AN EXCURSIONIST KILLED

A Plymouth Man Named Morgan Fails to Jump on a Train at Panther's Bluff and Dies from Injury to His Head Caused by Being Struck by Steps of Car Platform. He Was on His Way to Lake Lodore.

A Plymouth man named Morgan, a member of the excursion party of the Order of Foresters that went to Lake Lodore from the Luzerne county town, was killed at Panthers' Bluff yesterday fornenoon

Panther's Bluff is the spot where, the "shepherd's crook" on the old Gravity oad was situated, and is the beginning of the switchback of the Honesdale branch of the Delaware and Hudson railroad. Incidentally, it is the place where the late Superintendent William McMullen, of the Delaware and Hudson, met a violent death last summer. All of the trains to Honesdale or Lake Lodore stop here in order to allow the engine to switch to get at the head of the train in going over the switchback. When the train on which Morgan was a passenger came to a standstill, the Plymouth man alighted and made up his mind to wait for the next section. When the train started, however, he changed his mind and grasping hold of the handles of one of the car platforms, he ran along with the moving train, intending to jump on. The spaces between the ties were so wide that Morgan could not keep up the pace and he tripped. He was thrown, before he realized his position, and was unable to release his hold on the platform handles. This caused him to be dragged for a short space, and when he fell the steps of the car struck him a blow that terribly crushed his head. The injury was mortal, and Morgan soon passed away. The deceased was taken to his home

Winans Hull, the accused slaver of Edwin Schoonover, passes his days in evening there was a recurrence of the the Wayne county jail at Honesdale in a cheerful mood, for he spends a good part of the day singing rag-time songs for his own entertainment and two other prisoners who make up the inmates of the jail.

Though Hull is light-hearted and apparently happy during the day he is not so blest at night, for he finds it difficult to sleep the night through and walks his cell more than a little while his prison mates are slumbering. Sheriff Armbruster has decided to alow no one to visit Hull in his cell, and only his near relatives are privileged to converse with him from the corri-

Mr. Monahan was stricken with a s ere hemorrhage of the stomach or Friday afternoon last. The attack came on with great suddenness, without any premonition, as he had been n good health all his life. The attack, which was followed by another in lew hours, reduced him to the point of leath, but the fears that arose for his recovery gave way to hope when he callied and showed signs of returning vitality. Tuesday he was particularly cheerful, and the few friends that vis ited him seemed encouraged that he would recover. About 9 o'clock that hemorrhages and weakness followed that grew until he expired about 9.30 yesterday morning.

Mr. Monahan's death, aside from the gloom that it casts over the home, for the welfare of which he labored with so much toll and perseverance, will fill a legion of friends throughout the valey with keen regret. Mr. Monahan was born in Carbon date on August 8, 1851, and had lived here all his life. He showed a special aptitude for the hotel business, which he followed from early manhood. He was employed by Merchant E. P. Burke, of this city, when the latter conducted a restaurant, and succeeded him in that business in the building now occupied by F. P. Brown, with whom Mr. Monahan also worked. On April 1, 1888, Mr. Monahan acquired possession of the Harrison house. The building was owned by the late J. Edwin Watt, but Manager Fox, of the Crescents, has arranged for a game on Sunday next at Alumni park, which will probably the most interesting of the season. The team is from Scranton and is composed of players from the various celleges, who are home on their vacations. This is an assurance that the team will be a strong one, and the Crescents will have to be in their best form to take the honors of the day. Last Sunday's defeat is regarded as incidental to the season's sport, but the Crescents do not prapose to be again caught in the same position. Tomorrow afternoon a team from the Dundaff section-of the town will meet the Crescents at Alumni park. The former will have some clever players, and among them will be Nolan and Bolaud, from the crack team of St. Eonaventure's college at Allegany, who will be the battery. This game ought to attract a great crowd to Alumni park.
