"Yesterday, the day after the accident, some fishermen saw some cork fishing floats on the water near where the yacht capsized, and they rowed ther and secured them, and found they were attached to a fishing line or lines, for there was a mass of them; pulling them in, they found a weight on one, and this proved to be Mr. Warren's waistcoat, with the watch and the knife still in the pockets, and they were promptly returned to him. The cloth of the waistcoat had caught in some hooks, to which were fastened lines with cork floats, and thus the watch and knife were saved. Real fishing stories are often more extraor-

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Aug. 6.—General conditions independent of the strike situation received more consideration today than for some time and were reflected in higher prices for securities. The absence during the greater part of the day of any sensitional strike news, combined with the support which the United States Steel stocks received after their opening weakiness, also aided the improvement. These conditions underwent a radical change in the final dealings when a report was current that enders for a general strike of the steel workers would be usued tonight. The professional operators promptly post out large short lines and brought about declines of from 1 to 3 points in the most, prominent stocks. The market in detail practically showed a pretty stealy improvement. From the outset the occasional set-backs which were forced by realizations being quickly overcome by a good demand for both accounts and evidences of inside support.

There were a great many arguments, but the majority of the council found fault with the contract and so the committee was instructed to continue their work and meet the committee of the Electric Light company again. Several bills were ordered paid, after which they adjourned.
