FENDER SAVES CHILD FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Young James Marley of Birkett Street runs from his play directly into the path of a traction car, but is picked up by the fender—He was painfully bruised, but no bones were broken—Another lad shot in the leg by his companion.

A tragedy of the trolley was probably averted on Belmont street on Monday night, by the presence of the fender on a traction car, into the path of which 8-year-old James Marley ran while at play in the roadway with a number of companions.

The boy and his playmates made the dangerous selection of the street for their playground. The spot was near W. R. Morris' store. Marley was running about and in his childishness he seemed to lose his sense of danger and in getting away from one of his playmates he ran directly in front of a trolley car.

The motorman had no chance to stop or reverse the car, and it seemed as though the playful boy was to meet an awful fate. The fortunate presence of the fender proved the salvation of the boy and he was picked up and prevented from fearful injury, if not death.

When the motorman reached young Marley he was in a state of panic, and through his complaint of pain from bruises where the fender struck him. It was feared that some bones were broken, but when the boy was taken to the office of Dr. L. B. Bailey for examination the surgeon could find no fracture. The boy, however, was nervous and disturbed, but this was all he appeared to be suffering from, beyond the bruises.

The Toy Pistol Again. A toy pistol in the hands of a frolicsome boy is capable of considerable mischief, and this same kind of toy was the cause of a serious accident on Monday evening, when 10-year-old Joe Sweet was sent to the doctor's with a small quantity of stone that came from the aforesaid toy pistol.

Sweet lives on South Church street. He had a toy pistol that provided abundant diversion while it was being put to its ordained purposes. His companions, however, took to experimenting and thereby hangs the tale.

The pistol was jammed to the top of the barrel with two bits of stone, big enough, however, to bring disaster to a small boy, or a big boy for that matter. To see how the thing would go off, one of Sweet's companions pulled the trigger. The pistol went off and after there was a howl from Sweet, he was in the way of the "toy" and some of the "experiment" entered into his leg. He was taken to the office of Dr. L. B. Bailey, who had to make an incision to remove the piece of stone from the boy's leg. There is a small wound left, which young Sweet will have to nurse for a few days, and which will probably serve as a reminder of his toy pistol experience.

ODD FELLOWS DAY. Lake Lodore to be the scene of an interesting event in Odd Fellows circles. Friday, August 23, promises to be an interesting day at Lake Lodore.

It will be "Odd Fellows Day" at that delightful spot over the mountain, and members of the order will be attracted from all parts of the valley.

Olive Leaf was the theme of this city, will conduct the excursion, and the members are already hustling for the event.

The feature of the day will be the conferring of the degree of chivalry. The ceremony that accompanies this degree is beautifully impressive. The last occasion was at Farview two years ago, when it was conferred before several thousand people. The degree can be conferred but once in several years in the same part of the state, and Olive Leaf Lodge is correspondingly appreciative that it is to be given under its auspices on this occasion.

A CHINESE SOCIAL. Epworth League affair that promises to be highly enjoyable. The Epworth League will hold a Chinese social in the lecture room of the Methodist Episcopal church this evening, which promises to be an enjoyable affair.

The following programme will be given: Vocal duet, Clara Bronson, Lottie Wilcox, recitation, Emma Blatter, paper, "China's Needs," W. H. Bronson, tableaux, vocal solo, Miss Frank, paper, "Our Opportunities in China," Elizabeth Thompson; vocal duet, May Kilpatrick, Mr. Clark; letter from China; tableaux.

MAYFIELD RESIDENT KILLED BY D. & H. TRAIN

Michael Olenicz, of Hill, jumps from a coal train in front of passenger train No. 16, on the D. & H. and is instantly killed—He was returning from the funeral of a Countryman, who met death in Edgerton mine.

Michael Olenicz, of Mayfield, a miner employed in the Erie mine at that place, was struck and instantly killed by passenger train No. 16, on the Delaware and Hudson railroad shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Olenicz met death about three hundred feet south of the Mayfield station, and strangely coincidentally, it was while he was running from the funeral of an acquaintance, Antonio Cudia, who almost met a violent death by being caught under a fall of coal in the Edgerton mine.

After the funeral, Olenicz boarded a coal train which came to a standstill below the Mayfield station. He jumped from his place on the coal car, and after alighting stepped on the tracks in front of the passenger train, which was just beginning to slacken its speed as it neared the station. Olenicz's act was so sudden that it gave the engineer no time to check the train, and the unfortunate man was hurled aside and landed alongside of the coal train.

His head was fearfully crushed, both legs were broken, one arm was also fractured, and he was instantly killed. There were only feeble indications of life when he was reached and he expired immediately after his body was located.

Olenicz lived on Hill street, Mayfield, not far from where he was killed. He was about 35 years of age, married, and leaves two children beside his widow.

"Squire Mendelsohn empaneled a jury composed of Thomas Burke, Patrick McDonnell, George Gilman, John Williams and William Jones. They found that Olenicz's death was accidental.

A PASSING SOCIAL. An affair that will take place at Berean Baptist Church. An unique social affair will take place at the Berean Baptist church this evening, in the church parlors.

The young people have arranged for a "passing" social, which means that all who attend bring some article which they think will add to the merriment of the occasion in being "passed along."

Admission will be ten cents. Light refreshments will follow the programme of musical numbers, which is as follows: Piano solo, Annie Lewis; Recitation, Marie Robinson; Vocal solo, Lila Stone; Clarinet solo, E. J. Bly; Vocal duet, Lucy and Annie Milligan; Recitation, Mrs. H. Cornell; Piano duet, Maude Haigh and Blanche Colvin; Vocal solo, Helen Watkins; Piano solo, Alice Price.

RAILWAY MEN'S OLAM BAKE. Annual gathering that is to take place at Lake Lodore. The annual clambake of the Order of Railway Conductors, No. 156, will take place at Lake Lodore on Thursday, August 23.

This is an affair that furnishes unlimited fun and pleasure to the railroad men and their families and friends, and it is always a great success. This year there will be nothing lacking, and the guests of Lake Lodore will no doubt contain a jolly crowd of excursionists on the above date.

Order No. 156 of Railway Conductors embraces in its membership all of the railway men on the Pennsylvania division, and this will mean an attendance from points as far down the valley as Wilkes-Barre.

Jersey Visitors. William McLoughlin and wife, of Paterson, N. J., are in town for a few days, as the guests of M. F. Neary. They have been to the Pan-American for some time and just stopped off here for a few days, along with their wife, Mrs. McLoughlin, of the H. J. Russell Electrical company, had been placing his goods before a convention of railway superintendents at Buffalo.

A New Sunday School. The local Presbyterian has started a Sunday school in Carbondale township on the Greenfield road, near the home of William Lane. The first service was held Sunday and the large attendance gave a very encouraging outlook. Services will be held each Sunday hereafter at 3 p. m., and will be in charge of members of the main school.

Malta Degree. The beautiful Malta degree was conferred on a number of candidates at the regular meeting of Temple commandery, No. 288, Ancient Order Knights of Malta, last evening. Grand Recorder George H. Pierce, of Philadelphia, who was to have been present to confer the higher degree, has deferred his visit until Tuesday evening, July 2.

THE PASSING THROUGH. Mrs. Ida Pethick, of Honesdale, is visiting friends in this city. Mrs. C. H. Brown, of Sidney, N. Y., is visiting relatives in Sidney, N. Y.

COMMENCEMENT DAY AT ST. ROSE ACADEMY

Exercises of the Class of '01 and of the School Carried Out Most Creditably Before an Audience That Filled St. Rose Hall—The Programme of the Night's Event.

The commencement exercises of the class of '01 of St. Rose Academy were observed last evening in St. Rose hall.

The programme included, as is customary, exercises by the young pupils of the academy, who last night were given good scope for the qualities which have been developed through the careful training of the Sisters.

The hall was resplendent with decorations and lights, and it was crowded by the parents and friends of the graduates and other pupils, and who were given many opportunities to speak kind words of the young people.

The programme, which will also be repeated this evening, owing to the enormous demand for tickets, was as follows: Salutatory, Ambrose Battie; "In the Time of Roses," Minims; piano, Miss Mary McGouty; conferring of medals; orchestra selection, piano, Miss Mary Moran; violins, Masters E. Carroll, H. Quinn, J. Lofgren, W. Smith, G. McHale, Miss F. Clark, A. Murrin, L. Devine, Juvenile cantata, "The Little Gypsies"; piano, Miss Mary Roulund; Boys' drill—Recitation, Master Adam Schaff; piano, Miss Mary Roulund; violins, E. Carroll, F. Lofgren, J. Lofgren, G. McHale; violins, E. Carroll, F. Clarke, Valdeciro; Misses Mary L. Gordon, Sarah E. McGarry, Rose V. O'Rourke, Farewell, class 1901. Hymn, school.

AN EVENING OF MUSIC. Splendid recital by Miss Rose Conway at Hayden Evans' home. Miss Rose Conway, of Scranton, teacher of the piano and organist at the Church of the Holy Cross in that city, conducted a recital last evening at the home of her teacher, Professor Hayden Evans, on Laurel street.

Miss Conway, by thorough constant study and devotion to her art, has achieved renown for one of her years, sustained her reputation and won new admirers and friends last night, which was her first appearance in Carbondale.

W. J. Roberts, of South Scranton, who possesses a cultured voice of great power, was heard with splendid effect in five numbers.

The programme was as follows: (a) Andante (b) Minuetto from Sonata of No. 2 (c) Waltz (d) Mazurka (e) Scherzo (f) "Phosphorescence" (g) C. Love (h) In Quest of Tombs (i) Beethoven (j) No. 10 (k) Scherzo (l) Schubert (m) Mazurka (n) Schumann (o) Walschlied (p) Kreutzer (q) No. 10 (r) Chopin (s) Schumann (t) Chopin (u) Chopin (v) Chopin (w) Chopin (x) Chopin (y) Chopin (z) Chopin.

Guests at the Home of Geo. S. Kimball on Spring Street. The members of the Carbondale Cycle club enjoyed the warm-hearted hospitality of George S. Kimball, at his beautiful residence on Spring street last night.

This is the third or fourth of the treats which Mr. Kimball has given the club since becoming its president, and on each succeeding occasion the members are given more evidence of the fortunate selection they made when they called Mr. Kimball to direct the affairs of the club.

The chief number of last night's programme was the lecture of Dr. Wheeler on "Modern Surgery." Dr. Wheeler has been heard before on this subject, which he treats in an interesting manner, and last night he increased the number of admirers of this subject.

The quartette, composed of H. F. Clark, Russell Shepherd, Charles Bridget and W. A. Clark, sang several selections.

Mr. Kimball was exceedingly solicitous of his guests during the social hour. There was an impromptu musical programme, during which the assemblage sang "America" to a violin accompaniment by Isaac Singer, which was cleverly executed. Charles Bridget sang a solo and George James gave a piano selection.

The Misses Moss Entertain. One of the notably pleasant events of the social season was the tea given Monday afternoon by Miss Moss and Miss Lois Moss at the handsome Moss home, north of the city. Nearly seventy-five ladies partook of the hospitality of the Misses Moss.

Among the out of town guests were: Miss Hurd, of Flushing, L. I.; Mrs. Jackson, Miss Jackson, Mrs. Abonzo Moss, Providence; Mrs. LaRue, Scranton; Mrs. Richmond, Mrs. Tracy, Miss Clara Richmond, Richmond, N. J., Scranton, and Mrs. Day, Newark, N. J.

Not long ago she read one of these stories, and in the book she found an illustration which pleased her very much. Calling her papa to her side she pointed out a picture of a ship's deck, with a man on his knees peering down a dark opening in the floor.

"Do you see this picture, papa?" she asked. "Yes, dear."

"Well, she exclaimed triumphantly, 'that hole is full of bloomin' Englimen.'—Harper's Bazaar.

The Invitation Accepted. "I was stamping Pennsylvania in the last campaign in company with General Gobin," said Representative Olmsted, of Harrisburg, recently to the Washington Post. "I had never acquired a knowledge of Pennsylvania Dutch, and General Gobin impressed upon me the advantage that would result from such an accomplishment. Occasionally on our stamping trip he would undertake to teach me something of that language, and I discovered that the more I learned the more progress I made. So confident had I become of the advantage of speaking Dutch that before we reached a town I would generally ask him to teach me some good Dutch phrase that I could use into my remarks.

"One day, in particular, which I remember, when we were taking a carriage drive several miles over a country road to fill an engagement. When the driver of the team were in view it occurred to me to request General Gobin for a phrase of Pennsylvania Dutch that I could repeat before my audience. He responded readily and advised me to say, 'Was nempet?' at the close of my discourse.

"Delighted with the suggestion, I addressed my audience in enthusiastic terms, and concluded with the eloquent exclamation: 'Friends and fellow-citizens, put your cross at head of the ticket, stand by the flag, and patriotically support the Republican party. Was nempet.' "Such a rush for the general's attention followed that I believe, never before witnessed in that section of Pennsylvania. This little phrase which General Gobin taught me to use, and which I actually used, made me the talk of the town for several days.

Lord Salisbury as a Dresser. Here is an amusing and characteristic story of Lord Salisbury, told by one of his intimates, who was very careful in his dress, and that he is much too serious in his mind and occupations to have much regard for the merely ceremonial side of life.

For some years this falling produced no evil results, for Lord Salisbury had a faithful valet, who looked after him, but one unhappy day the valet left, and Lord Salisbury, who was very careless in his dress, and that he is much too serious in his mind and occupations to have much regard for the merely ceremonial side of life.

Identification. There are not many men who are better known in Detroit than Detective Pat O'Neil. He has two boys of whom he is justly proud. The other day he was walking with his two sons, and, meeting several friends, he stopped to talk with them. The boys were dressed exactly the same way, and to the outsider they looked as nearly alike as two grapes in a bunch.

"Are they twins, Pat?" asked one of the friends. "Oh, no," replied Mr. O'Neil. "Well, by George, I don't see how you tell them apart," ventured another of the friends. "Oh, that's easy," said Pat. "This one is 2 and the other is 6 years old."

"No, papa," exclaimed the father of the two boys, "he's 6 and I'm 3."—Detroit Free Press.

A Crushing Retort. The papa delights to annoy his daughter also by referring to the first president of the United States as "G. Washington." She thinks it is extremely disrespectful to say "G." instead of "George," and it does not mollify her in the least to be told that Washington was accustomed to write his name with the simple initial "G." "The day after I met you," he rejoined cleverly.

Her Revenge on Papa. In a certain Pennsylvania town lives a little girl who has a papa that was born in England. He is an intense American, and her papa delights to tease her by telling her that some day he will take her to England, where, as the daughter of an Englishman, she will be recognized as an English girl. This makes her very unhappy.

The papa delights to annoy his daughter also by referring to the first president of the United States as "G. Washington." She thinks it is extremely disrespectful to say "G." instead of "George," and it does not mollify her in the least to be told that Washington was accustomed to write his name with the simple initial "G." "The day after I met you," he rejoined cleverly.
