St. Peter's cathedral was the scene at 10 o'clock yesterday morning of the marriage of Miss Mamie Nalin, of Pittston avenue, to John E. O'Malley, of Birney avenue, the nuptial ceremony being witnessed by numerous friends of both bride and groom.

Rev. D. J. Hustin was in charge of the services and celebrated a nuptial mass. The service began at 9 o'clock the bridal party being met at the vestibule by the ushers, P. F. Calpin and M. F. She carried a pearl-bound prayer book, and was attended by her niece, Miss Laura Nalin, who wore white mousseline, trimmed with light blue. The groom was attended by his nephew, James Boland. LOCAL PRIZE WINNERS.

They Have Returned from the National Whist Congress Held at Milwaukee, Wis.

J. W. Dusenbury, L. G. LaBar, H. C. Wallace, T. H. Dale and Miss Dale, who attended the weekly National Whist Congress at Milwaukee, have returned, after proving able champions for this city's reputation among whist players of the country.

On Monday the four gentlemen played on the Atlantic association team for the Brooklyn trophy, there being twelve players on each of the six associations which played for it. The others were the Chicago, Northwestern, Michigan, Wisconsin and New York White sets but four. Chicago won and the Atlantic team was tied for second.

Tuesday and Wednesday occurred the open games, in which Mr. Wallace and Miss Dale distinguished themselves in the mixed pair events by making two high honors, in which they received trophies. On Thursday, Mr. LaBar and Mr. Dusenbury represented the Scranton Bicycle club, and Mr. Dale and Mr. Wallace the Lackawanna Whist club in the paired championship play.

They were only in the preliminaries, failing to make the eight teams which qualified for the finale, which were won by Rogers and Cook, the team from Ypsilanti, Mich. In the business session of the congress, Mr. Dusenbury was honored by being elected one of the league directors.

Scranton had as large a representation at the congress as did Philadelphia and one larger than Baltimore, which sent but four. These three were the only cities of the Atlantic association in the field. The winter's tournament of the Atlantic clubs, it has now been practically decided, is to be held in Philadelphia. Although there was talk for awhile of Scranton as its possible scene, next month the weekly matches will be again started at the Bicycle club.

FRANK SHIPMAN ARRESTED

He Has Been Wanted for Two Months for Stealing Brass.

Frank Shipman, of Green Ridge, who has been wanted by the police for two months for stealing brass from the Delaware and Hudson company, was arrested yesterday and was given a hearing last night by Magistrate Millar.

It is alleged that Shipman and another young man named Edward Vickery stole about twenty-five or thirty pounds of brass journals from the company and took them to Paul Gardner, who was employed at the Green Ridge Iron works. The latter, it is claimed, cut them up into small pieces with the big shears at the works, to prevent their identification and then attempted to sell them at a Penn avenue junk shop.

Vickery and Gardner were arrested at the time and were held in $500 bail. At last night's hearing, Gardner testified that Vickery and Shipman brought him the brass and that after cutting it up, he attempted to sell it.

On the strength of this testimony, Magistrate Millar held Shipman in jail. He could not furnish it and spent the night in the station house.

THE JUVENILE COURT BILL

ALL ITS PROVISIONS CANNOT BE APPLIED HERE.

It Provides for the Commitment of Neglected Children and Youthful Criminals to the Care of Some Charitable Association Having This as One of Its Objects or to the Charge of a Probation Officer to Be Paid by Such an Association—No Such Association Here.

The judges of the local courts have held several informal discussions during the past few weeks regarding the local application of the juvenile court bill, but have arrived at no definite decision yet, nor will they until after midsummer court day next week.

The provisions of this excellent bill are not as generally known as they should be and its principal features are accordingly set forth below.

The children to whom the act applies are those under the age of 16 years, not inmates of an institution. They are classified as "neglected" and "delinquent." The act defines "neglected children" as those who are homeless or abandoned; who habitually beg or receive alms; who are found living amid vicious surroundings; and those children under 8 years old who may be found selling any article or playing any musical instrument on the streets.

"Delinquent children" are defined as those under the age of 16 years who violate any state law or city or borough ordinance.

JUVENILE COURT ROOM.

The act provides that the case of any child coming under its terms shall be tried by a judge selected by his associates for the purpose, in a special court room to be known as the "juvenile court room." Except in cases in which a special court are to be kept in a book to be known as the "juvenile record." The jurors for the case are to be drawn from the regular panel.

Any resident of the county who knows of a "neglected" or "delinquent" child is authorized by the terms of the act to file a petition with the clerk of the courts, setting forth the facts, verified by affidavit. Upon the filing of this petition a summons is to be issued, requiring the child's parents or guardian to produce it within twenty-four hours before the court.

If there be no parent or guardian the child's nearest relative shall be notified and if no relative can be found the judge shall appoint some one to act in the child's behalf. In case the summons cannot be served or the parties fail to obey it, if served, the court is empowered to issue a warrant against the parent or guardian, or person having custody of the child or against the child itself.

The case against those for whom the warrant was issued shall be disposed of in a summary manner, the child in the meantime to be retained in the possession of the person having charge of it, or may be kept in some suitable place provided by the city or county officers, or by any association having for one of its objects the care of delinquent or neglected children.

PROBATION OFFICERS.

The unique feature of the act is the possession for the appointment of "probation officers," who shall receive no compensation and whose duty it shall be to make such investigation as shall be required by the court, in order to represent the interests of the child when the case is heard, to furnish to the court such information and assistance as the judge may require and to take such charge of any child before and after trial as may be directed by the court.

Where a child under 16 years old is adjudged to be a "neglected" child, within the meaning of the act, the court may commit it to the care of some reputable citizen or to the care of some industrial or training school, or association embracing in its object the care of such children.

In the case of a "delinquent" child or one who has committed some crime, court may continue the hearing and commit it to the care and guardianship of a "probation officer," appointed by the court, who may allow it to remain at home subject to his supervision and inspection, or who may place it in a suitable family home, subject "to the friendly supervision of such probation officer."

The court may also, in its discretion, commit the care of a suitable institution for the care of neglected children, provided that no child under the age of 12 years shall be committed to the state reformatory or to the house of refuge. No child shall be committed to either of these institutions beyond his or her majority. The authorities of such institutions shall have the right to parole the child on any conditions they may prescribe.

The court may also, if deemed desirable, commit a delinquent child to the care and custody of some association that will receive it, embracing in its objects the care of negligent and dependent children.

TAKEN BEFORE A JUDGE.

When a child under 16 years of age shall be arrested, instead of being taken before a police magistrate or alderman it shall be taken before the judge of the juvenile court. If taken before a police magistrate or alderman, it shall be the duty of that official to transfer the case to such court.

The act provides that no court or magistrate shall take a child under 16 years of age to a police station or jail, but shall commit it to the care of the sheriff or probation officer, by whom it shall be kept in a place provided by the city or county outside of the regular jail or police station.

The framers of this act undoubtedly had in mind the idea that in every county there was some association having for one of its objects the care of neglected or delinquent children, and that such associations would pay the expense of probation officers of furnish a place where such children could be committed to.

There is no such organization in this city, except the Associated Charities, and the citizens are so very, very backward in contributing to this society's treasury that it would be impossible for it, under existing conditions, to take up the work.

THE REMEDY.

It would, therefore, seem that only that portion of the act providing for a separate trial could be put into force in this county, unless a few public spirited citizens get together and organize such an association as the one above mentioned, or contribute more liberally to the depleted treasury of the Associated Charities.

Judge Edwards is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Frederic Schoff, president of the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers, urging the establishment of the court and enclosing a letter from Judge Tuthill, of Chicago, explaining at length the operation of the juvenile court in that city.

With reference to the probation officers, Judge Tuthill said:

"Probation officers should take an oath to support the constitution of the United States and the state and to discharge their duties of office faithfully and honestly. He wears no badge at all, but when a boy or girl is placed under probationary care, a card is filled out and given to the father to take to his home to remind him of his duties, and the time and place to bring the child to the probation officer fixing the time and place and the only restriction upon place is that it shall not be a police station.

"These general requirements of the probation officer, I find the most suggestive, that is, the probation officer should have a real regard, even love, for the child, such a feeling as a good parent should have for his or her own child, and then, in all respects, they should endeavor to act wisely in giving the child the best and most beneficial that is needed to keep him in the right way. The exercise of good common sense in this matter is a most helpful and valuable trait. Each probation officer who exercises good common sense, who will do his duty for each individual child, and if one method fails, try another. Of course, a probation officer should not endeavor to proselyte or in any way interfere with the religious belief of the child's family, or to encourage or arouse antagonism that would render the work valueless.

MEETING OF OFFICERS.

"I have had meetings of the probation officers held from time to time and in coming together they would discuss and tell of their work and the various methods which they had adopted, giving instances, and in this way would hear the child's own story to say, and from their different experiences derive valuable lessons for their own conduct.

"Another thing, a probation officer should be optimistic, always, and hopeful and one, two, three or seven failures should not discourage the officer, but should persist in the work for this poor child, that had been entrusted to care, as if the child were the officer's own. No one can tell at what time in a child's life the work done in giving him moral direction and the right condition to do right, will bring forth fruit.

"The juvenile court is very informal in its nature. I usually talk to the child that is brought before me the first time in a rather friendly and confidential way and ask him to tell me all about what the witnesses are there to testify about. I tell him that he knows all about it much better than the witnesses do and that I want him to tell me the truth, and to try to get the confidence of the child and I spend a great deal of time in talking to him.

TALKS TO THE CHILD.

"I tell him about the probation officers and what the probation officer will do for him; that she will be a friend of his and his mother's friend; that she will want to see them and will impress upon the parents that they must treat the probation officer with courtesy, and by so doing will show respect to the court that they are friends of the child, and I say to the child, that if you don't do as the probation officer tells you, and about your conduct in the future, that you will be brought back to me and you will have to put you away; put you away from your father and mother, and you will be committed to obey."

"I dwell much on the necessity of the lesson of explicit obedience, and in homely phrase try to impress upon the child the law. That each child must obey the law as well as older persons; that the child must obey the law of his parents and teachers."

WORKING FOR FIRST PLACE

MISS GRIFFIN MADE A LARGE GAIN YESTERDAY.

In the Past Month the Providence Young Lady has Scored 287 Points More Than Lewis in the Tribune's Educational Contest—Only Twenty One Working Days Left—Miss Overtaking Schwenger—It Will Be Too Late to Enter After Next Thursday.

Miss Wilhelmina Griffin took a better hold of second place yesterday by bringing in 21 points, which leaves her 108 points ahead of Henry Schwenger and 155 behind Meyer Lewis, who has the same number today as he had yesterday. One month ago today Miss Griffin was in sixth place, with 99 points, and on June 8 in eighth place, with 34. In the two months she has brought in 423 points, while Mr. Lewis has scored 459. In the last month, however, Miss Griffin has returned 357 points, while Mr. Lewis has only scored 88. If the same ratio of gain is kept up during the remaining twenty-one working days of the contest, Miss Griffin should surely be in first place at 8 o'clock p. m. on August 21, when the contest closes.

William Miles, who has been too ill to work for several days, made a slight gain on Schwenger yesterday, and is now only 53 points away from third place. During the past month he has made 80 points to Mr. Schwenger's 84. He now has a lead of 191 over Garfield Anderson.

Only eight days are left now for those who have not already done so to enter their names as participants in the contest, for the entry list will be closed on August 15, and after that date no one not then enrolled will be permitted to come in.

This is a particularly good time for beginners to come in, for the contestants who have already registered have been related to a considerable extent the past week or so.

Any one who desires to begin the work now should send a postal to "Editor Education Contest," Tribune, Scranton, Pa., when he or she will be furnished at once with the necessary blanks and instructions. See the advertisement on the fourth page of this morning's Tribune.
