OBSEQUIES OF THE DEAD PRESIDENT

in darkness. It was raining steadily, but neither rain nor the lateness of the hour kept the mourning people from being at the track to pay their final tribute of honor and respect to their departed president.

Harrisburg was not reached until after midnight but the crowd was enormous and the scene impressive. The train stopped several minutes while crews and engines were changed and the multitude had an excellent opportunity to see the guarded casket revealed, as by a flood of day, in the brilliantly lighted car.

PROGRESS THROUGH KEYSTONE STATE

York, Pa., Sept. 17.—Notwithstanding the damp and disagreeable night, thousands upon thousands of people were crowded along the Northern Central railroad tracks tonight when the funeral train passed through here at 11:30 bearing the remains of the late President McKinley toward Canton. The fire alarm bells were set tolling nearly an hour before the train arrived, and these brought out the people in streams who waited patiently. It was a reverent and sorrowful throng. The local police force and Company A of the local militia were lined up as a guard. Camp No. 665, P. O. S. of A. was present in a body. Thousands of coins, medals, spoons, etc., were placed on the rails. These were smashed by the wheels and will be retained for years to come as relics. The train passed slowly and the funeral car was lighted, affording an excellent view of the casket.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—The McKinley funeral train stopped at Harrisburg ten minutes to change crews and engines. The station was crowded with people anxious to catch a glimpse of the car containing the remains of the late president. The next stopping place is Altoona, which will be reached at 5:25.

CANTON READY FOR THE HONORED DEAD

Canton, O., Sept. 17.—Canton is ready for the last home coming of William McKinley. In other days she has welcomed him with cheers, with waving banners and triumphal marches. Tomorrow she will receive him in silence, with streets hung with solemn black and with the wailing notes of dirges. At sunset tonight Canton was shrouded in black and so she will remain until the remains of her best-loved son has been committed to the vault in West Lawn cemetery.

At frequent intervals during the day there have resounded from the pavements the sound of marching feet as a military or civic organization made its way into the city, to be in readiness for the duties of tomorrow and of Thursday. They are but the first wave of the human tide which is to come. There has been a constant procession of visitors moving along North Market street to the McKinley home—a house easily distinguished from all others in the street in that it is the only one not draped in black. There is today no sign of mourning on the house, nor will there be until the dead president has been borne through its doorway on Wednesday night.

Tomorrow upon its arrival at eleven a. m. the train will be met by members of the local reception and executive committees, by hundreds of the personal friends of President McKinley and by the honorary pall-bearers.

Troop A, of Cleveland, will act as escort in the march from the Pennsylvania depot to the courthouse where the body will lie in state. The cavalry will lead the way; the hearse, drawn by four coal black horses, will follow and then will come the carriages bearing the members of the family and the distinguished visitors.

The casket will be placed in the rotunda of the court house, and as soon as possible, the doors will be opened to allow the citizens of Canton the opportunity of paying their last tribute of respect to the dead president. Large detachments of militia and police will be present to facilitate the handling and the movement of the crowds, which will be formed in line, four abreast.

Until 9 o'clock at night the body will remain in the court house, and immediately after that hour it will be taken to its family residence. Canton post, Grand Army of the Republic, composed almost entirely of members of President McKinley's old regiment, the Twenty-third Ohio, will escort the body to the house.

That is as far as the definite programme of the Canton committee extends tonight. It is their wish that early on the morning of Thursday the body will be returned to the court house, and again lie in state until it is time to leave for the First Methodist church, where the funeral exercises are to commence at 2 o'clock, but whether the family will agree to this is not known as yet. The time allowed for the entire exercises in the church is forty-five minutes.

The programme is not entirely arranged for the church services, but they will be simple—a discourse by Rev. C. E. Manchester, of the First Methodist church; a prayer by Rev. O. B. Milligan, of the Presbyterian church, and a Scripture reading by some clergyman not yet selected. A quartette will sing "Lead, Kindly Light." At the conclusion of the services in the church, the slow march to the cemetery will be taken up.

The casket will be placed in a receiving vault and a guard will be thrown around it day and night, and not until its final resting place is prepared, will it be surrounded by armed men.

Quebec, Sept. 17.—The ceremonies of the last day's stay of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York in the ancient capital of Canada included a review of the troops mobilized for their reception, a dinner on the royal yacht Ophir, and an illumination of the harbor and city. Rain fell almost incessantly during the day and the crowds gathered early in the morning were speedily dispersed and driven indoors. The luncheon and general reception at Spencer Wood, the official residence of the lieutenant governor, was cancelled as a mark of respect to the dead American president and further plans for an expression of regret were made but unavoidably abandoned.

BRADFORD COUNTY.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Towanda, Sept. 16.—A large crowd and sale of tickets is always looked for whenever an announcement is made that Stetson's big double spectacular "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company will appear in Towanda. This season the date is advertised for next Thursday evening, September 19, at Hale's opera house. The company carry the most gorgeous scenic effects. In the specialty work the best of talent is employed. Among the numbers will be seen the African mandolin sextette, jubilee singers, two famous Topsies, two eccentric lawyers. A beautiful transformation scene of fifteen minutes' duration is also given at each performance.

When she reached the opera house with her manager, she found only three tickets had been sold, and then the lecture was declared "off." She left before daylight on Saturday.
