WINANS HULL'S LATEST ESCAPADE

The Young Man Is Sought After to Explain His Conduct While in the Company of a Man Named Schoonover from Scranton, Who Has Been Missing Since Wednesday.

Winans Hull, of Dixon Hill, who has been in heaps of trouble for a young man is before the public once again. His latest escapade has had a sensational coloring given to it, but when the facts are sifted it seems to be hardly any more than another exposure of his weakness when placed in the midst of temptation. What led to the highly colored stories that have went round the town was the circumstance that a man, a Scranton man, named Schoonover, who figured in the episode with Hull,has not been seen since Wednesday last. When he was observed with Winans, both of them were stupidly intoxicated. Hull, however, has not been with Schoonover since Wednesday night, and on Thursday morning his mind was not clear enough after the night's debauch for him to recall where his boon companion had gone or what happened to

The same day, Thursday, Hull left home and has not been seen nor heard from since. His mother, while not unaccustomed to his sudden leaving home, is more worried than usual over his absence and she is fearfully con-

Hull left home on Wednesday morning last and said he was going to the excursion of St. John's church, South Scranton, which was held at Lake Lodore. He had no money so far as she knew, his mother said yesterday to the Tribune representative, and she was somewhat surprised when he declared his intention of going to over the mountain.

At the excursion, Hull met the man from Scranton, Schoonover, the one whose disappearance set affoat the stories that he had been beaten and The pair according to the stories that have been told the police department and Hull's folks, by Schoonover's friends, who came to Carbondale in search of the missing Scrantonian, were drinking together at Staples hotel at Waymart and that Schoonover was seen last in the company of Hull. That night, Wednesday. Hull was found in a drunken stupor on the porch of Staples hotel. He was located by some of the cmployes of Emery Lee's livery of this city, who, when they recognized him carried him to their wagon and placed him on the top of a load of hay which they were taking to this city. When Hull was aroused on reaching this city, he wandered to his parents home on Dixon Hill. The drink that he had taken had spent its influence, but he had no recollection of what had happened or at least so pretended to his folks. He had a watch which his parents knew was not his own. This is the time piece that, Schoonover, Hull's companion had with him and which the police of this city, were asked to recover by Schoonover'c friends. Hull offered no explanation as to how he became possessed of the watch, but hastily prepared to leave home His mother remonstrated with him, and after advising him, begged to reform. Hull, however, brushed aside his mother's entreaties and hustled out of the house. has not been seen since, nor heard from, but the mother believes he went to Honesdale, where he was promised a position about two weeks ago with telephone company in that bor-

Yesterday Hull's house was visited by a man who left a card on which he wrote the name of C. W. Miller, and his address as 337 Washington avenue, Scranton

The stranger represented that he was a detective: that he was looking for Hull to learn what he knew of the disappearance of Schoonover, who, the alleged detective said was his cousin. Hull, the man said, had been seen in the company of Schoonover on Wednesday. Schoonover, at the time, had a considerable sum of money with him when he left home. The stranger said that while Hull perhaps did nothing that was criminal, he was wanted to throw some light on Schoonover's disappearance.

The family was unable to give Miller any information as to Hull's whereebouts. The visitor also sought Chief McAndrew and acquainted him with the story of Schoonover's disappearance, of the loss of the watch, which it was heard in some manner had come into Hull's possession, and of Hull having been seen drinking with Schoonover at Waymart on Wednes-

Chief McAndrew and his men are on the lookout for Hull.

Hull has been drinking heavily since his release from jail several weeks ago, and has acted queerly for some time. A few neeks ago he was employed by the Carbondale Telephone company, but was discharged for having tampered with two of their subscribers'

ROMANTIC JERSEY LASS GOES HOME

Miss Buellah Stevens Who Eloped with Herman Swingle Is Forced to Leave Her Equally Romantic the Jersey Meadows.

The last chanter of the remance of who left her home in the state of well developed mosquitoes and summer resorts, and eloped to this city with Herman Swingle, a Carbondale young man, was written yesterday, when the girl's aunt, Mrs. Mary Stevens, reached this city, and after a heart to heart talk with her romantic niece, took her away from her lover and back to her home in the Jersey meadows.

Mrs. Stevens, the aunt, is a woman of few words, but of a whole lot of decision, and this the lass appreciated for she made no protest when her aunt came on the scene, though she expressed her sorrow because of the separation in a copious flow of tears.

When Swingle left the city building in the morning he came to say good bye to the maid who left her home for him, and this was the cause of the overflow of the girl's emotions. She weeped and weeped and weeped some more: then she ceased, gave a few heavy sighs, made her toilet and left in company with her aunt over the Delaware and Hudson on the 11.20

THE CLERKS TO ACT.

They Will Proceed to Enforce Early Closing Movement.

The Clerks association at last night's meeting, took steps to cause the two merchants who are violating the early losing agreement to close at 6:20 each vening. The hour agreed upon.

The action of the clerks was brought about by the removal of the complaint from the Merchant's association that there were a few stores that persisted in keeping open after hours. The committee from the clerks was instructed to wait on the two merchants complained of, a Main street dealer and one on Park street to observe the agreement. If these two recalcitrants refuse, then the committee is empowered to bring their names before the Central Labor union for action at its coming meeting.

The clerks also installed the recently elected officers last night. David Wash, the retiring president onducted the installation.

Frank Boylan was appointed the alternate of David Walsh, to the convention of clerks at Buffalo on July 9.

STATE INSPECTOR ORDERS QUARANTINE

Dr. H. V. Logan of Scranton, Visits Simpson, Confirms Diagnosis of Small Pox Cases and Orders Quarantine to Be Rigidly Enforced. Carbondale Board of Health on Vaccination.

Dr. H. V. Logan, of Scranton, district inspector of the state board of health, visited the village of Simpson yesterday afternoon, investigated the supposed cases of small pox, confirmed the diagnosis of the physicians in charge of the case and ordered the quarantine that was ordered by Dr. John S. Niles, president of the Carbondale board of health to be rigidly enforced. Dr. Logan was summoned to Carbondale yesterday afternoon by Dr. Niles, with whom he visited the company houses at the Northwest breaker in Simpson, where the Toolan and Doud families live. The condition and appearance of the patients, Mr. Toolan and Mrs. Doud, led Dr. Logan to pronounce the cases as small pox, and without any hesitation.

In accordance with Dr. Logan's in structions, arrangements were made to have the quarantine strictly main-Lover and Return to Her Home in tained, and a guard was immediately placed on duty in front of the houses. which adjoin each other. Two other men were also employed, and the three Miss Buellah Stevens, the Jersey lass will relieve one another every eight Orders were also issued for the vac cination of the residents in the vicinity of the infected houses and throughout the village.

Earlier in the day Dr. Niles had a talk with General Manager Frieder, of the Klots Silk mill, where a number of girls work, who live in the same row of houses as the Toolan and Doud families. He asked that the girls whose homes are in this row be rerested to remain at home for the present; that they be directed to be vaccinated, as well as the other hands of the mill. This Mr. Frieder agreed to do, and he also indicated a spirit to operate with the officials in every vay in order to prevent the spread of the infection.

is omnivorous, and if there were no comparative anatomy the natural tastes of man would lead to the same conclusion. Man is naturally a cosmopolite, and to be able to cat all is one of the conditions of being able to live anywhere. So that the natural food of man is what he can get. Sometimes it may be fiesh only, sometimes only vegetables, and generally all kinds. There may be many cases of indivuals who thrive best on an exclusive diet. With those I have no quarrel. If they have the been able to find out what is best for them, they have been extremely fortunate. If they have the strength of mind to use this best, they ought to be congratulated. If they it, they are to be envied. However,
