BROUGHT HIS STOCK.—Ex-Sheriff Robinson came to the aid of Darling, the unfortunate circus man, Saturday, and purchased at generous figures a large share of his stock. Saturday night the tent of the "little darlings" was in danger of destruction by a number of young barbarians of the genus small boy, but the arrival of Pauline Addams saved it.

THIS AND THAT.

The New Orleans Daily Picayune of last Wednesday contained the following:

"Early in the month of June a party of distinguished and representative business men, headed by H. H. Goodenough, of Buffalo, N. Y., the president of the F. H. & C. W. Goodenough company, and the chairman of the board of directors of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad, passed through New Orleans.

"The party included F. L. Peck, of Scranton, a lumber man millionaire, who is already largely interested in Mississippi timber lands; C. C. Jones, of Baltimore; L. S. Baker, of Baltimore; J. H. Rappe, of C. S. Woodworth, and last but not least, S. B. Bullis, the man who came south without a dollar, made the Gulf and Ship Island railroad what it is, and incidentally made himself.

"When the gentlemen, who were traveling in a private car, reached New Orleans they had completed a tour of the timber lands along the Gulf and Ship Island, and had inspected the plants of the Eastman-Gardner company, at Hattiesburg, and one or two other large concerns.

"None of the gentlemen were inclined to talk of the purpose of the trip while they were in this city. They continued themselves with saying that they had come south with an eye for investment. Beyond this statement they would not go.

"It now develops that they came to look over the lay of the land in Southwest Mississippi with a definite end in view, and from advice received from New York, their trip will be fraught with infinite good to the section of Louisiana's sister state through which they pass.

"Before leaving New York, they had been given a company with a capitalization said to be $10,000,000, for the purpose of developing the lands through which they journeyed, and extending the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad through Hattiesburg, where the line is already located from Merrill, possibly as far as Natchez. The company contemplates the enlargement of one of the big plants on the Gulf and Ship Island, and are planning to build a new road under construction will connect, and the opening up of a vast area of timber lands. The fruition of their plans will be the biggest thing Mississippi has ever known.

"Mr. Bullis is said to be interested with the gentlemen behind the company. If he gets behind the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City road, it seems without saying that it will prove a success."

SCRANTON HORSES WINNERS.

Lillian Roy and Tinker Take Races at West Pittston.

Two of Saturday's races at the West Pittston Driving park, were won by Scranton horses. Lillian Roy owned by John Slattery, took three straight half-mile heats, in 1:12½, 1:12¾ and 1:12¾. From Kate Field, Colonel Josephine, Pilot Girl and Rose Nutwood. The finishes were in the order named.

Rube Morton's Tinker won two straight mile heats in 2:25 and 2:29½, from Minnie Mills and Martha D.

A half mile race for three minute horses was won by Fritz with Betty Rice second and Sandy, third.

Among the Scranton racemen who attended were Frank Scott, E. J. Hagan, John Morton, George Dunn, A. J. Schnell, J. L. Crawford, John Regan and H. V. Wickham.

TOOK SHORT CUT TO DEATH.

Foreman Joseph Mayse Killed at Carlucci's Stone Works.

Night foreman Joseph Mayse, of Carlucci's stone works, met with a horrible death at daybreak Saturday. Part of his duty was to oil the machinery before the night shift quit work. He was hastening about this task and in attempting to take a short cut to the opposite side of an engine he stepped over the driving rod. His trousers were caught in a bolt and before he could be released he was pounded to death on the stone bed on which the engine ran.

The deceased was a native of Indiana. The remains were taken thither Saturday afternoon by his brother, Luther Mayse, who is day foreman at the stone works. Coroner Roberts made an autopsy, but did not hold an inquest.

THE ROOF SAGGED DOWN

Considerable Amount of Damage Done at the Big Barn of the Consumer's Ice Company

A peculiar accident, the repairing of which will cost several hundred dollars, took place yesterday morning when the hayloft in the barn of the Consumer's Ice company, on Adams avenue, near the new armory, collapsed and an instant later a partial break-down of the roof occurred.

Several men who were working on the second floor had a narrow escape from being caught under the plank and beam of hay and straw, which crashed through onto the second floor. The building is a long, three-story structure. On the first floor are stalled the company's large number of horses, on the second floor are stationed the wagons, and the third floor is used as a loft and general repository for machinery and other articles.

Yesterday morning, about 5 o'clock, five men were at work cleaning the nineteenth wagons on the second floor. These were Henry Halloran, Peter Hubert, Fred Swiney, Henry Ewert and Miles Gilroy. Suddenly they heard an ominous crack, and this was followed by another sharp crackling sound. "Look out, boys!" shouted one of the men, realizing what was happening: "Look out, the girder's smashing."

His companions did not stop to argue the question, but lost no time in making for the staircase leading to the ground floor. They had no sooner reached it when there was a loud report, and the hayloft had fallen in. An instant later there was another sudden, violent snap and a large portion of the roof had also collapsed. The accident was caused by the breaking of a large forty-foot girder running under the third story floor and forming one of the supports of the roof.

The breaking of it precipitated a large portion of the loft's contents onto the second floor, and also resulted in the breaking of the truss. The cause of the girder's giving way was the overtaxing of the loft's capacity. There were three full carloads of hay and straw in it, and also a large quantity of machinery. The portion of the loft which caved in was partially propped up during the day, and today work will be begun on repairing the break.

The break-down in the roof occurred in almost exactly its center, and covers an area of about thirty-two feet. Immediately after the collapse occurred the employees removed from the second floor all the wagons, save those which were wedged in by the falling timbers. Four wagons were badly damaged, two of them irretrievably so.

SUPPOSED TO BE LONGO.

Man Who Killed Officer Golden Under Arrest.

A man is in custody in Italy who is believed to be Tony Longo, who on August 14 of last year murdered Police Officer James Golden, of Dunfurn, a local Italian consul, Fortunato Tiscari, has been directed by his government to get the facts bearing upon the killing and forward them. As Longo did not relinquish his Italian citizenship after he came to this country, he will have to be tried in Italy for the crime.

On the evening of August 14, Longo's brother was placed under arrest by Officer Golden. He resisted and the officer Longo, who secured a revolver and shot and killed the policeman. Immediately after the shooting Longo disappeared and started for Italy.

LACAVO WAS DESPERATE.

Because Miss Smith Would Not Accept His Attention.

George Lacavo, of Old Forge, was before Judge Smith Saturday, charged with threatening to kill Miss Mary Smith, a very prepossessing young woman of the same place.

Lacavo was a suitor for Mary's hand, and when she refused to consider him in the race, he threatened to take her life.

Mary was not willing to give it up just yet and had Lacavo arrested. He entered bail in the sum of $300 for his appearance at court.

Why David B. Hill Wears a Silk Hat

There are probably no two men in Albany more alike and so much unlike as ex-Governor David B. Hill and Governor Theodore Roosevelt. Both are fighters, although their methods were both are brave and clever, and each received his office from a political party with which he in many respects differed. The two governors often meet, and there is usually a little fight about it when they come together. Both men have the gift of saying sharp things. Not long ago the New York state newspaper men gave a banquet at Statens Hall, Albany, and among the guests of honor were the two governors. Colonel Roosevelt came first. He wore an evening suit and his famous brown smock was famous by the rough riders. It was a combination of one original and primitive. Among the last of the guests to arrive was Mr. Hill, who was conventionally attired, even to his silk hat.

"Ah!" exclaimed Colonel Roosevelt in his peculiar staccato manner, as he grasped Mr. Hill's hand, "now we have with us a real Albany swell. Governor Hill is the only man here tonight with a silk hat."

Hill softly, "but I felt it at home. I've given up wearing it since I went out of the advertising business."

Then dinner was announced and the remainder of the evening passed pleasantly.—Saturday Evening Post.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN THE STREETS

KIND OF A SCHOOL THAT DEMORALIZES THEM.

Rev. James Benninger Treated on the Subject Yesterday Morning at Hampton Street Methodist Episcopal Church—Course of Study Includes Profanity, Vulgarity, Gambling, Smoking, Drinking, Lewdness, Roughness and Many Other Evils That Degrade.

Rev. James Benninger, pastor of the Hampton Street Methodist Episcopal church, preached a timely sermon yesterday morning on "The High School in the Streets of the City." He referred to the kind of a school it is, the studies taken up by the pupils, the teachers employed, the course of studies prescribed, the graduates, and how Christians can counteract the teachings of this school. The text was taken from Zechariah, viii:3, "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." During the course of his sermon, Rev. Benninger said:

Dr. Frank Mason North in a tract on the twentieth century movement said that the problems of the present age are the problems of child life. The Christian civilization of the next century depends upon the right solution of this problem. It has been said by some of the children of the toiling masses in the streets of our cities, so who shape the destiny of the state which they in turn will rule. In proportion as we neglect them the blame for bad government rests upon us.

We can theorize and philosophize as much as we please, but the question of degradation and villify will be settled only as we educate the child. Mr. North wisely said: "When we have saved the children of three generations we have saved the world." For the churches' sake as well as for the children's sake we must learn in some way to give them a better education. When no denomination has interested itself in the most reckless of criminals. In this age men and women are so absorbed in business and social amusements that they do not think of the dangerous tendencies growing up around them.

The thoughtful student of social problems is pained to witness the crowds of young people, and especially girls, promiscuously loitering all hours of the night, exchanging rude jests with the opposite sex and sometimes young men whose character is anything but savory. If parents knew the moral changes that best of the young they would give more attention to this problem. This brings us to the subject of the morning, "The High School in the Streets of the City."

THE KIND OF SCHOOL.

It is an old school, older than any of the systems now in vogue. To trace the history of education and educational theories in past ages would be an impossible task in a short discourse of forty minutes. But we would do so well as to be compelled to go back to the republic of Plato, the republic of Aristotle, the republic of Zeno, and the more general method of classic Greece. But it is safe to say that the school of the streets is older than any of the schools instituted for mental and moral training. The number who attend and their willingness to go makes it a matter of great importance to the community. It is a school of the streets, where care for the spiritual welfare of children.

There have been a host of schools in this country that have been compelled to discontinue, reduce the size of their classes and curtail expenses, owing to a lack of funds. But the school of the streets is the most prosperous of all; it never lacks in interest or endowment and is kept running day and night. Indeed, the strange thing about it is that the majority of the people prefer the night sessions.

There is no tuition to pay for teacher or use of a room; no books to buy or charts to borrow. With the church, the school simply provided for itself. In advance, Parents, the children above the average have often been puzzled as to how to provide means for the higher education as this present fact. The school of the streets is free and all are welcome to come who may.

TEACHERS OF THIS SCHOOL.

They are the most willing creatures on earth to teach. No begging or coaxing or persuading has, as is often done in the Sunday school or Junior league. Indeed, they come forward and offer their services, and they are glad to be asked to teach. No discussion carried on in their domain. They are glad to be asked to teach. No discussion carried on in their domain. They are glad to be asked to teach. No discussion carried on in their domain. They are glad to be asked to teach.

Again they teach mostly from experience. Sometimes books are used, but generally they persevere with object lessons. A sign is the most conspicuous feature. To walk down one of the streets of this school is to see young men loitering in the street. They are not loitering in the street, they are loitering in the street. They are not loitering in the street, they are loitering in the street. They are not loitering in the street, they are loitering in the street.

COURSE OF STUDY PRESCRIBED.

In most all schools we learn something useful, but look at the course of study prescribed here. Profanity, vulgarity, dishonesty, lying, stealing, gambling, smoking, lewdness, roughness and most any other evil thought that a start in these studies the street talk among boys is not likely to be very pure. Street games walk up and down whose sole purpose it is to amuse children, destroy property and do harm to the community. It is to establish habits of crime. Under such influences children develop a low sense of coming. When your children enter upon that course they learn blasphemy and vulgarity as naturally as they learn to walk. Some surroundings learn prayers and songs. Modesty and shame are foreign terms to the students of that course.

Most schools and colleges turn out graduates who bring honor to their alma mater, but no honor is ever brought to the community by the graduates of this school. As there are different grades among pupils of our public schools, so here we find some more active than others. The demoralizing process usually commences with the theft of a few cents from father or mother, then an article or two from a neighbor, and lastly a midnight entry into some store.

In the "Lord's Day Papers" some time ago an account was given of two boys, one nine, and the other eleven, both armed with revolvers, who were arrested for loitering in the streets of Newark, N. J. One day last week the Tribune, the daily paper of New York, published an account of a boy, twelve years of age, who was arrested for loitering in the streets of New York, N. Y. The boy's name was recorded on the list of fun to the criminal, but whose name will be enrolled on the list of fun to the criminal.

THE FIRST SUGGESTION.

Prof. Krug said that they who have had any experience with criminal classes know how well how many darkened young lives trace their first wrong step to the evil stories and suggestions.

heard while loitering in the streets of the city after dark. He gives official reports to show that during the year ending March, 1900 (since then it has been increased to 227 youths, 10,227 youths, arrested in one hundred of the largest cities of the United States and many of these who under 16 years of age. Such reports as that should arouse parents to a thoughtful investigation of the conditions confronting them. "I feel confident," says Prof. Krug, "that a careful investigation will convince any one that at least 75 per cent of these arrests are directly or indirectly traceable to unlimited street roving after dark."

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Bingham started the whole city, when she made her official report to the board of police, that during the year ending March, 1900 (since then it has been increased to 227 youths, 10,227 youths, arrested in one hundred of the largest cities of the United States and many of these who under 16 years of age. Such reports as that should arouse parents to a thoughtful investigation of the conditions confronting them. "I feel confident," says Prof. Krug, "that a careful investigation will convince any one that at least 75 per cent of these arrests are directly or indirectly traceable to unlimited street roving after dark."

I do not know that I have any new theory this morning to propose. There is a measure of relief in the current law which has been passed in some cities, but, however good any measure may be, I want to emphasize his morning theme will be to point out the line of argument which it will pay to think about.

MUST HAVE CONSIDERATION.

First—Children must have a greater consideration than we have been in the habit of giving them. The church of Christ will never make the progress she ought to make until she learns to recognize the opportunities and responsibilities of childhood. Parents do not expect their children to become Christians until after they have reached maturity and become almost hardened criminals. The parents are Christians, but the children must be considered outside the fold of Christ until fifteen or sixteen years of age, then they may come in. It is not that a virtual acknowledgment of the fact that before they are fit subjects for the kingdom of God they must become liars and thieves and sinners in general.

Coming to think of, do you say? That is what you are daily teaching them in practice. If not in words, too young to be converted because they cannot understand the deep things of God? I like to walk through the streets of our cities and see the children of God. These are my little Christians; they are growing up for Jesus and some day they will be able to do His work.

How many Christian parents after making a solemn pledge to God at the baptismal service that they will teach the children "as soon as they are old enough to understand," stand by that pledge? How many? Not one in ten. How is it, then, that there are so many children in the church? For the simple reason that the ministers of the gospel were not so much interested in the children as they are themselves they could go to the devil. I know my remarks are not applicable to all parents, but they do touch a large majority, who, instead of once in a while sending their children to a religious conversation with the little children, dress them in the morning and turn them loose in the street and let them rove like cattle until after dark and then wonder why it is that the church does not hold the young. Well, you do not have to look very far outside your own yard for a solution.

HOME INFLUENCE.

Second—A great many people today depend entirely upon the Sunday school for the moral and religious teaching of their children. The Sunday school is a grand institution. God pity the child committed to it along without it. But grand and good as it may be, it can never take the place of a good home influence. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it," is just what the fathers of Israel were to do. A Catholic priest once said: "Give me a child from the age of six to twelve and I don't care whose hands it falls into after that. I want to further the influence of God in the child. Give me a child whose home influence is what it ought to have been and I will guarantee that that child will be a Christian."

The child of the street is a child of the street. I know of no power that will have such a controlling influence as the power of Christian example. It is not enough to lay down a rule, but children must be taught by example how to walk that rule. If you lounge around all day Sunday, do not wish the children for refusing to go to church, your example is inconsistent with your teaching; your children are liable to do about what you do. Therefore, give them a good Christian example and half the battle is fought.

THREE PAID A HUNDRED.

Municipal League Men Make a Good Sized Haul.

Wilson, the raider, and Wilson's terrible men swooped down upon Charles Tiffin's new "golden palace of sin," early yesterday morning, and took in tow the proprietor, his wife, two girls and two men.

Magistrate Miller fined Tiffin $50 for keeping a disorderly house and $50 for selling liquor without a license. Mrs. Tiffin was fined $10; the two girls $5 apiece and one of the men $5. The other, who came in drunk while the raid was being made, was sent to the station house to sober up. Later he gave his name as John Coleman, and was fined $5. The fines were all paid.

The young men came to the door and rang the bell at Charles Tiffin's. They were inside. Agent Wilson answered. When the trio beheld the unmistakable countenance of the chief of the reform raiders beaming on them from the vestibule, they departed without making known their business.

Mention of Men of the Hour.

A very busy person is Charles C. Rose, the gentleman who has charge of the coal department of the Delaware and Hudson company. When one stops for a moment to consider the number of collieries operated by that company, its output, and the hundred and one difficult problems that arise daily with reference to the mining and cleaning of anthracite coal, one begins to have something of an idea of the work the position entails.

Mr. Rose was born in Orange county, N. Y., and after finishing his education became a civil engineer and entered the employ of the Jersey Midland railroad, going from that company to the Delaware and Hudson. His next work was with the Fort Jersey Water company, then installing its plant, and when that was completed he accepted a position with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and was on the corps of engineers which laid out the road from Binghamton to Buffalo.

Later he was made assistant chief engineer of the company and Jan. 1, 1896, was made assistant superintendent of the Delaware and Hudson's coal department. When the late A. H. Vandenberg, the superintendent, retired several years ago, he was made superintendent, a position he has since continued to fill with great efficiency.

There ought to be an organization in Scranton called the Men of the Hour, which would be composed of the many successful young men from Susquehanna county who have come here and made their mark. It's astonishing how easy it is for a Montrose youngster to grow up and become a millionaire, and become a Supreme court justice, a gold mine owner, a maple sugar connoisseur, a funny-story telling alderman, a the-

DEDICATION OF HAWLEY CHURCH

MANY FORMER HAWLEYITES IN ATTENDANCE

Bishop Hoban Who Performed the Ceremony and All the Officers of the Dedication Mass Were Either Natives or Former Residents of Hawley or Had Served There as Priests—Special Train from Scranton—Description of the New Church.

The new St. Philomena's Catholic church, at Hawley, of which Rev. P. C. Winters, of Scranton, is pastor, was dedicated yesterday by Rt. Rev. M. J. Hoban, bishop of Scranton, assisted by more than two score of the priests of his diocese.

Several carloads of Scrantonians went by special train to witness the ceremony, not a few of them being natives or former residents of the ancient town. In this category were all those who were officers of the mass. Bishop Hoban, the celebrant, spent his boyhood days there, and there his father is buried. Very Rev. P. Coffey, V. G., of Carbondale, who was arch-priest; Rev. John P. O'Malley, of Kingston, and Rev. J. J. Huddy, of Ashley, the deacons of honor; Rev. James L. Shanley, of Sayre, and Rev. P. J. McHale, respectively, deacon and sub-deacon of the mass; Rev. J. J. Griffin, of the cathedral, and Rev. J. B. Feeley, of Nicholson, masters of ceremonies; Joseph L. Golden, thurifer; Rev. R. A. McAndrews, preacher, all were either natives of Hawley or had served there as a priest.

IN THE SANCTUARY.

Among the priests in the sanctuary there were also former Hawleyites. Those in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Mons. Eugene A. Garvey, V. G., of Pittston; Rev. J. A. O'Reilly, rector of St. Peter's cathedral; Rev. P. J. McManus, of Green Ridge; Rev. E. J. Mealey, of South Scranton; Rev. Peter Christ, of South Scranton; Rev. W. P. O'Donnell, of Bellevue; Rev. M. E. Lynott, of Jersey; Rev. T. G. Donahue, of Plymouth; Rev. P. E. Lavelle, of West Scranton; Rev. M. F. Crane, of Avoca; Rev. T. J. Comerford, of Archbald; Rev. Miles Milane, of Dunmore; Rev. John J. Healey, of Pleasant Mount; Rev. J. A. Shanley, of Old Forge; Rev. Father Judge, of Sugar Notch; Rev. Father Dassel, of Honesdale; Rev. Father Handley, of Honesdale, and Rev. Father Trites, of Port Jervis.

Bishop Hoban warmly congratulated Father Winters, the congregation on the acquisition of such a beautiful edifice, and Father Winters feelingly expressed the joy and deep gratification the occasion brought him. Rev. Father McAndrews preached a strong and eloquent sermon on "The True Church."

In the evening there was a sermon by Rev. Father Comerford, at the conclusion of which Bishop Hoban imparted the papal benediction.

DESCRIPTION OF CHURCH.

The church is a handsome edifice of pure Romanesque style, built of brick, with stone facings and galvanized iron ornamentation, and finished in the interior in quartered oak. The altar is of Italian marble, the gift of P. Bishop Hoban. The length of the church is 115 feet, its width is 57 feet, height 24 feet, and is surmounted by a tower whose golden cross is 88 feet above the ground. The cost complete is $23,000.

The church was designed by Peeney & Williams, and built by Mulhern & Judge.

POLICE AND ALDERMEN.

Patrolman J. J. Malloy, of the police, was arrested Saturday morning. He was committed to the county jail for twenty days.

Michael White and Owen Murray, two vagabonds, who had made their headquarters near the Western hotel, were arrested Saturday by Sergeant Ridge, way and Patrolman Alderman and Thompson, after several complaints had been made of their behavior. Magistrate Miller gave each of the delinquent men ninety days in the county jail.

Magistrate Miller Saturday morning committed to the county jail John Gerry, Martin McMahon and Martin O'Connell, in default of $200 each, on a charge of drunkenness and fighting on the Archbald switch of the Delaware and Hudson road was broken open Friday night and three kegs of beer were removed. Saturday morning the men were found near the mouth of the Archbald shaft finishing a keg of beer, which was found in the woods nearby. The men, who claimed to be miners, were arrested by Detective Crippen, of the Delaware and Hudson road, and taken to the Carbondale. They claim to be innocent of theft, and say the beer was given to them.
