REMARKS OF A CONVERTED JEW

MR. JACOBSON SPOKE AT THE WELSH BAPTIST CHURCH.

Addressed a Large Congregation at the Morning Service and Told of His Conversion to Christianity. Two Boys Escape from St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum — Lawn Social a Success—Funeral of Mrs. Davis — Among the Churches. Other News Notes and Personals.

Mr. Jacobson, a converted Jew, told the story of his life to the morning congregation of the First Welsh Baptist church. In part, he spoke as follows:

"In my boyhood days, I was brought up in the Jewish fath, was taught to dearly love my country, but to hate Christ. When the Spanish-American war broke out, I enlisted to fight against my country's foes and to help protect the land which I had been taught to love.

"About the middle of the war, I was severely wounded on the field of battle and when taken to the hospital was not expected to live. However, after long weeks of sickness, I rallied sufficiently to again take an interest in what was passing around me. My day nurse was a young woman, the daughter of wealthy parents living in New York city. At the first opportunity she asked me if I believed in Christ. I said that I did not. She then asked me if I was a Jew, and I told her yes.

"Day after day she spoke to me of the Christ who died to save my soul, until I became very angry and refused to let her mention the hated name again. When I became stronger I decided to let her tell me more of Christ, but to listen to it as I would to a book of no importance, let it go in one ear and out the other.

"When I was sent to my own home my parents, who are very wealthy, welcomed me with open arms and held a big celebration for the son home from the war. Notwithstanding all the pleasure of being home again, my heart was sad because I could not help thinking of this new Christ. Finally, I borrowed a Bible, and after reading it was converted and became a new man.

"When I told my mother of my conversion, she fainted; upon my father hearing of what I had said, he struck me in the face and threw me from my home, with nothing but the clothes I wore and $75 in my pocket. After that day I was mourned in my father's house as dead.

"Soon after this, my parents had me arrested as being insane. After being locked up for fourteen days, I was released and allowed to proceed on my way rejoicing. Many varied and cruel experiences have been mine since then, but God, my father, has brought me here and will take care of me through life."

Lawn Social.

The lawn social held by the Sherman Avenue mission, on Washburn street, last Saturday evening, was a success in every sense of the word. The spacious lawn was very prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns, colored lights, American flags and bunting.

Those in charge of the refreshment tables were Mrs. Joseph Thomas and the Misses Jennie Gleason, Ruth Jones, first table, and Mrs. John Phillips and Miss Jennie Davis, second table. Messrs. John Phillips, Richard Phillips and John Harvard had charge of the soft drink booth. A graphophone, operated by Seth Jones, furnished music throughout the evening.

Saturday afternoon, between 4 and 5 o'clock, two little fellows, Martin Dacey, of Scranton, age 11 years, and Francis McKee, of Nanticoke, age 7 years, respectively, left their home at St. Patrick's Orphan asylum, without giving anyone an idea of their intentions.

As McKee's father lives in Nanticoke, it is supposed that they went in that direction. The boys have never, in any way, expressed dissatisfaction with the life at the home, and were always kind and obedient. It is supposed, however, that they became a little restless and started out for adventure. If the little fellows desire to visit at Nanticoke and then return to the home, the Sisters will let them do as they desire.

IRISHMEN IN FRANCE.

Many Hibernian Names Are Historic in Gallic Annals.

From Donahoe's.

The Irish soldiers at Fontenoy bequeathed to their beloved France names which became so many synonyms for honor, and worth, and fidelity. The Lallys and the Dillons have ever since figured with the highest nobility of the nation. We find more than one Dillon raised to the dignity of an archbishop. Another Dillon, who was married to a cousin of the future Empress Josephine, fought in America with Lafayette, and later, during the reign of terror in 1794, when he was commander in chief of the French Army of the North, perished on the guillotine. Again, we find another Irish descendant, Clarke, selected by Napoleon as his minister of war, and given the title of Duke of Feltre. We find a Guillaume Meagher occupying one of the most prominent posts in the East Indian troubles.

Later still, in the early days of the now spent century, we find an Abbe Maccarthy, famous as a court preacher of such extraordinary merit that an eminent authority, M. Icard, for many years the taciturn superior of the Seminary of St. Sulpice, declared him to be head and shoulders above Lacordaire. We find a Macdonald, of Highland ancestry, but of Irish brigade schooling, "the type of French honor," as Bourrienne calls him, created a marshal of France by the great emperor upon the battlefield at Wagram. "The general opinion was," continued the secretary of Napoleon, "that the elevation of Macdonald added less to the marshal's military reputation than it redounded to the honor of the emperor." Just half a century after Wagram we find a MacMahon winning the battle of Magenta, receiving in recompense the honor of a dukedom, and destined later on to fill the highest magistracy in the gift of the French republic.

SERVICES IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Pastor Dr. Guild, in the Morning Read a Sermon Delivered by Dr. David Gregg, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on the "Gospel of Rest"—There Was a Vesper Service in the Evening—Elias Palmer Arrested for Conducting a Speakeasy—Other Notes.

Congregations somewhat larger than the usual attendance during the summer solstice, participated in the two services of yesterday in the Providence Presbyterian church. The pastor announced, in addition to the other pulpit notices, that he would begin his annual vacation this week.

At the morning service, in accordance with the announcement on Saturday, Dr. Guild, instead of giving his people one of his own sermons, read to the congregation an able and timely discourse, preached about a month ago by Rev. Dr. David Gregg in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, N. Y., and published in full, recently, in one of our religious journals. "Rest and Religion, Rest and Vacations" was the theme. The tenor of the sermon was to the effect that there is a "Gospel of Rest." "Rest is a privilege," "Rest is a necessity," "Rest is a duty," "Rest is a part of religion itself."

The sermon placed special emphasis on two practical points.

First—"That rest may be profitable, see to it that you get the most out of the rights of it." "It is God's period of rest for man."

Second—"See to it that you get the most out of your Sabbaths."

From conversations of our reporter with worshippers in that congregation, Dr. Guild's pulpit innovation for a summer Sunday met with much favor. Last evening's worship in that church was entitled "Vesper Service." The sentiment of the hour of worship was "The Holy Sabbath." The music, which included the hymns, Gloria and responses and a response following the reading of each of the Ten Commandments, was given by Mr. C. P. Whittemore's special choir of eighteen young ladies. The pastor, in his brief address on "The Sabbath," made mention of, first, the Sabbath day is a holy day; second, the Sabbath was made for man; third, it is to be kept holy. He concluded with three observations. First, deeds of mercy are proper on the Lord's day; second, all unnecessary work is to be avoided; third, the Sabbath day makes provisions for man's physical and intellectual and religious nature.

The tree is hollowed out, and in this got beyond their control and the flames began to shoot into the air, the boys started the fire. The fire soon The alarm was turned in and the firemen soon had the blaze extinguished.

The magistrate was very lenient with Palmer, as it was his first offense, and fined him $25, which he paid and was released.
