Maplewood, Aug. 6, 1901. As a rule it is myself that is aked to talve puzzling questions in the Scientific and it gives me great pleasure to do so, if I can, but there are questions which are more easily saked than answered and the readers of the solid samet blame me for once in a while to turn the table. I was asked today the (to my thinking) perfectly perfused and put of the floring thinking) perfectly perfused and nutural question by a bright and unusually intelligent country boy, yiz t "How much either can you squeeze out of a bushel of applea in the ordinary way!" Simple as the question seems at first sight, it assumes interview that the seems at first sight, it assumes on further thought such proportions of difficulty for a correct answer that I would be gratein readers of The Tribune for an answer which is not only correct, but will also satisfy
