Miles Clark, one of the charter members of the organization, was introduced and gave an interesting history of the society, telling of the early trials and difficulties which beset the members and of the wonderful fraternal spirit which has always bound the members together. Other brief addresses were made by Select Councilman John E. Hogan, J. E. McLean, M. A. Collins and Alderman J. W. Miller. These addresses were interspersed with vocal solos by Patrick Walsh, William E. McDonough and Ignatius Nealon, and a piano solo by James Gillroy. GREAT GROWTH IN TEN YEARS

CAREER OF THE CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS. Idea of Imparting Knowledge Generally by Mail Was at First Not Only Coldly Received, but Even Opposed and Condemned by Brilliant Men—Success of the Schools and the Students Proves They Were Entirely Amis—Interesting Figures Are Given.

On October 18th, the International Correspondence Schools celebrated their tenth anniversary. Ten years ago Mr. Thomas Coates, of Peckville, Pa., enrolled as the first student of the schools and his enrollment marks the beginning of one of the most successful careers that has ever attended the launching of any enterprise in our city or in fact in any city in the United States. The growth of this institution from October 16, 1891, to the present day, is the greatest educational achievement of the century. In 1891, eight or nine persons performed the work that now necessitates the services of an army of 2,500, and up to the present time 341,500 students have enrolled in the schools.

ITS EARLY RECEPTION. When the schools started, no one had any conception of the great success that the future had in store for them. It was realized that there was a broad field for a correspondence institution on the lines laid down by President Foster, but it was not until the early part of the century that the idea of imparting knowledge through the agency of the schools.

Some months ago, the Franklin Institute, the most influential scientific body in America, on behalf of the Philadelphia export exposition, awarded the International Correspondence School the highest award, a diploma and silver medal for "a unique, thorough and comprehensive system of technical education by correspondence." It would be hard to find words more fittingly descriptive of the International Correspondence Schools system than those used by the Franklin Institute.

STRIKERS MEET MR. SILLIMAN

CONFERENCE, HOWEVER, DEVOID OF GOOD RESULTS. Committee Presents Itself as Representatives of the Union and Has a Brief Interview, in Which It Establishes to Its Own Satisfaction, That the Report of the Councilmanic Committee Regarding Mr. Silliman's Position Was Properly Understood by Them.

A meeting of General Manager Silliman and a committee of the strikers occurred yesterday afternoon, but it was devoid of any results, other than to convince the strikers that what had been reported to them by the councilmanic committee concerning Mr. Silliman's position was true in every detail. The committee consisting of President P. J. Shea, Secretary George O. Kragler and Executive Board Member Sidney Carter called at Mr. Silliman's office in the early afternoon and asked if he would see them. He said certainly.

STATEMENT ISSUED. Later in the day the committee issued the following statement: In order that the public may be fully informed on the statement made to the committee of councilmen that waited on Mr. Silliman, he states that his position to arbitrate was rejected by the men, which is absolutely incorrect, inasmuch as the proposition given to the public press by Mr. Silliman was misleading and entirely different from that offered to the committee of the men that conferred with him.

Income

The income which an estate will bring is always an important factor. Opportunities for safe and profitable investments are becoming more and more scarce, and the individual executor, guardian or trustee often has to leave money belonging to the estate idle because he cannot find a proper safe investment. In appointing a trust company as trustee or guardian you get the advantage of the financial experience and business ability of its officers and directors, together with large opportunities for investment which a financial institution always has. A trust company has special opportunities for putting out money on bond and mortgage.

NO DISORDER. No other incident of note marked the day as far as the strike was concerned. There was no disorder of any kind, the cars ran a little later than previously, and the patronage showed no very appreciable increase on the lines that have been running empty cars.

The Beauty of Weathered Oak. was never more beautifully exemplified than by our present window display of the "Mission" style of furniture, as popular now among connoisseurs. The carving treatment and inlaid work in the tables and chairs are marked features. The final impression of richness, which is charming, soon gives way to admiration of the beautiful grain of this sturdy wood—so strongly brought out. Against a semi-oriental background it is particularly effective. If you have an eye for the artistic, the time allotted to the inspection of our showing of Weathered Oak, will be profitably spent. This is the Home of Furniture Novelties. CREDIT YOU? CERTAINLY! THE ECONOMY 221-223-225-227 WYOMING AVENUE.
