placed in an upright position, with the lower limbs doubled up on the breast.

It was taken out of the barrel when the workmen had sufficiently recovered from their fright. The body was that of a woman between thirty-five and forty years old, and was entirely naked. There were incisions in the abdomen and throat, and the knee joints had been cut in order to permit of the legs being doubled up sufficiently to allow the body to be placed in the barrel. The body was discovered, but was not decomposed.

CAME FROM CARBONDALE.

It was discovered that the barrel in which it was found came from Carbondale, having been brought down in the morning with a number of others from that city. The driver of the Hewitt wagon in Carbondale was communicated with by telephone and it was learned from him that he had received the barrel containing the body from Dr. John Niles, of North Main street.

According to Foreman Robbins, the driver, whose name is W. D. Jones, said that Dr. Niles had told him that the barrel contained bones.

Coroner Roberts was summoned and arrived about 12 o'clock in the afternoon. A cursory examination of the body was sufficient to convey the idea that it was an anatomical subject that had been used for dissecting purposes.

He communicated with Dr. Niles by telephone and learned from him that he had been dissecting the body for some months past and that he had received it from a Philadelphia Anatomical society.

The coroner then informed him that he would send the body back to Carbondale for him to dispose of in some other way. This was done late in the afternoon.

DR. NILES' STATEMENT.

When seen at his home in Carbondale last night by a Tribune man, Dr. Niles, who is president of the board of health of that city, said that he was a member of the State Anatomical society, from whom he received the body six months ago. He has certificates to prove this, he says. He said that he could not get it cremated and that not knowing where to bury it, he had thought of giving it to Hewitt's man.

He says that he called Jones into his home, where he kept the body, and showed it to him. Jones agreed to take it away and pack it in the barrel, says the doctor. The doctor says that he had nothing whatever himself to do with the packing of the body.

The story told by the doctor does not tally with that told by Foreman Robbins, who, as mentioned above, says that Jones said that the doctor had told him that the barrel contained bones.

Coroner Roberts says there is no question but that the body was especially prepared for dissecting purposes and that there is no reason to believe that a crime was committed.

The inhuman manner in which it was sought to dispose of the body has created a feeling of horror everywhere.

CONTROLLER WILL SIGN.

Will Ignore Resolution Directing

Him to Recognize Committee.

It is about settled that City Controller Howell will ignore the resolution recently passed by council directing him not to sign any warrants, except those for salaries, unless the bills for them are approved by the auditing committee.

There are at present in the controller's office a number of warrants which have been drawn by City Clerk Lavelle upon bills not approved by the auditing committee, which body is being ignored by the administration.

Deputy Controller Hartley practically admitted to a Tribune man yesterday afternoon that the controller would countersign these warrants, "The city solicitor has decided," said he, "that the auditing committee had no standing, and I suppose we've got to abide by what he says."
