A Psychological Correction of a Typographical Error.

Editor of The Tribune:

Sir: That imp of darkness which haunts about the composing room and the desk of the intelligent press reader, forever bent on mischief, and which is emphatically designated as the devilish spirit of typographical error, has to have had a particular spite against me and my scientific culinary efforts last Friday evening, for its pranks extended to the limit of torture by invading the domain of the fundamental principle upon which the S. S. has been created, and which is set forth in its motto. In order to save trouble to the readers of the Scranton Tribune who have every reason to believe, place great confidence in the truth and correctness of the statements made in it, I would ask you to kindly publish the following corrected formula for keeping clear sweets: Sogless raisins, one pound; white mustard seed, one-half pound; and sult. cinnamon, one-eighth of a pound; all well mixed, and then charred. The other ends of that mouthful I will rectify in the next issue of the S. S. but I would like to add that I think I could have circumvented the time were I not hampered by the natural tailing of my pen, due to advanced age, and particularly by the extreme badness of the typewriter in composing the S. S. and thus in consigned from reading poor myself.

Very truly yours,

Carl Sauer, M. D.

POLICE AND ALDERMEN.

A crowd of about 1,000 gathered at the afternoon James France trial, at the Lackawanna County Courthouse, early yesterday morning, and arrested nine women, including the proprietors, Mrs. Coburn, and eight men. This is the largest number ever before gathered in front one house in this city. Each and every one of the inmates gave definite names to police court system, members of the bar, and every one was held up to the bar.

Mrs. Emma Quirk, of 311 Harrison street, was held in $300 bail by Alderman Kason on Saturday, on a charge of robbery preferred by H. Goldsger, of 101 Penn avenue, recently acquitted of assault in court. He alleges that the woman had taken $100 from him at a hotel before Margaret Miller was arrested, after being in one point, namely, that the woman said she was fully dressed and that in the other she said she had no collar or tie on.

COMMONERS DIDN'T ACT.
President Chittenden Will Probably Increase Select Council Committee.

It is now apparently "up to" President Chittenden, of the select council, to increase the estimates or appropriation committee by four members, so that it will be equal in size with the common council committee.

Select council recently passed a resolution requesting common council to reduce its committee to five members and if it failed to do so, authorizing President Chittenden to increase the select council committee by four members. Common council considered this resolution at last Thursday night's meeting, and after talking about it for a considerable length of time, wound up by taking no definite action.

President Chittenden takes this to mean that common council won't agree to a reduction in the membership of its committee, and he is expected to name the four new members of the select committee on Thursday night.

With both committees enlarged, there will be no less than eighteen members on the joint appropriation committee, surely an unwieldy number, when the comparative size of councils is taken into consideration.

IMPORTS ARE NOW ON STRIKE

Revolted Last Night Because of the Discharge of Two of Their Number—Eleven Went Away on the 1:40 a. m. Train.

Scranton has at last reached the limit in the way of strikes.

The men imported to take the place of the striking street car men are themselves now on strike. Eleven of them quit last night and they declare twenty others will quit today.

One of the imports named Shaughnessy, who was arrested last week for pointing fire arms, had two "butties" named Green and Blake. They demanded that the company or the Drummond people bail out Shaughnessy, and when their demand was not granted they threatened to make trouble. The consequence was, the Drummond superintendents, who have them in charge, proceeded to make it as disagreeable for Green and Blake as they possibly could, while awaiting the arrival of the paymaster, when, as events proved, it was intended to discharge them.

Green and Blake suspected that they were to be discharged when they would be paid off, and to get even before-hand, they proceeded to start a revolt.

There was a feeling among the imports in general that they would be dropped, one by one, as fast as they broke in the dollar-a-day-and-board men, who are being numerous recruited from among the idle farm hands of the country round about; and this, coupled with the fact that the Drummond superintendents have been treating them rather shabbily, made it a very difficult matter for the conspirators to start an insurrection.

They did not expect to be paid until tomorrow night, but last night at 9 o'clock, L. E. Drummond, son of the head of the Drummond agency, came from New York over the Lackawanna, and proceeding direct to the sleeping quarters, paid off all his men, Green and Blake excepted. These two were informed they would find tickets awaiting them in the possession of the special officer at the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western station and that they would get their pay in the company's New York office, provided they applied for it before noon today. The detectives had gotten word of the insurrection and didn't want the ring-leaders about here.

When Green and Blake went out nine others went with them, and according to their story, twenty others will leave today. The two ring-leaders declare that as soon as they get their money they will return and spend every cent of it in an effort to induce every other import to quit.

A Tribune reporter was present when the crowd left on the 1:40 train and saw the Lackawanna depot policemen give the conductor two telegrams for Green and Blake, as the latter were to kindly publish the following corrected formula for keeping clear sweets: Sogless raisins, one pound; white mustard seed, one-half pound; and sult. cinnamon, one-eighth of a pound; all well mixed, and then charred.

This was sung by the immense congregation in the darkened church and the inspiring effect was one long to be remembered.

Then followed pictures of the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary and of the visit to Elizabeth, followed in turn by views representing the turning away of Mary and Joseph from the inn, and the birth of the Saviour from the stable of Bethlehem. Joseph and Mary had come to Bethlehem, he explained, because it was their home town, every resident of the province having been ordered by a decree of the emperor to be enrolled in his or her home city for purposes of taxation.

Dr. Pierce told of the lowly surroundings in which Jesus was born and that the noblest of mankind are not necessarily those who are born in palatial homes. He traced the early years of our Lord and told of His working at the carpenter's bench assisting his foster father, Joseph.

DIGNIFIED HONEST LABOR.—"Jesus Christ" said he, "was a honest labor by working as a carpenter. That's a truth that every laboring man should remember."

Following this came a beautiful picture representing the child Jesus discoursing with the doctor in the temple, and then one showing His recovery by His anxious parents.

"I wish that Sunday school teachers and Christian fathers and mothers would bear in mind that Jesus Christ was a child and that in teaching the little children about the Saviour they would bring this fact out above all others. I believe in teaching the humility of Christ as well as His divinity."

The sermon was followed by a brief evangelical after meeting in the lower temple.

THE LIFE OF THE MASTER

FIRST OF SERIES OF SERMONS BY DR. PIERCE.

He Spoke Interestingly Last Night of the Boydhood of the Saviour. The Sermon was Beautifully Illustrated with Colored Fac-similes of James Tissot's Celebrated Series of Paintings Dealing with the Life of Christ—The Necessity of Teaching Children That Jesus Was a Child.

Rev. Dr. Robert F. Y. Pierce, pastor of the Penn Avenue Baptist church, last night began a series of sermons on "The Life of Christ," illustrated with beautiful stereopticon views.

The pictures which Dr. Pierce uses are fine-scale reproductions of the celebrated series of paintings on the life of the Master by James Tissot, the French artist. The wonderful beauty of the colorings is preserved in the views and when thrown on the canvas they seemed to throb with life, so realistic were they.

Dr. Pierce, in his sermon last night, traced the life of Jesus from His birth until His twelfth year when He sank into obscurity until the age of thirty.

He emerged again to begin the mission for which He was sent on earth. He followed as closely as possible the record of the New Testament in telling of Christ's life.

He brought up in brief account of Tissot, the artist, who after spending fifty years of his life as a man of the world, bandleader and traveler, started to Palestine in 1886 to begin the study of the land in which the Saviour lived and died in order he might the better enter into the spirit of the series of paintings which he had decided to paint.

Tissot's Great Work.—"When the first of Tissot's physical self began to ebb," said the doctor, "this soul tires began to kindle afresh and he started on his great work of picturing with his brush, the principal events in the greatest life story of all time."

The first picture thrown on the screen represented Christ teaching two children who were nestled at His knees and accompanying this were the words and music of the hymn beginning:

Onward, Christian soldiers
Of Jesus is thy Master
Of Jesus is thy God.

This was sung by the immense congregation in the darkened church and the inspiring effect was one long to be remembered.

Then followed pictures of the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary and of the visit to Elizabeth, followed in turn by views representing the turning away of Mary and Joseph from the inn, and the birth of the Saviour from the stable of Bethlehem. NO RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

They Cannot Be Conducted at Lackawanna Hospital in Future.

The board of trustees of the Lackawanna hospital at their last meeting decided to prohibit the holding of religious services of any character in that institution in the future.

An order to this effect, signed by Miss Ellen Kramer, superintendent, was posted at the hospital yesterday. It announces that the only thing approaching a religious service which will be allowed will be "the singing of a few hymns."

They Fell Twenty Feet from a Scaffold to the Ground.

James Walsh, of this city, and Harry Rahl, of Williamsport, two linemen employed by the Central Pennsylvania Telephone company, fell from a swinging scaffold to the ground on Saturday, a distance of twenty feet, but escaped without serious injury.

The fall was sustained by the breaking of a rope, which caused the two men to drop to the ground.

Referred to the Booker Washington Incident in His Sermon in the First Presbyterian Church.

SABBATH WAS RATHER QUIET

NO SERIOUS DISTURBANCES ARE REPORTED.

First Sunday Since the Strike Started That There Has Not Been at Least One Serious Outbreak. There Was Some Stone Throwing in the Suburbs, but No Close-Range Assaults—Boy Arrested in Bellevue—Health Officer Inspects the Car Barn—Imports Leaving.

Yesterday was the fourth Sunday of the street car strike, and the only Sunday of the four to pass off without any serious disturbance. There were numerous gobs of outbreaks at various points, but one after the other proved, upon investigation, to be without foundation.

There were, however, a few minor instances of lawlessness.

A youth named John Jones, residing at 122 Broadway, threw a stone at a Bellevue car, near the Elm street bridge, early yesterday afternoon and was in the act of throwing another when Dispatcher Alex McTaggart, who is also a special officer and who was on the car, jumped off and arrested him.

A crowd quickly gathered and fearing trouble, police headquarters was notified. Lieutenant Feener and a squad of officers went to the scene in the patrol wagon and arrested an unknown drunken tramp, who was riding a row and who was apparently shouting of inciting the crowd to violence. The crowd remained peaceful and quiet, however, and no other arrests were made. Both prisoners were lodged in the central police station.

Some person or persons, supposed to be boys, threw a stone at an out-bound Dunmore car at the corner of North Washington avenue and Clinton street last night, about $300 value.

The car was stopped and a deputy, who was on board, fired four shots from his revolver, but succeeded in hitting the side of the car. The car then proceeded on its way.

An out-bound bound car on the Green Ridge Suburban line was met with a volley of stones, near New Street, about 5 o'clock last evening, and two passengers were struck. One of them, a woman, sustained a slight cut on the face from flying glass.

Stones were thrown at a car on the South Side line,
