MOURNING WAS GENERAL THROUGHOUT THE CITY (Concluded from Page 3.)

When the father of a family dies, the first outbreak of grief past, and the sacred duty laid on the grave, it is no longer a thing for the children to gather together and face to face talk over those things in which they are so deeply interested, and record the grief of mind and heart and life of their beloved dead.

Mr. Chairman—I love to think of the great American people as a family, brought suddenly by the foul deed of an assassin's hand to face with the loss of a father, for the highest praise that can be paid to any ruler is that he was as a father to his people.

Estimate of McKinley. It has been suggested by the committee that I give a brief estimate of William McKinley as a statesman. This estimate must, indeed, be very brief and very imperfect.

McKinley's Ability. His ability: those who knew him most intimately, knew best of his scholarship and those qualities of mind which were the basis of his greatness.

McKinley's Character. But my brethren, fellow children of the father who is gone, all these qualities sink into insignificance when we think of his loving spirit and tender-hearted sympathy.

McKinley's Influence. What a man he was! What an example to us all! What a heritage to leave to his people, his children! An example for men in the loving unselfish self-sacrificing graces of domestic life.

McKinley's Legacy. No wonder his children mourn; no wonder in cathedral, in church, in synagogue, in chapel, all over the land, mourning services are held; no wonder that princes and kings testify to his worth, for a prince is fallen.

McKinley's Example. Shall we not by precept and by example strive to those wayward ones a better, a more blessed way? There is much excitement in Dickson City over the action of the borough council Tuesday night in deciding to have removed from the corner-stone of the borough building the names of Burgess Kennedy and Combs.

The citizens of Scranton, in mass meeting in memory of our lamented president, William McKinley, join in the nation's sorrow. We also extend to you our sympathies in the national bereavement, and express to you, as the executive of the nation, our confidence and esteem, and assure you of our loyal and patriotic support in the discharge of the duties of your high office.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Pierce, seconded by Major W. S. Miller, the resolutions were adopted with a mighty "Aye."
