THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Sept. 4.-Today's stock market was an almost exclusively professional affair, with evidence of a participation by the speculative party which is rather vaguely characterized as "the western contingent" by the traders about the stock exchange. This party has been active at intervals in the stock market ever since the corn crop prospects became an element in speculation. They continued the sale of stocks this morning but early became impressed with the notable paucity of the offerings which were brought out under the pressure they put upon the market and reversed their position to the buying side. The free offerings of corn today which were at sufficiently attractive terms to attract some demand for export of that grain for the first time in a considerable period, may have had an influence on these operations. The day's movement of prices seemed largely due, however, to maneuvers by contending professional operators, following yeschoral contests at the Pan-American terday's sharp break, which in itself was aparently a testing operation by the capitalists who have supported gramme will be the rendition of the the market for some time past. They seemed satisfied with their demonstration of the small amount of stock impending over the market for dislodgenent and their brokers were large buyers again today and especially of United States Steel stocks in which they were joined by the "western contingent." These stock did not move upward until there had been sharp advances in Colorado Fuel and Tennessee coal, based upon the assumption that their business was largely increased as a result of the enforced idleness of United States Steel corporation works. Chicago Great Western continued strong on rumors of buying for control and the recent large accumulation of Mexican National was unabated today. The strong tone permeated the whole market as the day progressed and the final hour showed many of the market leaders amongst the grangers. Pacifics, Southwesterns, coalers and specialties from 1 to 2 points over last night's closing level. Total sales, 452,900 shares.
