AN ENJOYABLE OUTING.

Clay Pipe Club Entertains a Large Crowd at Wahler's Grove.

The Clay Pipe club, an organization composed of employes of the city engineer's department, gave its annual TWO HOUSES BADLY DAMAGED outing yesterday morning, afternoon and night, at Wahler's Grove, Dunnore, and to say that the two hundred and more invited guests enjoyed themselves is putting it very mildly, in-

Invitations had been sent out during the week to the councilmen, city officials and personal friends of the members of the club and only a very few were not accepted. The guests, as they entered the grove, were met at the gate by one of the engineers' corps and decorated with, a badge Each guest was also presented with a red clay pipe, filled with tobacco, and was politely requested to "smoke up" and enjoy himself.

Everything was free. City Engineer Phillips and his son, Frank, had charge of the entire affair, and peronally superintended all the arrangements for the comfort of the guests. Music was furnished by the Citiens' band, of North Scranton, and the Anthracite Glee club, which later organization rendered several spir-

BIG CAVE-IN AT THE SIBLEY

BY THE SETTLING.

Dam Was Broken Inside the Mine and Workmen Had to Flee to Escape Death by Drowning-Water in a Creek Disappears, But a Neighboring Well Retains Its Contents-On One Lot the Pitch of the Surface Was Reversed - Mine Thrown Idle

One of the most extensive mine caveins ever recorded in the anthracite region occurred late Wednesday night in the Sibley mine, owned and operated by Elliott, McClure & Co. The Sibley mine is located on what is known as the Back road, in Lackawanna township, and is about two miles west from Jermyn & Co.'s store at Rendham. A number of settlings have occurred in the mine, but none of them have been so noticeable be-fore and this is the first instance, as far as is known that any property has been damaged.

The settlings have practically ruined the frame dwelling house, fronting on the Back road, which was occupied by Eugene Beagle and family, and the adjoining property, owned and occupied by George E. Wade, is also separated from its foundation and damaged

The Beagle family were about to etire for the night, when they heard a rumbling noise, which shook the house from its foundation. The father and mother hastily gathered up their three children and fled from the house to a place of safety. When they deemed it safe to make an inves tigation, it was discovered that the foundation and the house had dropped several feet from its original position and large fissures were found at various points in the yard, which were wide enough to insert sticks three inches wide.

The ground adjoining the Beagle house, which was originally on an incline from the rear of the yard to the front, has dropped several fest at the center, while the earth from the front yard now slants towards the settling, which is the reverse of what The house is originally was. pitched clean out of plumb, and the foundation walls beneath it are cracked and ruined beyond repair.

STOPPED THE CLOCK. The doors and windows in the building are all out of place, and the paper on the walls inside is cracked and torn A peculiar incident in connection with the occurrence is that the clock in the Beagle house stopped at 19.50 p. m.

the time the settlings occurred. The force of the fall broke the dam of water inside the mines at that point, and the men on the night shift were compelled to flee for their lives, One of the mules was caught in the flood and is supposed to have been drowned. The mine was idle yesterday, and the extent of the inside workings has not yet been determined.

A force of men was put to work yes terday digging a trench alongside the Beagle house, through which the com pany expects to reach the flooded part of the mines and pump the water out. The place where the settling occurred the poor work of his team in the match | was in abandoned workings, and the for inspectors. side behind the Beagle house, and at several points can be seen openings. big enough to swallow up a horse and wagon easily. The surface vein runs out above the point of the present cave-in, and the coal has long ago been worked out there.

In the front yard of the Beagle resilence, several large cracks are noticeable, and the fence surrounding the lot is all out of place by reason of the seitlings. The front gate is several inches out of plumb. Another peculiar thing is that the water remains in the well on the premises, while the water, which usually courses through a creek running between the Beagle and Wade houses, has disappeared. The bolt on the inside of Beagle's side door was broken off by the jar it received.

IS BADLY TWISTED. The foundation wall looks as if a mason had been at work with a sledge hammer, knocking holes in it, and the house has the appearance of having been raised at one end and lowered at the other. The supporting pillars in the cellar were knocked out of place, and the fissures extend through the cellar floor at various places.

The Beagle family have vacated the premises and refuse to go back, as they are afraid of additional settling. The Wade family are away from home and as the house is all locked up the interior damages could not be learned The exterior damage to the Wade property consists of cracks in the foundation, which has settled several inches at different places. The ground has also settled some, and the fences and barns on the rear of both lots have been damaged. In all probability the

A large number of people visited the scene of the cave-in yesterday, and doubtless many more will go down that way today. Operations at the Sibley mine have been suspended as a result, and it is not known now when they will resume.
