

INDUSTRIAL AND LABOR CAMP MAGEE'S GREATEST DAY

STATISTICS ABOUT PRODUCTION OF PIG IRON.

June 30, 1901, There Were Twenty-four Less Blast Furnaces in Operation Than on June 30, 1900. Banjo Signal at Delaware Water Gap—Proposed Improvements on the Lackawanna Interfered with by the Scarcity of Materials—The Board for Today.

The American Iron and Steel association has received from the manufacturers statistics of the production of all kinds of pig iron in the United States in the first half of 1901; also statistics of the stocks of pig iron which were on hand and for sale on June 30, 1901. The total production of pig iron in the first half of 1901 was 7,674,612 gross tons, against 7,642,569 tons in the first half of 1900 and 4,346,673 tons in the second half. Indications now point to a decreased production in the second half of 1901 as compared with the first half.

The production in the first half of 1900, the boom year, was 6,283,167 tons and in the second half it was 7,431,536 tons. The production of Bessemer pig iron in the first half of 1901 was 4,152,187 gross tons, against 4,612,291 tons in the first half of 1900 and 3,482,961 tons in the second half. The production of basic pig iron in the first half of 1901 was 3,522,425 gross tons, against 3,030,278 tons in the first half of 1900 and 858,608 tons in the second half.

In addition, there were produced in the South in the first six months of 1901, 17,578 tons of pig iron with mixed charcoal and coke. The production of spiegel-eisen and ferro-manganese in the first half of 1901 was 15,220 gross tons, all made in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Illinois and Colorado, against 14,100 tons in the first half of 1900 and 107,875 tons in the second half.

The stocks of pig iron which were on hand in the hands of manufacturers or their agents on June 30, 1901, amounted to 374,129 tons, against 452,270 tons on Dec. 31, 1900, and 228,073 tons on June 30, 1900. The whole number of furnaces in blast on June 30, 1901, was 229 against 232 on Dec. 31, 1900, and 283 on June 30, 1900.

Banjo Signal at Water Gap. A banjo signal to govern east bound trains has been located on the first west end of the Delaware Water Gap, and will be operated by the telegraph operator at that station as follows: When west bound passenger trains approach the station, operator will turn the signal to "caution" and leave it in that position until such train has left the station. East bound trains finding signal at "caution" will be governed by Rule No. 35, governing the movement of trains.

Failure of operator to set this signal at "caution" on the approach of a west bound passenger train will in no way relieve train and engine men from complying with Rule No. 25 referred to.

Scarcity of Materials. A great many of the improvements that are contemplated by the Lackawanna Railroad company at different points along the line are delayed on account of the scarcity of building material. It is a noticeable fact that requisitions placed for lumber have been delayed months at a time.

In course of time, the company contemplates crossing new passenger and freight stations at Clark's Summit and Moscow, where such are badly needed, but these improvements have also been deferred on account of the scarcity of lumber.

At the present time most of the construction work that is being done is on the Utica and Syracuse divisions, where a number of new stations are being built.

POLICE AND ALDERMEN. A warrant was yesterday issued by Magistrate Howe for the arrest of May Gruber, who is charged with disorderly conduct and with being a common scold, by Adam Kuller, of 107 Beach street.

Elizabeth Goleffsky, of 510 South Wyoming avenue, yesterday swore out a warrant before Magistrate Howe for the arrest of Martin Grady, whom she charges with disorderly conduct and threat.

Charles Hutchins, who was arrested on Wednesday night for flourishing a revolver on Lackawanna avenue, was fined $10 by Magistrate Howe yesterday. Hutchins said he was one of the dupes recently deceived by the Lackawanna and insisted that he had a right to flourish his revolver, but the magistrate thought otherwise.

Mrs. Mary Hart yesterday caused the arrest of her husband, Henry Hart, of the charge of assault and battery. At a hearing before Magistrate Howe she claimed that Henry assaulted her on Wednesday night and locked her out of the house until 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Hart borrowed the money and gave an order on the coal company for which he works. This order was found to be worthless. Before a hearing could be had before Magistrate Howe the case was settled, the defendant paying over the amount borrowed and the cost.

(Continued from Page 1.) frigidly, as neither of the officers showed any inclination to recognize the other. Article 420 of the army regulations says a visiting officer, if he is of higher rank than the commander of the post, shall send his card, and then the post commander will pay him an official visit.

Sent No Card. General Miller sent no card, and General Gobin did not visit him. When the governor came into camp with Mrs. Stone, General Gobin and his staff were at the train to meet them. The governor's troops acted as escort, and the battery fired the customary salute. When the carriage containing the governor arrived at headquarters the governor alighted and stood under the tent fly. General Miller was on his left and General Gobin on his right. The governor, by talking to some of the division staff officers. There was not the slightest sign of any exchange of courtesy between the two generals, although they were within three feet of each other.

A ride through camp was decided upon and Governor Stone, General Miller, General Gobin and Colonel Elliott occupied seats in the carriage. General Gobin faced General Miller and Colonel Elliott sat opposite the governor. The two generals did not exchange a word. General Gobin today said he had no objection to General Miller all the while the regulations required and added: "The only word that I received from General Miller is an insulting interview that he gave out to a newspaper yesterday. He gave me no time to do anything but look for general. It is my welcome would not be a warm one. I am perfectly right in my position and the general might study his rules and regulations a little."

Refused to Talk. When General Miller's attention was called to the army rule calling for the sending of a card, he replied that the commander of the brigade had been properly notified of his coming. Asked whether he had the right to order a review of the brigade before him, the general referred to Adjutant General Stewart and he in turn referred it back to the major general. Neither would answer the question.

The regiment arose good and early Wednesday morning and ate mess at 5:45 o'clock in order to be ready for the regimental drill called for 6 o'clock in accordance with the order issued Tuesday. After this and guard mount there was no more drilling until 4 o'clock when the brigade paraded before the quarters of Major General Charles Miller, commander of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, who with his staff arrived in Camp Egbert at Perkasie at 5:30 o'clock p. m. They were accompanied by Governor Stone's staff.

Many dizzy rumors prevailed the arrival of General Miller and speculations were many and wild as to what would occur when General Gobin met the man, whose place many claim should be occupied by the Third Brigade's commander. The day passed however without any clash between the two generals.

The headquarters of Governor Stone and General Miller are located on the parade grounds about one quarter of a mile from the Third Brigade's camp and extend in a long white double line almost to the park.

Gobin Is on the Hill. General Gobin's camp is located on the hill far above. The party left camp Egbert at noon and came through Philadelphia, passing through Reading. Their train which was a special experienced a long delay in making connection, as it was expected that the arrival would occur about 2:45 o'clock and a telegram was sent on in advance stating that this would be the time at which the party could be expected.

The governor's troop of cavalry was the starting point to act as guard of honor, and Battery C, of the artillery, stationed on the hill fired a salute of thirteen guns, as Major General Miller, Adjutant General T. J. Stewart, and their suite entered camp. Shortly after General Miller had reached his quarters, Adjutant General W. S. Millar of the Third Brigade, came riding down from General Gobin's headquarters to greet the commander of the guard.

The also visited Adjutant General Stewart, Colonel Elliott, and other members of General Miller's staff. Shortly afterwards came the parade before headquarters, and General Miller expressed himself as thoroughly pleased at the showing made by the regiment. The Ninth was the first regiment to march and the Thirteenth the second.

The inspections by General Stewart began this morning at 7 o'clock. The Ninth was on the field from 7 to 9, and the Thirteenth from 9 to 11 o'clock. The Twenty-fifth and Fourteenth in the order named will be inspected Friday morning.

Prepared for Inspection. Preparations for the inspection have been brisk. Guns were carefully cleaned, accoutrements brushed, and every thing put in readiness for the keen scrutiny from the adjutant general's sharp eyes. The hospital corps complains bitterly that it is charged for a good showing, are badly handicapped by the wretched condition of the ambulance team. One of the horses is wind broken and the other spavined, and both are excellent candidates for an equine hospital.

General Stewart in a conversation with a Tribune man expressed himself as very well satisfied with the showing made by the First Brigade, at Camp Egbert.

"Their work," said he, "was highly satisfactory. They did splendidly well in the past and are still doing it." A large number of copies of general orders, issued July 20, from General Stewart's office, were today received at brigade headquarters. They contain the announcement that the annual rifle and carbine matches will be held at the Mount Gretna state range, beginning August 24, each regiment of infantry, the battalion of state naval militia and each cavalry troop being entitled to a team of four men and one man for reserve. Only the state arms can be used and with the regulation sight.

Regimental, skirmish, brigade, cavalry, cavalry skirmish, and inspection of rifle practice matches will be shot. Lieutenant Colonel Harry C. Trexler has offered a gold mounted Colt revolver to the winner of the revolver match, open to commissioned officers.

Shoot at Sea Girt. The Twenty-ninth annual meeting of the National Rifle Association will be held at Sea Girt, N. J., August 30 to September 7, and at this meeting the
