MONTROSE

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Montrose, Oct. 28.—The grand jury for November term of court convened at the court house in this place today.

The town is billed for the San Francisco minstrels, which will appear at Village hall on Wednesday evening, October 30, judging from press comments.

Miss Ella M. Frazer, of Susquehanna, is visiting relatives in town. George Mack and Ray Deuel spent Sunday with Forest Lake friends.

There is a likelihood that the Montrose postoffice in the near future will be moved from its present location in the Tarbell block to the St. Mark's block across the street.

The Sunday school at St. Mark's Catholic church has been discontinued for the winter months.

Rev. Dr. N. G. Parke, of West Pittston, preached from the pulpit of the Presbyterian church last evening.

The residence of Justice John S. Courtright, on South Main street, is being improved by the addition of a fine porch.

Alfred Devine and son, William, of Dutchess, are visiting relatives in town.

from the score. An honorable defeat is no disgrace, but we had reason to expect different treatment from the representatives of the High school. In the first place, there was no one at the game to see the game than to show them to their quarters; then at the field, there were no ropes provided and the players were compelled to play in a small circle surrounded by a hoisting crowd. The officials ought to be chosen from the faculty, and it ought not to match together to lose the game than to "rough" for an official, and, lastly, the Scranton organization insisted on postponing a man who had once refused to play from the game, which is strictly contrary to football rules. We would much prefer to lose the game than to try to win by dishonorable means. We hope at least to give our opponents due courtesy when we meet at Fairburyville on November 9.

BRADFORD COUNTY.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Towanda, Oct. 28.—The romantic colonial play, "Toll-Gate Inn," is a quaint love romance of 18th century times, prepared for the stage by Langdon Meigs.

The play is a play of merriment, with a strong heart interest and combines love, patriotism and comedy. "Toll-Gate Inn," which will be produced at Hale's opera house

Thursday evening, October 31, is a splendid drama of the Revolutionary war. The scenes are laid near Bennington, Vermont, at the time of the battle of Bennington, and although the action takes place during one of the most exciting events in American history, still the notes of battle and the clash of musketry is kept well at a distance, while the charming romance of love and duty are being quietly enacted before the audience.

The special scenery and costumes are absolutely in keeping with the period, and the company is an exceptionally strong one. This beautiful play has been before the public for two seasons, meeting with big success.

Harry Davis, a boy, claiming Scranton as his home, who has been driver at the Berline mines for a few weeks, met instant death last week, in company with another lad, named Chapman. Davis had just prepared for supper, when the former pulled a revolver and began pulling the trigger, when a bullet struck him in the temple near his right eye.

The separation of the Episcopate of Pennsylvania opened a two days' meeting at Sayre this morning.

S. L. Nichols, the former proprietor of the hotel at Mountain Lake, Burlington township, who was convicted in the first term of court for violation of the liquor laws, and made his disappearance from the court before sentence, was taken in custody at home last week by Detective Holton and a deputy sheriff.

L. Pratt Charlow, of Hornbrook, has been absent from Sunday school only once in twenty-one years. He began attending when three years old, and was absent on account of his wedding trip last week.

Arrangements are now being made for a grand event in Towanda on November 26, at the time of the unveiling of the Bradford county soldiers' monument.

HONESDALE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Honedale, Oct. 28.—The fine weather on Saturday drew a large crowd to the Honedale golf links. Refreshments were served during the afternoon by Mrs. Josephine Whiting, Mrs. Ralph Martin, Mrs. Dr. P. B. Peterson and Miss Florence Snydam.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Oct. 28.—There was no very agreeable spirit manifested from the outset in today's stock market. Although there was some support for the market from time to time, the selling effort made to revive the spirit of the market in the afternoon, which was about midday. The demand for stocks, however, was at a minimum and prices kept sagging to a low level. The pressure was eased through the greater part of the day, but gained force in the last hour of the session being acute, and the market closed at a low level. The reaction was not so severe as the morning's selling, and recovered some of its losses. The reaction was not so severe as the morning's selling, and recovered some of its losses. "Quo Vadis."

The first time Misses Whitney and Smokey own and control the dramatic right to staging a musical stage production of the novel "Quo Vadis," dramatized by Stanislas Ingral, and staged by the past master of stage craft, Mrs. Freeman, is being given at the production headed by the Lyceum theater on Wednesday next contains all the elements of its original production success.

Maude Adams, in "Quality Street."

There is certain to be a great line of people at the Lyceum theater, when the sale of seats opens for the engagement of Maude Adams next Friday, when she will appear in a new comedy by J. M. Barrie, entitled "Quality Street." Mrs. Adams is the most popular American actress, and the most successful of her profession at any time that would be sufficient to crowd a theater to the doors. Her visit now is especially important and interesting, as she appears in a new character, in the role of a woman who has been married and distinguished through it. It is of the melodramatic type of "Quality Street," "The Little Minister," and the play has all the genial humor, sweetness of expression, delicate treatment and refined pathos which characterize all of Mrs. Adams's work. The play had its first production last week, and the enthusiastic reports sent out have been more than confirmed by subsequent engagements. The company may begin an engagement in Detroit last Monday night. The Detroit Free Press says: "Maude Adams has another unclouded triumph in 'Quality Street.' The play has a vein of tenderness and masterly sentiment that appeals to the heart and should be compelling Mrs. Adams' name with her new character, 'Pothe of the Ringlets' as we saw to compete her with 'Lady Babbalanza'."
