SECOND LARGEST ISLAND.

Baffin Land a Good Deal Larger Than State of Texas.

Baffin Land, near the east coast of this continent north of Hudson Strait, has long been represented on many maps as composed of a number of islands.

It is still shown in this way on a number of maps now in use. One of the supposed islands, Cumberland island, Fox Land, Meta Inconita, Sussex island and others have been found to be a part of the main island; thus Baffin Land has been gradually increasing in size on the maps until today it is known to be inferior only to Greenland in size.

Dr. Robert Bell, the now director of the Geological Survey of Canada, who mapped a long stretch of the west coast in 1877, has just published in the Geological Journal a report of his explorations. He says that it is "the third largest island in the world, being only exceeded by Australia and Greenland." As Australia is now ranked by nearly all geographers as the smallest of the continents, Baffin Land will undoubtedly take its place among the islands as the second in size.

All the best maps of Baffin Land now show a great lake region in the central part of the southern portion of the island. These lakes lie between mountain ranges. Dr. Bell says that the two greatest bodies of water are larger than any of the lakes in the whole peninsula of Labrador and that they may almost be compared to Lake Ontario in extent. He visited the southernmost, Lake Amadjuak, which may be 120 miles in length by 40 in breadth in the middle. According to Eskim accounts Lake Amadjuak discharges northward into Lake Metilling by a short river, without rapids, the natives passing from one lake to another in their kayaks. Lake Metilling is perhaps 140 miles long and 60 miles wide, and its waters reach the sea through a large and rapid river, fifty or sixty miles long, that has a descent of about five feet to the mile.

The conspicuous honor of being the largest island in the world has been held by quite a number of islands at various stages of geographical knowledge. School children were taught for many years that Australia was the largest island. Then Australia came properly to be recognized as one of the continental masses and Borneo took its place as the largest island. Less than twenty years ago it was discovered that New Guinea was larger than Borneo and so the latter island took second place. When Peary practically outlined the northern coast of Greenland, early in the last decade, geographers began to think that they had overtopped an important section of the earth's surface, and so they placed Greenland at the head of the list of islands. At last Baffin Land looms up as an island 1,005 statute miles in length, with a breadth varying from 200 to 300 miles. Its area is therefore about 300,000 square miles. In other words the island is larger than the state of Texas by about 40,000 square miles or about ten times as large as either Scotland or Ireland. Though it takes its place as second in the list of islands Baffin Land appears to be of no great value, since it is composed as far as we know, of barren rocks, partly covered with ice.

The twelve largest islands in the world, in order of size are: Greenland, Baffin Land, New Guinea, Borneo, Madagascar, Sumatra, Japan (the largest island of Japan), Great Britain, Celebes, New Zealand (South Island), Java and Cuba.
