LITTLE GIRL STRAYED AWAY

DISAPPEARED FROM HOME IN SOUTH SCRANTON.

She Was Found by Joseph Miller of Hampton Street and Through the Police Returned to Her Home. Country Picnic to Be Held on the Lawn at the Residence of F. J. Johnson—Browns Will Play Ball on July 27.

A little girl named Thayer, residing with her parents in South Scranton, disappeared from home yesterday and wandered away. No trace of her could be found until late in the evening, when the police were notified.

The officers in charge of the different precincts were informed to be on the look out for her, and shortly before 9 o'clock a man named Joseph Miller, residing at 531 Hampton street, notified Lieutenant Williams that the missing girl was at his house. The parents were informed by telephone and went to Miller's after the girl.

Explosion of an Oil Stove Caused a Fire in the Home of Edward Kneller.

The exploding of an oil stove yesterday morning at the residence of Edward Kneller, in Pitson avenue, was the cause of a slight blaze at the rear part of the house. The explosion of the oil was occasioned by over-heating the stove and the burning oil was scattered over the back porch, and set fire to the woodwork. Owing to the prompt action of the Centurys, the fire was quickly extinguished. The house was only slightly damaged. No alarm was sounded. Kneller is a permanent man for the Century company.

Mr. Crolley Entertained.

Exciting Runaway.

A horse hitched to a wagon owned by Spruks Brothers', lumber dealers on the north side, and driven by Willie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Spruks, took flight on Prospect avenue, last evening and dashed down Hickory street.

When the maddened horse reached the side street which leads to the barn he made a sudden turn and the wagon collided with a fence, throwing Fred Basmer, who was on the wagon with Spruks, he landed on his head and received some painful bruises. Spruks, who held on to the lines, landed safely in the harness. Neither horse or wagon were injured.

Books---Copyrights

The demand for Winston Churchill's new novel, "The Crisis," still continues. Varied as the comments have been on this great book, in nearly every instance you will find them favorable. One of the side characters in "The Crisis" is Elphinstone Hopper. By some he will be condemned, by others admired. He is the kind of man we call cold and determined. Everything that he says, does or intends to do, is measured by the standard of the dollar. His business, his pleasure, his revenge, his hate, yes, and his love affairs, too, are all measured by the standard of the dollar.

There are many other characters just as interesting in "The Crisis." At Book Department..... $1.10

"Tarry Thou Till I Come,"

By George Crolley.

Read what General Lew Wallace has to say about this Great Book:

"In my judgment, the six greatest English novels are Ivanhoe, The Last of the Barons, The Tale of Two Cities, Jane Eyre, Hypatia and This Romance of Crolley's. If Shakespeare had never been born; if Milton, Byron and Tennyson were singers yet to be, and Bacon, Darwin, and Ruskin unknown; still the six works named would of themselves suffice to constitute a British literature." Tarry Thou Till I Come has nineteen full page illustrations and colored frontispiece by T. de Thulstrup.

BROTHERHOOD.

That plenty but copious here
Which leaves my brother here,
Not who's good my heart can be,
While his is bowed with care
If I go free, and sound and stout
While his poor fellow's out,
Unstarved still, I'll still cry out,
And plead with whom I thank.

Almighty! Thus who Father be
Of him, of me, of all,
Draw us together, him and me,
That whatsoever fall,
The other's load may fall his not—
The other's strength be mine,
No task of mine that his lot
My claim from son of Thome.

I would be not, I would be glad,
I would be not, I would be glad,
But if so on my heart be laid—
What benefit have I?
But he whose shoulder's best endure
The load that brings my lot,
And best shall be his joy secure
Who shares that joy with grief.
