WAY THEY DO IN PITTSBURGH.

Director Roche Thinks Scranton Should Copy Her Methods.

Director of Public Works Roche stated to a Tribune man yesterday afternoon that no effort will now be made until next season of securing bids for the sewers for which no bids were received in response to recent advertisements.

In the course of the conversation, the director said that he was of the opinion that it would be wise to put that practice, if possible, in the system which now prevails in the city of Pittsburg regarding the payment of sewer contractors.

Contractors there are paid out of the current revenues of the city on estimates prepared by the city engineer, and the assessments as they are paid in are turned into the city treasury as general city revenues.

"By this plan," said the director, "the contractor is positively assured of receiving the cash just as soon as his work is completed. It relieves him of the anxiety of securing his estimates and insures lower bids than under the present system. If this plan was put in operation, there would, in my opinion, be no lack of bidders, and the city authorities would use every means in their power to collect the assessments, realizing that any money not collected by the city and not the contractor would be the loser."

A BEAUTIFUL WEDDING.

Miss Genevieve Clarke United in Marriage to Charles Howard Van Campen.

Probably few quiet home weddings are ever characterized by such elegance of detail and exquisite taste as that of yesterday, when Genevieve, the elder daughter of General Superintendent and Mrs. T. E. Clarke, was married to Charles Howard Van Campen of Minneapolis. The ceremony took place at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride at 207 Jefferson avenue. The guests present numbered not more than half a hundred and represented only the closest friends of the bride's family in this city and relatives from out of town.

The charming rooms were lavishly decorated. The drawing room, which was hung in green brocade, made an effective background for masses of luxuriant palms and ferns. A unique feature was the fringe of festooned smilax, the delicate sprays fastened by clusters of white carnations. The bride and groom stood in the north corner which was a bower of green. Festoons of smilax formed portieres and softly veiled the windows. The dining room was decorated in bride roses and ferns, the center piece being a magnificent basket of white roses.

The bride entered with her father. She wore a Paris gown of lievre lace over white satin, the embroidered design being tiny sprays of primroses. The long train was finished with innumerable quillings of narrow liberty satin on silk net, making a foamy effect about the feet. Her veil was caught by a crown-pin of rubies and pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a prayer book bound in vellum, from Presbyterial church, read the marriage service. The bride, who is very petite, looked, in her filmy lovely robes, like some sweet miniature, with her dainty coloring and her golden hair.

The maid of honor was Miss Mary Clarke, the bride's only sister. She wore an exquisite frock of Paris mullin, with entre-deux and ruffles of real Valenciennes and sash of white liberty satin. She carried the bride's bouquet of American beauty roses and wore a picture hat of white malines, trimmed with pink roses and a pink Alsatian bow.

The bridesmaids, who are exceedingly beautiful girls, wore white Paris muslin with real lace. Miss Wright's gown was incrustated with duchesse lace. Their hats were of white malines. The groom wore a tuxedo suit, and Miss Clara Harrington of Minneapolis and Miss Wright of Buffalo.

The best man was George Peeke, of Minneapolis. The ushers were: Merton Page, of Minneapolis and Harry Shepard, of Easton. The bride's mother wore a very handsome gown of lavender embroidered crepe de chine, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Charles Van Campen, wore jetted gauze and real lace.

Following served the breakfast which followed the ceremony. Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Campen, Miss Clara Harrington, Messrs. George Peeke and Merton Page, of Minneapolis. Miss Helen Reid, Indianapolis, Mrs. W. F. Hildner, Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Swartz, Syracuse, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ketcham, Hoboken; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knapp, of Easton; Mr. and Mrs. William Spear, of Jersey City; Miss Sterling, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hallstead, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. M. and Mrs. E. P. Jermyn, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lynde, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Zehnder, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Silliman, Jr., Rev. Dr. James McLeod, Miss McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dickson, Mrs. A. M. Decker, Mrs. G. B. Hart, Miss Anne Hand, Misses Alice and Helen Matthews, Miss Adelaide Hand.

The bride and groom left for New York on President W. H. Truesdale's private car which was sent up for their use. It was prettily decorated with flowers, while the bridal party sat along their special tribute of affection in the shape of large red hearts which were suspended in every window of the sumptuous car.

The groom is a member of a prominent law firm in Minneapolis and is a young man of exceptionally fine ability. The bride, who, during her brief residence in Scranton, has endeared herself to a large circle of friends, is attractive, accomplished and of the sunniest possible temperament. She returns to the city of her birth and of her former years to be welcomed most affectionately by a host of friends, but it is with sincere regret that the good byes are said to her here.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Campen will stop in Scranton for a few days on their westward journey before going to the handsome home ready for them in Minneapolis. The bridal gifts, rich and costly and chosen with rare taste, will carry many fond remembrances to that city.

The bridal party was entertained Monday night at the Jermyn by the maid of honor when elaborate table decorations were a feature. Among the entertainments in honor of the bride during the past week was a tea given by Mrs. E. B. Jermyn and a dinner by Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Murray.

ALL DEPENDS ON PUBLIC'S LEGS

QUESTION OF HOW LONG POPULACE WILL WALK.

Company Satisfied That Cars Will Be Patronized as Usual in the Course of a Few Weeks—Strikers Confident the Public Will Not Ride on the Cars While They Are Run by Imported Men—More Cars Put on but Passengers Are Still Few—Arrests Made.

The trolley strike yesterday entered upon its second week, with the hope of amicable adjustment farther off than ever. The company is persisting in its policy of opening up its lines as fast as it can secure imported men, and patiently awaiting the time when the public will resume its patronage of the cars. The strikers are putting on "buses" to accommodate those who cannot walk, but those who can walk are not walking, and the company is not trusting that those who can walk will continue to walk until the boycott compels the company to sue for peace. Thus far, the hopes of the men are being quite fully realized. Cars run regularly on nearly all the city lines, but they carry very few passengers. Some of them run for hours without taking in a fare.

General Manager Silliman claimed yesterday that fifteen new cars had been put in operation and that forty, or more than half of the full equipment, were running. He also claimed that the patronage was steadily increasing. The strikers do not dispute the claim as to the number of cars in operation, but stoutly maintained that the number of persons riding was less than on the previous day. There was no way of telling which was the closer to the exact truth, but casual observation failed to discover any appreciable increase in the number of passengers.

PUT ON UNIFORMS.

The most of the men manning the cars appeared in uniform yesterday. The strikers claim the company applied these uniforms with a view of giving color to a story it proposed to circulate that the strikers were deserting their stand and returning to work. Organizer Reeves averred last night that not a single striker had deserted, and that there is not the least sign of wavering anywhere along the line.

Ten new men were forwarded here by the Drummond agency from New York yesterday. They were landed at the company's office without delay. Ten other men, it is claimed by the company, were recruited during the day from the region immediately about Scranton. They came singly and unaccompanied, and were all found to be expert car men, seeking permanent employment.

Postoffice Inspector Hugh Gorman is investigating the case of Thomas Smith, the dray driver, who is alleged to have intentionally blocked a car carrying United States mail, on Lackawanna avenue, last night. It is claimed on Smith's part that there was no sign on the car to indicate that it had mail aboard.

The mass meeting under the auspices of the strikers, which was scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until Friday night.

Business is generally paralyzed throughout the central city, as a result of the strike, and the business men are talking of holding a meeting tomorrow or Friday to take some action looking to their own relief.

BOYS ARRESTED.

Special Agent Stephen Dyer, of the Scranton Railway company, yesterday afternoon arrested about 15 boys on the charge of placing obstructions on the tracks on West Linden street and North Main avenue. The boys were seen placing the obstructions during the past few days and were not arrested until sufficient evidence was secured against them.

Their names and addresses are given below: Fred Jones, of Dorothy street; John Clark, of 973 Summer avenue; Michael Farrell, of 973 Summer avenue; Harry Lisk, 923 North Main street; Harry Lisk, 1113 Elizabeth street; George Malley, of 908 West Lackawanna avenue and Benjamin Jones, who lives near the round woods.

They were arraigned before Magistrate Miller last night and were allowed to go home in the custody of their parents until this morning, when in pursuance of the provisions of the juvenile court bill, they will be arraigned before one of the judges.

James Evans, who drives a wagon in front of a Goodland, 1113 Elizabeth street, yesterday afternoon and refused to budge from the track. He was arrested by Patrolman Karlin and taken before Magistrate Howe, who fined him $2.

TO APPOINT COLLECTORS

City Treasurer Will Name Assistant Tax Collectors This Week—He Will Receive 10 Per Cent.

An ordinance which has just been signed by Recorder Connell provides for the appointment of twenty-one delinquent tax collectors by City Treasurer Robinson and allows him 10 per cent. commission on all delinquent taxes collected by these collectors.

Treasurer Robinson said yesterday afternoon that he will appoint these collectors before the end of the current week. He will allow them a commission of something less than 10 per cent. on all taxes collected by them.

The present city administration, it must be understood, does not recognize the right of George W. Jenkins to act as delinquent tax collector, a position to which he was appointed by former Recorder Moir. It is held that inasmuch as councils provided in the general reorganization ordinance for the combining of the offices of city treasurer and delinquent tax collector, Mr. Jenkins has no right to his position, the "ripper" bill giving councils the power to combine these two offices. Mr. Jenkins is now making a fight in court to test his right to the place.

Recorder Connell in appointing City Treasurer Robinson, a few months ago, was careful in his official notice of appointment to set forth that he had also appointed him delinquent tax collector.

ROMEO AND JULIET.

Lecture on Shakespeare by Dr. J. J. Walsh—The Religion of the Dramatist Discussed.

Dr. J. J. Walsh, of New York city, last night delivered the first of a series of four lectures on Shakespearean subjects before the members of the Catholic Historical society, and again proved himself to be one of the most accomplished and scholarly literary students who ever addressed a Scranton audience.

The wonderful range of his knowledge of literature is all the more remarkable when the fact is taken into consideration that he is renowned as a physician and famous more for his scientific attainments than for his literary. He spoke for over an hour and a half last night, without notes of any character, and the legion of details and incidents that he showed himself familiar with proved that his memory, also, is a little out of the ordinary.

His topic was "Romeo and Juliet." The doctor referred to it as practically the first completely original effort of the immortal Bard of Avon. His earlier plays were written in imitation of current plays of the time, which cannot be classed, he said, with his other work.

The doctor told of Marlowe, the playwright, who was the favorite in London when Shakespeare came to that city, and contrasted his work with the latter's, the one painting his character's vices and virtues in bold strokes, laying the color on too heavily, the latter showing the actual development of those vices and virtues and painting them as they really were.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the lecture was that in which he discussed the religious belief of Shakespeare, as revealed in "Romeo and Juliet." It could be plainly seen before the doctor got very far along that he is an ardent believer in the theory that Shakespeare was a Catholic.

He pointed out that Arthur Brooke, who was the author of the narrative poem from which Shakespeare derived the story of "Romeo and Juliet," sought to prove in this poem the dangers arising from seeking the advice of "unholy doctors" and from following counsel given in the confessional.

Dr. Walsh then sought to show that Shakespeare, instead of following out this idea and making Friar Lawrence a "meddlesome monk," makes him a person worthy in every way of the respect accorded to all men.

The doctor said that many critics, seeking to prove that Shakespeare was not a Catholic, have endeavored to clinch their arguments by quoting Juliet's remark in Act III: "Shall I not make a proctor of my own hand? Critics have contended, "flippantly contended," the doctor said, that as there is no such ceremony as evening mass, that therefore Shakespeare could not have been a Catholic. Had he been one, they argue, he would have known better.

Dr. Walsh said that apparently unobjectionable can very often be met with very obvious answers. He said that the Catholics in England, in Shakespeare's days, were cruelly persecuted and were obliged in many instances to conduct their services in secret. Mass was frequently said very soon after midnight, at a time when it was still night, to all practical intent and purpose, and it is extremely probable to suppose that Shakespeare had such a ceremony in mind when he wrote the doctor's further claim that it is a well-established fact that the evening services in the Catholic churches of those days were often called "evening mass" by the unlettered and un-cultured Catholics.

Other authorities he promises to enlarge more fully upon this subject and to draw arguments, not alone from one play but from the collected works of the dramatist.

ABLEST DOCTORS IN AMERICA

Declare There Is a Sure Cure for Nervous Ailments.

Use of Paine's Celery Is Openly Advised.

Wonderful Results Recently Effected by Compound.

Buffalo, Oct. 8, 1901.—An evening paper publishes a symposium of physicians' opinions regarding the efficacy of various remedies for the cure of nervous prostration and attendant ills. Each physician was asked to express his opinion, first, whether those diseases were curable when once they had gained a hold upon the patient, and, second, whether the same remedy would be beneficial in all cases.

Without exception, the physicians interviewed declared that nervous prostration, when not too far advanced, innumerable, rheumatism, indigestion, resulting, as it most frequently does, from deranged nerves, dizzy headaches, and most liver and kidney complaints, were absolutely curable.

But the answer to the second question was most remarkable, because, with two exceptions, all the doctors mentioned by name Paine's celery compound, a well known remedy, manufactured by Wells & Richardson Co., of Burlington, Vt., and first discovered by the eminent Dr. Edward Phelps, some years ago, after a thorough investigation and the accumulation of a great deal of data, both here and in Germany.

It is probably the one instance, says the newspaper, where a prepared remedy has been openly endorsed by physicians of such standing. It seems that the formula of the compound has always been furnished to physicians in regular standing, and that the remedy is generally prescribed by up-to-date practitioners both here and in England and Germany, where it is quite as well known as in this country.

Many wonderful cures by the use of this famous compound are cited, one of them the well known case of Commodore Howell, of Washington.

BIG FURNITURE COMPANY

Project to Consolidate the Firms of Voorhis & Murray and Hill & Connell.

Stock is being offered here in a big furniture supply company, to be formed by the consolidation of the houses of Voorhis & Murray, of Wilkes-Barre, and Hill & Connell, of Scranton.

The company is to be incorporated in New Jersey, with a capitalization of $200,000, $80,000 of which is to be in preferred, and $150,000 in common stock.

The consolidation, if consummated, will mean the retirement of Hill & Connell, the Wilkes-Barre firm being the promoter of the deal.

An option extending to October 15, next Tuesday, has been acquired on the Hill & Connell business. The consideration is $50,000. The Voorhis & Murray business is to be turned over to the company for $50,000 in preferred stock.

The consolidation will enable the company to control in Northeastern Pennsylvania the exclusive business supplied by many of the leading manufacturers, such as the Cutler Desk company.

The earnings of the two firms for the past five years have more than averaged sufficient to insure six per cent. dividends on the preferred stock and a substantial dividend on the common stock. The preferred stock is being offered at par, with a bonus of common stock.
