ARMY DESERTERS APPREHENDED

John A. Adams and William McHale of This City Arrested and Taken to New York City to Stand Court Martial for Running Away from United States Regular Army. Taken by Constable Gilby-Their Career.

Constable Gilby, of Alderman Delavans' court, made two important arrests vesterday afternoon, when he apprehended two deserters from the regular army of the United States.

The deserters are John A. Adams, of Grove street, and William McHale, of the West side. Both of them are na tives of this city and are Adams is about 22 and McAndrew is about a year his senior. Adams ran away from the army in May of last year, and McHale desorted about six weeks ago. Adams and McHale both started for home directly after they bade defiance to the law and left the. to them, irksome duties of military life, and they have been in Carbondals

Last night the pair were taken by Constable Gilby to Fort Columbus, Governor's Island, where they will stand court martial on charge of desertion.

The first arrest was made by Constable Gilby about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, when he captured Mc-Hale out near the Falls. McHale made no resistance, though protesting at first that he had done no wrong. When the constable, however, shoved up the coat sleeve of his prisoner and there found tattooed the initials. "W. M." McHaie melted and exclaimed, "Well, I guess it's all over with me."

Adams was arrested about 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the vicinity of the hustled away to Ecemergency hospi-switchback on the Honesdale branch tal. of the Delaware and Hudson company. Adams is fond of roaming through the woods, and he was on one of his rambles when the constable came across There was a bit of excitement him. before Adams surrendered. He is a fast runner, and when a lad won many a sprinting match. He was about to demonstrate that he was no slouch at the present time when it came to a foot race, but Constable Gilby, divining his intention, pulled a revolver and covered the young man, at the same time delivering himself of a threatening command. Adams stood still in his fear and the constable after handcuffing him, marched him off to the city jail. dams onlisted at the recruiting station in Scranton Nov. 17, 1898. He deserted on May 14, of last year, while stationed at Madison barracks, Sack-ett's harbor, New York, as a member of Company G. Fiftcenth infantry. Adams has been in Carboudale alhas been drinking freely. Adams did not dony that he can away, and in pulliation of his act he said that he did not believe the government needed his services, since no war was in progress. All that he did was barracks duty and this failed to impress on him the duty he owed his country It was the irony of fate that the revelver which Constable Neary pulled on Adams when he attempted to flee was the very one which was taken from Adams a few days ago when he was arrested and taken before A'derman Delayan on the charge of holding up a man. McHale enlisted at Scranton in April, 1899, and was assigned to the some company as Adams. He described 21 Fort Ontario on May 21, 1900. He, too, offered the excuse that Adams save, that he didn't think his services were needed.

being recorded is the haul made by ex-Select Councilman Wade Finn, of Scranton. Mr. Finn has a summer home at Crystal lake, where for years he has spent the warm months. He has been there long enough to know the "good" places about the lake, and the fish that can evade his balt must rurely be as slippery as the proverbla slippery sel. On Fourth of July, Mr Finn and J. B. Shannon, of this city whose summer home is also at the lake laughed at Old Sel and his blistering heat and spent nearly the whole day publing in the choicest bass that sport around in the lake's depth. Before night they were exceedingly well rewarded, and they had as fine a mess as the most enthusiastic fisherman could wish for. Conspicuous among the bass was a great big fellow, the hero of the story. It weighed over three pounds, and it was caught and landed by Mr. Finn, who proudly exhibited it, while Mr. Shannon looked on with an envious gleam. Mr. Finn also landed other good-sized ones, but the three-pounder was the pet of his string.

The news of the good catch at the ake has attracted a great crowd of fishermen, and the story of Mr. Finn's catch will excite greater interest and there will be quite a spirit of rivalry to exceed this feat.

AT ACUTE STAGE The Clerks Association Wearied of

Merchants Who Refused to Observe Early Closing, Decide to Let the Central Labor Union Act and the Latter Body Meet Sunday.

The early closing movement has assumed that stage where it is deemed necessary to invoke the ald of the Central Labor union in order to bring in line the merchants in the city who refuse to lose at 6.30 each evening, the hours specified in the agreement between the Merchants' association and the Association of Clerks.

The struggle between the Clerks' asciation and the two merchants reerred to, one a Main street dealer, the other of Park street, for it has reached o a struggle, has been in progress or several months. Their refusal to bserve the agreement has been a bone f contention between the clerks and he Merchants' association. The fact

f these two stores remaining open and taking sales after their neighbors had losed their stores and gone home offonded the latter, and when it was persisted in, it riled the merchants, and here has scarcely been a meeting of the association for months at which this was not a fertile topic of discussion, and which on a few occasions threw the more remonstrative ones into a ferment of anger. The Clerks' association was made the target of censure for seemingly allowing these two merchants to continue violating the agreement without measures being taken that would compel the closing of every store at the hour agreed upon The clerks, on the other hand, protested that they did not care to use harsh measures until circumstances forced them to, and they preferred to exhaust every other means before invoking the aid of the Central Labor union. the meantime the two merchants who have come under the ban continued to sell goods up to any hour that suited the convenience of buyers, while the merchants' dissatisfaction and anger The climax came last week when the Merchants' association asked, or it might be said, formally demanded the clerks to use its pwoer. Whatever it might amount to, to force the storekeepers referred to close at 6.30. The clerks were still disposed to pro-ong the matter in the hope that the calcitrants would fall in line: but this tope hore little fruit, and the early losing movement being threatened with a sudden death, the clerks hastened to take action, and at their meeting this week they decided on the steps which they hoped so long would not be necessary to take. The matter was placed in the hands of the grievance committee, and this body, after canvassing the situation, was forced to the conclusion that the bringing of the names of the two merhants before the Central Labor union was the alternative between the cess or defeat of the early closing. The committee reluctantly took this course. but as it seemed the salvation of the
