

Social Personal

It is about the most placid summer we have ever had in Scranton. More people have flocked to parks known and unknown than have ever left the city before, and less social hilarity has been recorded. Golf is at a standstill, there are few picnics and even the porch party had has subsided. Pan-American visits are popular and promise to be even more than that during the remainder of the season. The weather is perfect in Buffalo now. Such beautiful nights, such glowing wonderful sunsets as there are such pleasant days with a bracing breeze from the Lake Erie to temper the clear sunshine. People who put off going until late in October will find the evenings too chilly for comfort.

Mr. Luther Keller and family, Mr. J. L. Stelle, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Stelle, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Stelle. Mrs. Kittie Brown-Hazlett gave a delightful party on Tuesday evening at her home on Mulberry street, in honor of her guests, Miss Sexton and Mrs. Bush, of Philadelphia. At midnight refreshments were served. Attorney and Mrs. E. W. Thayer are happy over the arrival of a baby son. The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Olmstead will be appropriately celebrated on the 25th. Stanley Moyer and Miss Laura Merriam were united in marriage Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 233 Franklin avenue. They were attended by Miss Edna Moyer and F. C. Madigan. Rev. Robert W. Clynner officiated. They went to New York city on their wedding journey. Mrs. Mary Dickenson, of Lexington, Nebraska, who is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Kaufman, on Harrison avenue, was very pleasantly surprised Thursday afternoon by a large party of the many friends that she has made during her stay in Scranton. Those present were: Mrs. James Kaufman, Mrs. John Kaufman, Mrs. Charles Halstead, Mrs. Van Nort, Mrs. George Weed, Mrs. William Carpenter, Mrs. Frank T. Carpenter, Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Birchler, Mrs. Alfred Hill, Mrs. Henry Hlofenberg, Mrs. Haefner, Mrs. Gear, Mrs. John Hicks, Mrs. George Harvey, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Devine, Mrs. Mack, Mrs. James Fielding, Misses Grace Kaufman, May Devine, Elizabeth Hicks, Esther Haefner, Masters Ray Kaufman, Elmer Kaufman, Glenn Kaufman, Foster Kaufman, Creston Kaufman, Charles Devine and Clifford Smith. Mrs. Charles Ford gave a delightful dancing party at her cottage at Lake Henry Thursday evening. The guests were the young people among the cottagers and several ladies and gentlemen from Scranton and Wilkes-Barre. The beautiful new home which Mr. Henry Brady is erecting on Monroe avenue is fast approaching completion. Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of D. J. Rose, of The Tribune, and Miss Beasle Ena Gardner, of the central city, a student of the class of 1901, Keystone academy, Factoryville. The Northup family reunion will be held in the maple grove on the John Northup farm, near Glenburn station, this afternoon. Teams will meet friends coming on the trains and convey them to the grounds. Members of this large family are requested to bring with their well filled baskets old pictures of individual members, whether dead or living, that they may be viewed by the company. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hazlett entertained last Tuesday evening in honor of their guests, Miss Elgarda Sexton, of Philadelphia. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Morris Haupt, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Charles Tropp, Mrs. William Bush, of Philadelphia; Misses Sexton, Northrup, Dewey, Davis, Piltow, Brown, Gamewell, Padden, Messrs. Richard and Amel Neubauer, Davis and Hazlett.

Jonas Long's Sons. Lunar Pictures. The common notion that we always see the same face of the moon is not entirely correct. Owing to certain peculiarities in its movements through the heavens the moon has a slow oscillatory motion, known as "libration," which enables us to observe a view of the moon's face that is not visible from the earth's surface. The effect is the same as if we were to look at the moon at different times from different points of view, the different directions ranging through an angle of about sixteen degrees. This fact has for many years been utilized for obtaining stereoscopic views, which being set upon a stand placed upon the top of the design in the same way, so that the colored glass is inserted between two sheets of glass. By this means the three-dimensional effect is smoothed out. It cannot be bent or loosened, and in view of the thinness of the brass wires these light is admitted than in the case with a stand of the thickness of the leaden framework in the latter.

An Ancient Ship. During the progress of the construction of the reservoir for the enlargement of the London water supply, the foundations of an ancient ship have been discovered in the bed of the old River Lea, the course of which has been diverted in order to permit the excavations. The remains of the ship are placed upon the top of the design in the same way, so that the colored glass is inserted between two sheets of glass. By this means the three-dimensional effect is smoothed out. It cannot be bent or loosened, and in view of the thinness of the brass wires these light is admitted than in the case with a stand of the thickness of the leaden framework in the latter.

The Dreams of the Blind. Mr. Wm. W. Ireland in Moxley's Ark, gives an interesting resume of an article upon this subject by Prof. J. B. Rhineland, of Birmingham, who came blind in the third year of his life, but is still able to distinguish between light and darkness. He never dreams of seeing, and does not share the fancy of the sighted that the spirit, freed during sleep from bodily restraint, can realize the gift of sight. He tells us that the blind, in general, have a dream life that is devoid of definite scenes, and feel themselves in an atmosphere of natural condition. They have not that painful longing for light which those who have all their senses except vision are subjected to. Naturally their dreams are compounded of the other sensations, especially the impressions of hearing. The blind dream much of music, and the scenes of their dreams are often recognized, whereas the seeing often dream of faces and figures; sometimes animals, especially birds and household articles, as if they were human voices, and to be gifted with speech. A blind man who traveled home once a year used to dream of the journey by rail. In this case the dream was made up of the humming of the wheels, the whistle of the locomotive, the feeling of fresh air through the open windows, and the smell of food and drink from their dining-car. Mr. Hirschmann tells us that, while the dream world of the blind is poor in sensory images, it is rich in abstract phenomena. It is characteristic of the dream of the blind that the sleeper feels himself a spectator as if he witnessed a play at a theatre. He seems to witness events, dramatic or melodramatic, in scenes. It is supposed that these appear to come through the ear, for he tells us that he never dreams of handling a book for the blind, or of using his writing apparatus. Being, people, however, seldom dream of reading and scarcely ever of writing.

"Knock-Out Drops." The increasing use which is made of ethyl hydrate for criminal purposes, in the form of what is known as "knock-out drops," is well known. It is a fact that they are administered, the certainty of the results, and the comparative safety to the perpetrator, make such crimes difficult to deal with by the police, and occasionally a death results from the administration of too large a dose, and this attracts attention to the subject. So frequently has ethyl hydrate been used for this purpose that special laws have been passed there so that the mere detection of it upon a person in a solution which could reasonably be supposed to be used for criminal purposes is sufficient for a conviction. Ethyl hydrate has very little taste when administered in alcoholic solutions, particularly when the solution is made for a conviction. It is rather less likely the fact that a taste is discernible when the individual is more or less under the influence of intoxicants and the sense of taste is obtunded. This drug, therefore, can be detected by its odor, which is very similar to that of the cucumber as well as to that of a trail of the compound snake, and may serve as a warning of danger in either case, for the sense of smell is not so easily obtunded as are other senses under like circumstances. As this time a dose of from forty to eighty grains will render a person unconscious and quite helpless for several hours, during which time he is subject to the delirium of the opium habit, and is unable to escape. The victim upon recovering from the effect of the drug may be unconscious of anything having been administered to him, simply thinking that the effects are due to the excessive indulgence in liquor.

The Color of the Sky. Dr. N. E. Doney treats on the color of polarization of blue skylight in an article in the Monthly Weather Review. The subject has been considered of great interest for hundreds of years. Leonardo da Vinci considered that the blue of the skylight is due to the mixing of the white sunlight reflected from the upper layers of the air with the blue of the sky. The blue of the sea is due to the reflection of the blue of the sky. The blue of the sky is due to the reflection of the blue of the sky. The blue of the sky is due to the reflection of the blue of the sky.

Home-Made Barometer. When I was a small boy I visited a lumber camp up north in the woods of Maine, and there saw a queer barometer, says a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer. It was different from any ever seen since, and so easily made that I remember it to this day. It was made of a glass bottle, and it was used for forecasting the weather. It was made of a glass bottle, and it was used for forecasting the weather.
