INQUEST IN DAVIS CASES

VERDICTS RENDERED BY CORONER'S JURY LAST NIGHT.

Death in Both Cases the Result of Pistol Shot Wounds Inflicted by the Husband—No One Witnessed the Tragic Shooting—Batch of Police and Aldermanic Cases Disposed of Yesterday—Pumprunner Injured in the Dodge Mine—Other Notes and Personals.

The inquest in the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Davis, the victims of Sunday evening's tragedy, was conducted by Coroner Roberts in the Jackson street police station last evening. There were no eye-witnesses to the shooting and the only testimony heard was that of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tudor, who were at the house at the time of the shooting.

Both testified that Mrs. Davis was with them in the rear of the house just before the shooting occurred, and that shortly after she carried a drink of water to her husband, they heard her scream, and then followed the four pistol shots in quick succession. They immediately rushed upstairs to the room, where Mr. and Mrs. Davis were found lying on the floor with bullet holes in their heads. Mrs. Davis was dead and the husband was unconscious. There were no other people in the room at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Tudor also testified that she had been with Davis during the day, but that at no time did he intimate to her that he intended to kill his wife and himself. Separate verdicts in each case were rendered as follows:

"The jury empaneled to investigate the death of Mrs. Agnes Davis, find that she came to her death from pistol shot wounds, inflicted at the hands of her husband, Edwin J. Davis, on Sunday, Aug. 11, 1901."

"The jury empaneled to investigate the death of Edwin J. Davis, find that he came to his death from a pistol shot wound inflicted by himself on Sunday, Aug. 11, 1901."

A very cool and collected burglar visited the home of Patrick Healey, on West Market street, early yesterday morning. He got in by raising a rear window on the lower floor, and then proceeded to open all the doors so that he might make good his escape if need be. One of the young ladies in the house was awakened about 2 o'clock by some one moving in the house, and upon her asking who it was the intruder replied "one of the boys," meaning one of her brothers. The burglar kept moving about and kept up a running fire of conversation. He finally became so bold as to enter the young woman's room. She saw that it was a stranger, and in the uncertain light of the moon took to his heels and was down stairs and out the front door before Miss O'Malley's brother was awakened. The North Scranton police are investigating.
