A WEE LITTLE THIEF.

Joseph Swartz, Aged Eight Years, Taken Into Custody.

Patrolinan Rose, while strolling along ackawanna avenue last night, near the Lackawanna station, spied several small boys acting suspiciously, near one of the freight cars standing on the siding nearby.

He went over closer and saw that the youngsters had broken into the car and taken out a number of heads of cabbage, which they had piled on the ground and which they were just preparing to load into bags which they had with them. They spled the pa-trolman, and made off through the yard.

He followed them, and after a long chase managed to capture the smallest of the crowd, a wee little mite of a chap, bare-footed and dirty. This little fellow, when questioned, gave his name as Joseph Swartz and his age as 8

He volunteered the information that this was the first time he had ever 'stoled." and that the other boys with im were named Mike Wassell and John Breakaw. They all live down on the flats, he said. He was allowed to go, after Lieutenant Goerlitz had given him a little lecture on ethics, Warrants for the arrest of the other two boys will be sworn out today.

TO RESTRAIN THE STRIKERS

COURT GRANTS A PRELIM-INARY INJUNCTION.

Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company Secures a Preliminary Injunction with a Rule to Make It Permanent, Restraining the Strikers from Molesting the Company's Workmen or Property-Alleged Illegal Acts of Which the Company Specifically Complains.

Application was made to court, Satrday, by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad comapny for an injunction to restrain the striking car builders and others from interfering with the company's operations by inimidating its workmen, and the like. Judge Kelly granted a temporary inunction, returnable next Thursday at a. m., with a rule on the defendants to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent. The petition in the injunction bill, to which the injunction order substanially conforms, reads as follows: That a temperary injunction may issue im ediately as hereinafter prayed, and that, on mal hearing of this case, a perpetual injunc-tion may be allowed and lasued, restraining the lefendants, to wit, "The Carbuilders' Associa-tion, No. 7301, of Scranton, Pennsylvania," their such and every one of them, H. Solicitors for Complainant, A part of the bill is a letter to and an answer from Recorder Connell, regarding the company's plea for protection for its workmen and property. COMPANY'S COMPLAINT.

The company sets forth that the strikers "dog" the footsteps of the company's workmen on their way to and from work, reviling them with opprobrious names, threatening them, and forming picket lines about the company's property to intimidate men who want to return to work. Because of state of affairs, the company further says in its letter to the recorder, it is compelled to house and feed a large number of men in the shops, and hire a large force of special officers to protect them. The letter concludes by calling upon the recorder, as the city's chief magistrate, to give the company "the protection that the law guarantees to every person and corporation engaged in a lawful calling." this letter, Recorder Connell sent the following reply:

Messer, Willard, Warren & Knapp, Attorneys Delaware, Luckawanna and Western Railroad company, Scranton, Pa. Gentlemen: I have received your communi-cation of this date. In reference to your request individuals alike, some overt action must occur on the part of the individual or individuals, thereby creating riot tending to destroy life or property or preventing the full exercise of the individual rights of the citizen, before the city can call out its police force or any other auhority that it may have at its command, to uppress such riot. As I understand the condi-ion that now exists in the affairs of the Dela-rare, Lackawanna and Western Bailroad comcoany the men who are at the present time in met by various individuals and are selicite refrain from work; in many cases violent threatened, creating fear in their minds suf-ficient in many cases to cause them to refuse to work. The rights of the individual to work  or not to work have never been questioned under the constitution by any reasonable person. The man who works enjoys the same full rights as the man who will not work and intimidates, and it seems to me the workman if he will in a legal way present to the proper authorities the

That is impossible for me to do. I beg to assure you, however, that this administration stands ready at any and all times to protect the property of the corporation or individual alike; but it requires an overt action on the part of those who disregard the law before the local authorities can intervene, I am,

Very respectfully yours, W. L. Connell, City Recorder, CONTENTS OF BILL

The full text of the company's bill of complaint would fill four columns. It recites the incorporation and purposes of the company, states the kind and amount of business it does; sets forth how necesary it is, not only to the company, but the public which it serves, that its operations should not be hampered, outlines the history of the strike and the evidence leading up to it and concludes by telling of alleged illegal acts performed by the strikers to prevent the company from arrying out its charter rights, Among the acts specifically complained of are; Caling the workmen opprobjous names; assaulting the workmen; gathering in large crowds about the company's premises to intimidate and coerce the employes remaining at work, and others who want to return to work; stoning the houses of these men, sending them threatening letters and attempting to lure them from their homes at night to do them bedily harm; making threats to the wives and children of the workmen; stoning the company's property and threatening to destroy it. and intimidating and coercing merchants and others from patronizing the company. In one paragraph of the bill it is set forth that the company has 600 workmen quartered at the shops,

The car builders of Local union, No. 7204, held a special meeting at c'cieck, yesterday morning, in Car-penter's hall. E. C. Newcomb, attorney for the union was directed to appear at the injunction hearing next Thursday to oppose the perpetuating of the temporary decree.

WILL MAKE DENIAL.

The car builders will make denial of the allegations that they have done the several unlawful acts charged against them in the injunction bill. From the very outset of the strike, they say, they have carefully avoided anything leading to the creation of disorder and the strikers have been me and time again warned by their leaders against trespassing on the company's property or using any violence or intimidation against the men at work.

If there have been unlawful acts, they say, it is not the strikers, but misguided, over-zealous sympathizers who have been guity of them. is not to prevent the enjoining of the acts complained of in the injunction that the strikers will oppose the injunction but to show that there is no necessity for an injunction of any kind against the men to whom this injunction is directed.

In this connection, it is claimed by the strikers, that many of the men who have been made defendants in the injunction proceedings have had no active part in the conduct of the strike not even to the extent of frequenting the headquarters. The machinists will have a mass meeting at Carpenter's hall, at 10 o'clock this morning, to review the situation. At the regular meeting of Scranton machinists.

A will made four years ago is delaying the removal of the Lackawanna's $1,000,000 car shops to Binghamton Situated just west of the Binghamton Beet Sugar company is the old Michael McBride farm. Michael McBride died four years ago, leaving the farm in trust for his daughters, and under the will the farm cannot be sold or other wise disposed of for several years to come, unless some legal technicality can be brought into the case

This farm is situated just east of the Jones farm, which is one of the farms in the site selected by the Binghamton board of trade and the Lackawanna for the shops. Together with the Jones and McMurdy properties the McBride farm forms a continuous mile and a half of land lying along the Lackawanna tracks, and would make an acceptable site for the shops. One other form lying in the site is held at what is regarded as an exorbitant price, and if the Mc-Bride place were substituted the cost of the site to the board of trade would be much less.

Attorneys are probing the provisions of the will and it is understood every step will be taken to so secure legal "juggling" as to admit of the farm either being sold or else leased upon condition of its sale ultimately.-Binghamton Herald.

A Young Child Drowned Under

Peculiar Circumstances. The thirteen months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Linnon, of 836 Capouse avenue, was drowned on Saturday night in a tub containing only about six inches of water.

The child was playing about the yard with some other children and disappeared rather suddenly. A search resulted in the discovery of its body, with the face lying downward, in the tub. It is presumed that the child fell over into the tub and was unable to extricate itself before it was drowned.
