An Observance That Has Gradually Ceased in Pennsylvania Coal Regions Kept Up in Chicago. from the Chicago Record-Herald.

French-Canadian residents of Chicago yesterday celebrated the fete of St. Jean Baptiste with pontifical high mass at the Church of St. John, a parade of 1,800 men through the streets of Englewood, a grand fete at Oswald's rove, Fifty-second and Halsted streets, and a banquet last night in the church hall of Notre Dame parish, The pageant, resplendent with Stars and Stripes, the tri-color of France and the Union Jack of the Canadian provinces, assembled at 7.30 o'clock at West Forty-seventh street and Union avenue. A platoon of mounted police ed the march and six bands of musicians, playing the "Marseilleise," "God Save the Queen" and the Many Cases Heard in Alderman Hymn of the Republic" at intervals, gave harmonious evidence of the cosmopolitanism of the patriotic sons of sunny France who marched in the p

Louis Courchene, 4 years old, attired in the sheepskin of the precursor, with crook in hand and bare headed, marched in a prominent place in the column. At a dozen stations in the parade the little impersonator of John the Baptist was cheered and caressed. The culminating point of the pictursque parade was at the Church of St. John the Baptist, where pontifical high mass was sung by Monsignor Legris, of Bourbonnais college, Kankakee, Ill. Rev. Pere Marsil, director of the college, delivered the sermon, which was a patriotic and religious plea for the perpetuation of the day celebrated. From the church the augmented concourse, led by the uniformed paraders, marched to Oswald's Grove, where a fete, al fresco, with concert, speeches, games and refreshments, made up the day's programme Edgar Theribault, D. Deschatelet, Z. P. Brosseau, A. M. Bellie, A. Lapointe and Jean Marcoux made speeches calculated to stir the religious and patriotic feelings of the assemblage. Mr. Brousseau presided and among the distinguished guests was Alexander Beaubier, a French-Canadian policeman, the first white child born in Chicago outside the walls of old Fort Dearborn.

The songs and hymns of France, England and America were sung at intervals by the animated crowds of merrymakers. In the company were the children of the settlers of the valleys of the Ottawa, the Sorelle, the haudiere and the Saguenay. grams were received from half a hunfred settlements and cities along the banks of the great St. Lawrence, where similar festivities were held. Protestants, Roman Catholics and unbelievers all met in a uniform holiday of French national enthusiasm and the day was fittingly closed with songs, speeches and prayers.
