All have been recovered, and the burglar is now behind

The burglary was discovered yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, and Mr. Canfield immediately notified police headquarters. Telephone messages were at once sent out to the surrounding towns. In the meantime, both the horse and pony had best recovered. The pony eas found wandering around on the hill, while the horse had been found on Adams avenue, early in the morning, and had been placed temporarily in a stable by the under. The burgher had evidently decided to let the animals go

The Wilkes-Barre police, who had been notified of the burglary early in the morning, arrested a young man at about II o'clock, whom they found trying to sell barness.

Detective Lona Day went after the prisoner yesterday afternoon and brought him to this city, after he had satisfied himself that the harness found with the man was the harness stolen from Mr. Canfiela's barn. On the train the prisoner gave his name as John Conway, and said he lived in South Scranton. He finally owned up to having been the man who broke into the

JUDGE ARCHBALD'S OPINION IN DIRECTORY CASE.

It States That While W. F. Smythe, the Defendant, Did Some Original Work in Compiling a Directory

Judge R. W. Archbald, United States rircuit court judge of the Middle Pennsylvania district, handed down an pinion yesterday deciding that the ainary injunction granted Mrs. Katherine Williams against W. F. Smythe, to restrain the sale of his until the next session of the Circuit directory should continue until the court for this district. Rev. Stat., Sec. irectory should continue until the jext session of the circuit court. Smythe is the publisher of the Peo ple's directory, which has just been issued here, for 1901. He was accused by Mrs. Williams of pirating from the Paylor Scranton directory, the inter-ests and good will of which were purhased by the Williams Directory com-

Judge Archbald found that while Smythe unquestionably did some in ependent work in compiling the name, cupation and address portion of the book, in other portions he found that much had been appropriated. opinion follows:

In the compliation of his directory the defendant has unquestionably done considerable independent work, as an examination of the book abundantly shows. Not one of the 441 pages which contain the alphabetic list of residents of the city, and make up the largest and most important part of it. but shows a material difference from the corresponding page of that of the plaintiff. Names are added and omitted and corrections made, some of which, to my own knowledge, are mistakes, but all of which go to establish to my satisfaction that as to this part of the publication the defendant has practiclly compiled it, as he declares, from original sources, and that so far the charge of piracy is not made out. It is true that in the affidavits in support of the motion the plaintiff has pointed out a few errors, which have been eviyour linen would look if we laundered it number more. But I am not prepared to have this overcome the manifest proof of independent work to which I have alluded, sustained as it is by the evidence produced by the defendant of the means employed to gather the in-formation on which this part of his directory is based.

Unfortunately, however, the same annot be said as to other parts of it. in what is known as the "Business Directory"—pages 442-448 inclusive while not a little new material has been introduced, yet so many glaring mistakes which appear in the plaintiff's directory are found in exactly the same shape and connection in that of the defendant. I am forced to the conclusion that much of the one has been appropriated and incorporated bodily into the other in violation of the copyright by which it is protected. A few examples will suffice: Thus under the head of "Lawyers," "Clark W. Bliss" is given in both as "Charles W. Bliss," "R. Louis Grambs," as "P. Louis Grambs;" "M. F. Sando," as "M. F. Sando;" "John F. Murphy," as "John T. Murphy," Under the head of "Physicians," "Daniel H. Jenkins" appears as appropriated and incorporated bodily of that business, and under the head of "Insurance Agents" we find "William Hodby, 807 Mears building," although he has not been at that office since February last, and is said to have removed from the city. There are a large number of other instances in which either the parties have changed their offices or places of business, or are no longer residents of the city, and yet are accredited just as they stand for the year 1900 in the directory issued by the plaintiff at that time.

In like manner, in the introduction-pages i to xlvi-where the several as-sociations and corporations of the city are grouped together, changes in the officers and organizations which have occurred in the last year are not noted out on the contrary a long list of those which have gone out of existence are continued in the defendant's directory the same as in the plaintiff's, while is several which still exist the officer and addresses, although materiall changed, are found exactly as if the had been copied, have occurred as if th defendant had gone to original source for his information, and no explanatio has been attempted with regard to them. All we have to counteract their effect is the evidence of some additional original work here, as in the main part of the directory, and the proof afforded by the defendant's affidavits, such as it is, as to the inde-pendent manner in which the directory was gotten up. This is not sufficient, however, to overcome the inference which I consider irresistible from the appearance of this matter in the defendant's directory that he has been guilty of abstracting and using as the basis of these parts of it thowever interfused with other matters) more or less of the plaintiff's copyrighted direcory of last year, which he had no right

On the strength of these authorities, and the proofs to which I have alluded, I am compelled to hold that alluded. BEGAN ON THE COUNTRY CLUB'S LINKS YESTERDAY.

Many Good Players from This and Other Cities Took Part in the Qualifying Round Yesterday. Scores That Were Made by the Players-Drawings for the Country Club and Consolation Matches for Today-Tea Served by Ladies of Country Club.

The Country club golf committee made no mistake when an earlier date was selected for the golf annual tournament this year. Hitherto these events have been planned for October, and have rather generally met with foggy weather. Last season the qualifying ounds were played under great disadvantages, which worked against good scores. The links continued to be wet during the remainder of the week, except on the final day, and much dis-omfort was experienced. This year's tournament opened under more favorable auspices. The weather yesterday was perfection, and the ourse was in fine condition.

The surroundings of the Country club are in ideal condition. The green loveliness, which during summers have been more characterized by drouth, is often by this time purched and brown. is still unmarred by frost's lingering touch. The trees are yet in full verdure. The distant mountains, brought near yesterday in the brilliant sunshine, seemed never so beautiful in colhome is in North Scranton, got on a Providence car. It was crowded, a singularly fortunate choice of a date for the important golf event of the

The next instant a party of masked many stant a party of masked many stant as party of masked many stant should have been, but it is anticipated that better work will be done today. The greatest surprise of the occasion was that J. H. Brooks played up to his usual mark, notwithstanding the fact that he has not been over golf links but a half-dozen times this summer, and considers himself entirely out of form. It was a hard test, the thirtysix holes, for one unseasoned to the his clothing. # BURGLARS TRIED TO

One of Them Stepped on an Explosive Cap and Was Injured. No Booty Secured.

Five masked robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to blow open the Moosic postoffice safe early yesterday morning. One of the gang accidentally stepped on an explosive and was so seriously wounded that he had to be carried away by his companions. The terrific noise of the explosion awakened Thomas Patterson, who floor of the building occupied by John McCrindle & Co., general storekeepers, in which building is also located the the building and disappeared in the darkness.

Investigation showed that extensive efforts had been made to blow open the safe. The burglars had knocked off the handle and combination by an axe secured in the store. A small hole was drilled in the top of the safe but it had evidently been abandoned interior through the rupture made by the destroying of the combination. A sort of pocket had been made close by with soap

Nitro-glycerine had been introduced ogether with a six-inch fuse. It is thought the explosive cap had been carelessly left laying on the floor, and one of the burglars stepped upon it. causing it to explode with tremendous force, and inflicting a painful wound. A pool of blood was found on the floor, near the safe, and in the morning the course of the robbers was followed by a stream of crimson for 200 yards, or to a point just across the Delaware and Hudson railroad bridge. No clue was left by the robbers. The supposition is, however, that they were a gang of vagrants who have sheriff's deputy sold a lot of timber the time. Tea will be served today and been hanging around Moosic for some time. The police of this city were notified of the attempted burglary.

John J. Genter, the expert machinist the performed the feat of opening the Hotel Jermyn safe a couple of years ago, was communicated with last night by Postmaster McCrindle, and will probably go to Moosic this morning to open the safe, the postmaster being unable to unlock the doors, owing to the destruction of the outer mechanism of the combination. The burglars secured absolutely no
