

Social & Personal

FROM the present outlook Scranton is to have its star season in a musical way this winter. We have been favored in the past with many artists of talent, but never have we had a series of concerts which approached so near the metropolitan idea as we are promised during the next few months. Think of it! Nordica, Schumann-Heink, Emil Paur's Symphony orchestra, Cammarano, Jean Geary, Isadore Lankston, Eleeta Clifford, Albert Simmons and other artists in three months' concert!

It really seems too good to be true. That it is an asserted fact is due to the enterprise of Mr. F. C. Hand, through whose efforts Schumann-Heink sang on a Scranton stage last winter. That was a vast undertaking and its unparalleled success gave him encouragement to attempt the presentation of a series of concerts such as have never been heard in this region. The people of this community appreciated the work which Mr. Hand accomplished at that time in securing such talent and his present plans have been hailed with delight by all who have been told of the prospects.

The three grand concerts will be in the new armory. A sounding board will be erected back of the stage which will give the audience the best possible benefit of the programme. There is no doubt that several thousand listeners will be present.

The Nordica concert will take place Nov. 4. This celebrated artist will sing as long a programme as those in charge may arrange. Mr. Albert Simmons, the great accompanist, will play two numbers. When it is remembered that a fortune was created on the occasion of the Nordica concert in Wilkes-Barre, the enthusiasm with which she will be greeted in this musical community may be imagined.

Following is the prospectus for the concert:

- First Song recital by Mrs. Katharine Nordica, assisted by Mr. Albert Simmons, pianist, and the Scranton Symphony orchestra, on Thursday evening, Nov. 14, 1901.
Second Concert by Emil Paur's Symphony orchestra, Emil Paur, conductor, assisted by Mrs. Eleeta Clifford, soprano, and two other artists, in January, 1902.
Third Concert by Mrs. Schumann-Heink, Cammarano, assisted by Mr. Albert Simmons, pianist, on Thursday evening, Feb. 7, 1902.

MUSICAL GOSSIP.

The universal favor with which Mr. Willard Spenser's last musical production, "Miss Bob White," has been received is most conclusive evidence of the growing demand for the work which is healthy, clean and wholesome in high opera and musical comedy. Though simple in theme and arranged so as to be within the understanding of the masses, the musical score of "Miss Bob White" bears unmistakable marks of inspiration, and its simplicity in the written order still that has for years been indicated upon the theatrical public by some opera stars who have been successful in their own way. In addition to a reputation which would secure for it an immediate success, it is a demand for the more refined themes in music and comedy which was unknown at the time of the production of the work. It is a demand for a new type of musical comedy, and it is a demand for a new type of musical comedy, and it is a demand for a new type of musical comedy.

The Wood River Times, published in Hailey, Idaho, is probably one of the most expensive newspapers in this country. It is issued every Wednesday, and consists of four pages, of seven and one-half columns each, and is published weekly. It is one of the most interesting things of interest in the one at hand is that it complains of the scarcity of teachers in Northern Idaho and frantically demands where they are to come from. This is a most interesting question, and one which is being actively considered by the State Board of Education.

Miss Julia C. Allen is established at Carnegie Hall, New York, with the charge of the vocal department in Mr. Francis Fisher Powers' school. Miss Allen has attained to a high degree of excellence in her art, and has been successful in her own way. She is a most interesting person, and her work is being actively considered by the State Board of Education.

SCIENTIFIC SALAD

"Inaccurate knowledge is a dangerous thing. So in all things let us be accurate."
Readers of the salad would greatly aid me in my task by sending questions and answers to me by mail. As soon as possible they will be answered in full in an early issue of the Weekly Salad and their receipt acknowledged by return mail. All communications must, however, as a matter of course, bear the writer's correct name and address in full. They cannot be taken into consideration unless they are so addressed.

Electric Railways and the Public. A factor has entered into the building of railroads, recently, which was undoubtedly not contemplated upon during the early history of the introduction of electricity as a motive power. The electric character of the railroads, and the fact that they have been considered in the last few years ago as being in the nature of a public utility, has caused a change and a new factor in the risk air of small expense. The electric character of the railroads is especially noticeable during the extreme heat of summer. The whole population seems to be in motion, people are scattered all over the country, and the electric character of the railroads is especially noticeable during the extreme heat of summer. Embalmed Milk. In connection with an item in a recent issue of the salad on the poisonous effects of formaldehyde, I clip the following from the letter of one of our readers, who is a chemist, and who is very expert, especially in the use of formaldehyde. He writes: "I have been using formaldehyde for some time, and I have found it to be a most useful preservative. It is especially useful in the case of milk, and it is especially useful in the case of milk, and it is especially useful in the case of milk."

Havana's Sanitary Improvement. The sanitary results of the influence of the United States on Cuba is evidenced by the great decrease in the death rate. In August this year the death rate was 10.5 per 1,000, while in the corresponding month of 1898 it was 15.5 per 1,000. This is a most interesting fact, and it is a most interesting fact, and it is a most interesting fact.

The Lost Bullet. Adverse criticism has been made because the story was not used by the outgoing attorney general, McKim, to locate the bullet, and because the bullet was not found at all in the operation of the medical profession in the student body composing the staff in that case will not be of any avail. Further, such a story, as told by Mr. McKim, would not have been good general scientific or literary. Thousands of bullets are carried in various parts of their bodies by soldiers without causing any trouble. It is well that those who can now advocate such a theory had no voice in the management of the case. As to the autopsy, there was no "shooting" which would lead to the bullet. In the first place, no bullet could have been found in the body of the man who was shot. In the second, there was no evidence of any kind to show that a bullet had been fired. In the third, there was no evidence of any kind to show that a bullet had been fired.
