HIS PUBLIC CAREER OVER

WILL NEVER RETURN TO THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT.

Michael Davitt Declares That He Will Spend the Remainder of His Days in the Company of Honest Men—He Is in the City on a Visit to His Sister, Mrs. Mary Padden, of North Washington Avenue—Recently Returned from South Africa.

Michael Davitt, the celebrated Irish Nationalist, ex-member of parliament and denouncer of England's policy in declaring war against the boers, was in this city yesterday on a flying visit to his sister, Mrs. Mary Padden, of North Washington avenue. He arrived Saturday night and will leave this morning for Pittsburg.

Mr. Davitt, when seen last night by a Tribune man, was the centre of an admiring circle of relatives and of prominent local Irishmen. He was inclined to be somewhat non-communicative.

"It's been reporters here and reporters there ever since I landed a few weeks ago," said he, "until I'm pretty thoroughly tired of being interviewed. I've already said about everything I had to say and I've been made to say a great deal more."

"Perhaps you will tell us when and why you resigned your seat in parliament," suggested The Tribune man.

RESIGNED HIS SEAT.

"I resigned my seat in parliament, sir, in October, 1899 as a protest against the atrocious war which England was just then beginning in South Africa. I resigned because I could not sit helplessly as a member of a body which was helping the war office to crush out of existence two weak little republics. I resigned, sir, because I could not sit with men who believed in robbing those poor and sturdy Dutch farmers of their independence. I shall never again permit my name to be used as a candidate for parliament. My public career is over. I shall spend the rest of my days in the company of honest men," this last with a merry twinkle of Mr. Davitt's black eyes.

In response to an inquiry he said that his mission in this country has no political significance.

"I am here merely on pleasure," said he. "I have a number of relatives in the United States and I try to see them every few years. I have delivered several addresses in some of the larger cities, but these were merely incidental to my trip and did not bring me here."

In referring to the attempted assassination of President McKinley on Friday, he said:

NO WORDS SUFFICE.

"I can only repeat what every one thinks and feels over this abominable crime. No words can sufficiently condemn this act which every right thinking man and woman must feel to be of the most atrocious kind. To say tha President McKinley had no personal enemies is only to repeat what even his political opponents are declaring in the press and on the platform since the dastardly deed of Friday last sent a shock through the whole of this vast country. The whole civilized world has expressed both its high opinion of the president's personal character and its hearty condemnation of the attempt upon his life, so that I can only add my humble tribute to his life and work. It is earnestly to be hoped that the illustrious patient will recover."

Mr. Davitt has but recently returned from South Africa, where he personally investigated existing conditions, his views and impressions having been printed in a series of letters which appeared in papers in England, Australia and th iscountry.

SYRIANS IN A FIGHT.

They Cut Up All Sorts of Capers on Ninth Street Yesterday.

A number of Syrians got into a fight yesterday morning in a house at 202 Ninth street and made things exceedingly lively for a time. The trouble originated in a fight between Mrs. Geesema Hanus and Mrs. Mary Brakin.

Thomas Mallos, a tall Syrian, who was a supporter of Mrs. Brakin, tried to separate the two women. He wielded a large club, which he said he proposed to use on Mrs. Hanus. In swinging it back to get ready for a cracking good smash, he accidentally struck Mrs. Brahin on the head, knocking her unconscious. Thomas Flatena, another Syrian, interferred and soon the whole household was fighting.

A squad of police in command of Sergeant Reese Jones swooped down on the place with a patrol wagon shortly afterwards and arrested the four principals. They were taken to police headquarters and given a hearing by Magistrate Millar. Mallos and Mrs. Hanus were sent to the county jail for ninety and sixty days respectively, while Flatena was discharged.

Mrs. Brahin was remanded for a further hearing and was later taken to the Lackawanna hospital, where the wound in her head was dressed and where she now lies.

CHARLES BAILEY DROWNED.

Former Resident of This City, Met Death Yesterday.

Marcus W. Bailey, of 1015 Sterling street, last night received a telegram announcing that his brother, Charles Bailey, a former resident of this city, had been drowned during the afternoon by the capsizing of a cat-boat off Willett's Point, New York.

The dead man has been for some time a soldier in the United States regular service, stationed at Fort Totten.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Senbergh's Side of the Case.

Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: In reference to the article in Saturday's Tribune headed, "Mr. Hine Could Not Stand It," I would like to present my side of the case. The trouble originated in a Linden street hotel. With other men who were painting the flag pole at the G. A. R. building, I was in the hotel when some one said: "The president is shot." We all thought it a joke and I said, jokingly: "He ought to be shot." Thereupon Hine, without a word, struck me in the face, but did not knock me down, as stated. Hine made a hasty retreat and went to the Memorial cigar store, where I followed him and administered punishment for the indignity he offered me. My father served as a soldier during the Civil war, and I would not willfully insult the country, its flag, or ruler.

PRAYERS FOR PRESIDENT

prosperity we must grapple with. The message for today is the words of my text, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

Rev. George A. Cure, pastor of the Providence Methodist Episcopal church, after referring briefly to the president's speech made at the exposition on the day before the attempt upon his life, said:

"President McKinley is a worthy embodiment the best thought of the American people, and it is terrible to thing that he should be shot down by the hand of an anarchist. I earnestly request that you all unite with me in praying that the life of this noble and representative Christian American citizen may be spared.

"I cannot express too forcibly my feelings for anarchists as a class. I believe that the constitution should be so amended as to permit of the closing up of their meetings and the arrest of any persons found delivering an anarchistic harangue."

DR. GUILD'S REMARKS.

Rev. Dr. George E. Guild, pastor of the Providence Presbyterian church, said that the severest punishment should be meted out to the assassin of the president.

"I almost wish," said he, "that Detective Foster and the brave colored man who grappled with him after the shooting had killed him on the spot. President McKinley, in my judgment, rises almost supreme above all the last occupants of the presidential chair. He has all the good qualities that made Lincoln such a great national figure, and what is more, he is a polished gentleman and scholar. History reveals that at critical times in the life of nations God has raised up men to guide the country out of its troubles. McKinley has been such a man. When called upon to solve unknown problems in our national life he displayed a statesmanship so wise as to win the plaudits of the world.

"It is my firm belief that anarchism should be placed in the same category as treason and I sincerely hope that congress will pass a law at its next session which will have the effect of breaking up those groups of anarchists and of sending them back to the foreign lands whence they have come."

IN HOLY TRINITY CHURCH.

Rev. C. G. Spieker offered prayer for Mr and Mrs. McKinley at both the morning and evening service of the Holy Trinity Lutheran church, and Rev. Luther Hess Waring did the same at the Grace Lutheran church. Mr. Waring also spoke during the latter service of the shooting of President McKinley, and anarchy in general.

"National Citizenship and What Makes an Anarchist," was the subject of his sermon, and in opening it he spoke of the terrible calamity which occurred Friday at Buffalo. He declared that the conditions which led up to the murderous attack and the fact that the would-be assassin was a self-avowed anarchist and follower of Emma Goldman, brings the people of this country face to face with the imminent need of determining to what lengths they would allow anarchy to run rampant, and how long they would stand for anarchists' seditious doctrines and actions.

He traced the history of anarchy back to the original roots, and declared that the anarchistical societies of Paterson, Chicago, and other cities should be abolished. "We have been tolerant," he said, "too tolerant, but the time has now come, the time is now ripe to free us from every anarchist and avowed enemy to government who can be found in this country."

A MAN AND CHURCHMAN.

Rev. Shepherd Knapp, jr., of Litchfield, Conn., filled the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian church yesterday morning and preceding his sermon spoke feelingly of the terrible crime of Friday afternoon. He spoke in most eulogistic terms of the worth of President McKinley as a man and Christian, and referred to the glorious home life which has always characterized the nation's chief executive.

The entire country, he said, was shocked and grieved by the startling news of the attempt upon Mr. McKinley's life, all political feeling had been laid aside and the deed regarded as a national calamity. He then delivered prayer for the recovery of the president and also prayed that strength be given Mrs. McKinley to bear up under her sorrow.

Rev. Dr. Stokes, of West Hampton, L. I., officiated at the First Presbyterian church yesterday in the absence of Rev. Dr. James McLeod, and prayed devoutly and earnestly for the recovery of President McKinley. He also asked that divine aid would be given Mrs. McKinley to bear up under this trying ordeal.

Rev. W. J. Ford, of the Green Ridge Baptist church, offered up prayers for the recovery of President McKinley before giving his morning sermon. After imploring the Lord to safely bring the president and his wife through this trying crisis, he prayed that all citizens of this country would come to a speedy realization of the dangers into which the nation is cast by felonious actions like that of President McKinley's would-be assassin, and coming to the realization, in a spirit not of revenge, but rather of true justice, would make repetition of the crime impossible.

OFFERED PRAYER.

Rev. E. B. Singer, assistant pastor of the Elm Park M. E. church, officiated there yesterday in the absence of Rev. Dr. C. M. Griffin, who is in Europe. He offered up prayer for the recovery of the president, and spoke of the attack as being one of the greatest afflictions ever come upon the nation.

Rev. A. S. Anspacher offered prayer for President McKinley Friday night at the Linden street temple. At the close of his sermon he bade the congregation rise and then implored the Lord to grant a speedy recovery to the great man so wantonly struck down. He also spoke briefly of the utter lack of religion and absence of fear of God which necessarily actuate the perpetrators of crimes of such atrocity.

Rev. H. C. McDermott, pastor of Simpson Methodist Episcopal church, in his morning sermon on "Faith," said:

"At this time, when gloom and sorrow are through the land on account of the dastardly attempt to murder the president of these United States, we can but feel that if there were as much faith in God as there were fifty years ago, such creatures as Czolgosz would not be possible.

"While we rejoice that there are so many forces in our modern life that tend to develop such a magnificent specimen of manhood, intellectually and morally, as William McKinley—a man whose private life is a source for gratitude when we compare him with the rulers of other lands—a man whose domestic life is an example to all the husbands of the land—a man who has fought his way up from the ranks to the highest place in the nation, and met the responsibilities of his exalted station with such signal ability—we are saddened that there are so many factors also in our modern life that tend to develop the miserable mannikin that tried to murder him. The roots of socialism and anarchy are found in the skepticism and discontent of the times."

STIRRING WORDS OF DR. PIERCE.

At the Penn Avenue Baptist church yesterday, the congregation was kept informed of the condition of President McKinley by Associated Press bulletins, brought by special messenger from The Tribune office and read by the pastor, Rev. Dr. R. F. Y. Pierce.

As each succeeding report showed that the chief magistrate of this country was in a condition from which none but favorable augurings could be made, the spirits of the congregation seemed to grow visibly lighter and when the last cheering message was read, as though by magic, the great organ suddenly pealed forth "Praise God, from Whom All Blessings Flow," and first the choir, and then all present joined in the singing of the sublime anthem, and the great chorus of men, women and children sang with a love and fervor in their voices, which conveyed an adequate idea of the feelings of thanksgiving actuating the hearts of all present in that auditorium.

Dr. Pierce gave a most interesting address last night, during which he spoke in a descriptive vein of the nations' greatness, and then discoursed upon the sad tragedy at the exposition. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, and the people whom he hath chosen for his inheritance," Ps. xxxiii: 12, was his text. He told of this country's great extent of territory, its mineral wealth—enough to buy the world—its products—enough to feed the universe—its art, its music, its learning, but said the nation's strength was not in these, but rather in the character and life of the people.

"Today," said he, "America is at peace with the world. Her power is recognized and respected. It is an era of prosperity unexcelled and our flag of American greatness speaks, with every wave of its glorious folds, in eloquent silence, to the world and tells of the power and strength of the country whose emblem it is.

AWFUL GLOOM OF NIGHT.

"But across this peaceful scene there has suddenly fallen the gloom of night. Like a flash from a clear sky, a deed has been done of unutterable villany; a deed so black that devils may blush to own it; a deed which no being in whom dwells the spirit of a man could have been guilty of. Our honored president has been stricken by an assassin's hand. I knew him before he was president, out in the West, and have met him frequently since, and can say in all sincerity that he is a president born to command, kingly in character, Christian in spirit, conservative in opinion, consistent in life, resolute in action, dauntless in courage, keen in perception, careful in speech, patriotic in the highest degree, a man among men, a statesman among seers.

"This act against his life calls for the most stringent legislation. To lift a hand against the president should be a capital offense. The name of the wretch guilty of such a dastardly act of cold-blooded barbarism should be cast into oblivion, and anarchists in general should be either imprisoned or exported from the shores of this country, which, free and hospitable to all, has opened its doors to those who nourish in their bosoms the vipers which sting us thus in return."

Dr. Pierce, continuing, spoke of lesser acts against the government, and declared that in his mind it should be a criminal offense to publish vile cartoons against the president, as these ought to come under the head of constructive treason."

The following prayer was offered at the Penn avenue synagogue Saturday for the recovery of President McKinley, by Rev. Dr. H. Lewis, cantor of the synagogue: "He, our God, who blessed our forefathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and Aaron, David and Solomon, shall give a speedy recovery to our honorable noble executive, William McKinley, for the sake of the whole community who bless him. O God, have mercy on his strength and life; and O God send him a speedy recovery from heaven. Immediately send him his recovery, Amen."

COMPOSED A HYMN.

Rev. D. P. Jones, pastor of the Tabernacle Congregational church, preached last evening from Luke, 23:-34: "Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them." In his sermon he referred to the shooting of the president, and the following hymn was composed by him and sung by the congregation in behalf of our ruler:

Oh, God, and King of all,
Upon Thy name we call
At such an hour;
Oh, save our ruler, Lord,
We pray with one accord;
By Thy Almighty word
His strength renew.

Rev. S. F. Mathews, First Baptist church, in his sermon, said:

"When President McKinley was sinking under the strain of the assassin's work, he uttered a Christian sentiment when he said, 'Spare him.' This was the true Christian feeling which characterized the man under such a mortal exigency. Such a sentiment is the foundation of a Christian nation."

Rev. J. P. Moffat, D. D., Washburn Street Presbyterian church, made special mention in his morning and evening prayers for the president's recovery, and the congregation bowed their heads and offered up a silent prayer for his safety. The pastor referred to the possibilities of such happenings as befell President McKinley, and said it seemed almost incredible that such a shocking affair should occur in this free and glorious country of ours. It was shocking to an appalling degree.

It was more appalling when the president's unstained record is taken into consideration. As a man he is irreproachable and his record is unsullied. The toleration in America of such organizations as anarchists is an outrage, and they should be immediately suppressed. Such a crisis as this recalls the nation to the need of prayer, and the recognition of the supreme power of God over all things.

TOLD GIRLS TO WALK HOME.

Outrageous Conduct of West Scranton Young Men.

Patrolman McColligan met two young girls wandering about West Scranton in a semi-dazed sort of manner at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and on accosting them received the rather astonishing information that they were about to begin a walk home to Pittston.

The bluecoat heard their story and took them to the police station for safe keeping and there they told a tale of the duplicity of three bold, bad West Scranton boys. They claimed that the young men met them in Pittston Saturday night and asked them to ride up to Scranton, and see what a real city looked like.

They accepted the invitation, a rig was hired, and the quintette were slowly driven here. They arrived early yesterday morning, and when in the alley back of the Franklin engine house, the young men suddenly chuckled, hoarse, heavy-villainish chuckles, joined in the chorus of "Good-bye Dolly, I must leave you," compelled the two girls to leave the carriage and then drove away.

The young women gave the police the names of the bright young men, but as they are undesirous of prosecuting the case their identity will not be revealed.

HAD A PLEASANT OUTING.

Petersburg Silk Mill Employes Spent Saturday at Mountain Park.

There was a big, light hearted and fun-loving throng at Mountain Park Saturday. It was made up of upwards of 850 of the employes of the Petersburg silk mill, of which Reiling, David & Schoen are the proprietors, and this was the annual excursion which the mill proprietors tender to their employes.

Bauer's band accompanied the party and furnished music for dancing at the park. Dancing was a popular pastime and prizes were given for the most proficient in that line and for cake-walking, etc. At 8 o'clock Saturday evening, the excursionists returned to this city, tired but thoroughly pleased with the day's outing.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

ACADEMY.—Wolford-Sheridan company in "The Son of Napoleon."

The Wolford-Sheridan Co.

Commencing tonight at the Academy of Music the Wolford-Sheridan Stock company will present a repertoire of up-to-date plays for one solid week.

For the opening performance will be presented "The Son of Napoleon," a story of "L'Aiglon," with Miss Wolford as L'Aiglon. She scored a pronounced success in this play, when it enjoyed a run of sixteen weeks at Valhammi Pavilion, Williamsport, Pa. The piece is magnificently mounted with special scenery. The play is an historical drama of intense interest, and must be seen to be appreciated.

No Show at the Star.

Manager Herrington believing that the "King and Queens Burlesquers," who were to open at the Star this afternoon, were not presenting a performance up to the standard he intends to maintain at this house, proceeded to promptly cancel them, and the house will, therefore, be dark all week.

However, it will be re-opened one week from today with Jacobs and Lowry's "Merry Maidens," a burlesque organization of recognized standing and merit.

If you are suffering the tortures of Nervous Debility, there is no knowing how soon you may decline to something more horrible. But you can get well. The youthful strength, buoyancy and happiness can be restored by the use of
