Social and Personal

THE Country Club "show" went off with great success and thoroughly delighted everybody present. The entertainment committee: Mrs Brady, Mrs. Klotz, Miss Belin, Miss Hunt and Miss Clare Reynolds deserve much credit for their able management of the pleasantest affair in the history of the club.

The Kinder Symphony has far surpassed all expectations. The young people had worked so hard in the rehearsals that it was a satisfaction indeed to achieve such results. It was really wonderful what the amateurs accomplished. Mr. Blair for instance, had never posed as a drummer boy and yet one would have thought him a professional. Miss Pennypacker had never attied to be a cornetist and still she played the miniature trumpet with the air of one who had always played trumpets and the same could be said also of every member of the "troupe."

The little New England play was the quaintest, most fascinating thing that has been presented on an amateur stage in this city. The comicality of the tipsy scene where the two old ladies had their innocent "orgy" was inexpressibly funny. Mrs. Dimmick and Miss Howell were showered with congratulations all day yesterday.

Mr. Learned scored a great hit as a Hibernian maiden and Miss Freda Kann's reputation as a coon songstress is ineffaceably established.

Arrangements for the Nordica concert are progressing rapidly. Madame Nordica will arrive in New York today from her recent triumphs abroad. Scranton will have her second concert this season in America. It is fortunate that the date was arranged at this time for it would have been practically impossible to secure her later. There will be no performance at the Lyceum on that night and the usual patrons of this theatre will desire to hear the great songstress. Great interest is being manifested all over the city and large delegations will come from Wilkes-Barre and other towns up and down the valley. As it is the largest musical enterprise ever attempted in this region since never before has there been such an auditorium as the new armory, the public seems to have unusual enthusiasm.

The fact that the Scranton Symphony Orchestra is to play three numbers is a source of great pride to our people, and is creating much additional interest in the success of the concert.

Following are two sample programmes for the Nordica concert:

1. Nicolai—Overture, "The Merry Wives of Windsor."
   Scranton Symphony Orchestra.
2. Wagner—Elsa's Dream (Lohengrin)
   Mme. Nordica, with orchestral accompaniment.
3. (a) Bizet—Si Mes Vers.
   (b) Abt—Ariette.
   (c) Delibes—Les filles de Cadiz.
   Mme. Nordica.

The Shear concert, which will take place Monday night in St. Luke's Parish hall is attracting much interest in advance. The ruling donna of the occasion is Miss Margaret Shear, the accomplished daughter of F. W. Shear, the president of the Foote & Shear Company. She has received great advantages in a musical way and is the pupil of Dr. Carl Duffi, the celebrated singer and teacher of New York.

Miss Irene Kann, who is such a favorite in this, her home city, will be the accompanist of the evening. Dr. Duffi will sing and Madame Cornu and Mr. Strong, well known vocalists, of New York, will assist.

The patronesses are Mrs. Everett Warren, Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury, Mrs. F. S. Godfrey, Miss Manness, Mrs. Timberman-Randolph, Miss S. Louise Hardenbergh, Mrs. N. Y. Lee, Mrs. H. H. Brady, jr., Mrs. Wainwright, Mrs. J. A. Lansing, Mrs. W. A. Avery, Mrs. Joseph O'Brien, Mrs. Walter Matthews, Mrs. Rogers Israel, Mrs. L. S. Oakford, Mrs. George M. Hallstead.

The following is the programme for the Shear concert:

Serenade—"Pensoti."
Miss Shear, Mme. Cornu, Mr. Strong, Dr. Duffi.

Piano Solo—"Am Meeres Strande" (Concert-etude) ..... L. Koehler
Mr. Hahn.

Soprano and Tenor" ..... Rudolph
Miss Shear.

"Ave Maria (Gounod's Mr. Schiever" ..... Gounod
Dr. Duffi.

Duet—"It Was a Lover and His Lass"..... Watson
Miss Cornu and Dr. Duffi.

"I'll Sing the Song of Araby" ..... Clay
Mr. Strong.

"Le Jongleur" ..... Wood
Miss Shear.

(a) "The Slumber Boat" ..... Gaynor
(b) "A Necklace of Love" ..... Nevin
Miss Shear.

(a) "Mollie's Eyes" ..... Bradley

(b) "First Air Mine Alt" ..... Bradley
Mr. Strong.

Piano Solo—"Serenade de Concert" ..... Raff, Op. 78.
Mr. Hahn.

Duet—"Calm on the Night" ..... Gaynor
Miss Shear and Dr. Duffi.

Professor J. S. Salter, the well known linguist, recently of Columbia university, is about to open a series of classes in French in this city which promise to engage the attention of a large number of our people who are interested in languages and the culture they afford. Professor Salter is a gentlemen of many accomplishments, whose long residence abroad and whose personality give him peculiar fitness for such work as he is undertaking among the refined and intellectual. His method is unique, as he guarantees a practical knowledge of French in five weeks. Mr. Salter comes recommended from the most exclusive set in Baltimore and Washington, where his classes have expressed the unqualified satisfaction with his work. No written exercises and no preparation of lessons are required, and the result of the five weeks' study is to give the students a sufficient degree of conversational French to communicate with French-speaking people and with subsequent study without an instructor, to read the language with ease. There will be free lectures this afternoon at 4 o'clock and this evening at 8 o'clock in St. Luke's Parish hall.

Mr. Everett A. Hunt will leave next week for his new home in Mexico, whence he will go to occupy his position as secretary of the new company controlled by Simpson & Watkins. It is an excellent opportunity for a career for a young man of Mr. Hunt's ability. It is with regret, however, that his departure from the city is announced, for he is a favorite in the leading social set in the city and has been prominent in all matters pertaining to charitable work and interests in which enterprise and enthusiasm of the young people have been engaged. Mr. Hunt's residence in Mexico will probably be of some years' duration.

There are lots of good things to eat today at the Woman's Exchange. Go early and get the choicest.

Mrs. Klotz gave a luncheon on Wednesday to a number of ladies in honor of her sister, Miss Ives, of New York. The guests were: Miss Skinner, of Guilford, Conn; Mrs. Paul Belin, Mrs. Henry H. Brady, jr, Mrs. N. J. Robertson, Miss Belin, Mrs. E. B. Jermyn.

Hon. Alfred Hand and Miss Harriet Hand have gone to New Mexico for a three weeks' trip.

The Mining Engineer' Association has gone on an annual tour which this year takes them to Mexico for a month. Among the Scranton representatives who left yesterday were Mr. William H. Richmond, Miss Richmond, Miss Clara Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Platt, Mrs. Joseph Platt, Miss Platt, Messrs. C. H. Welles and Edward Jones.

Miss Lila Stewart was in the city this week making plans for the big kirmess to be given under the auspices of the Teachers' association in January.

The Woman's Home Companion has a fine portrait of Mr. S. B. Thorne in the current issue as illustrating a foot ball article in whose annals our clever townsman occupies a large sized space.

The first club run of the Scranton Automobile club will take place this afternoon, starting from the court house square and going over the boulevard. The party will be entertained at a supper given by Mr. C. S. Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schank celebrated the fifth anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday night at their home on Sunset avenue.

Preparations for the opera festival are going on with all speed. Mr. and Mrs. Dixie were at the home of Mrs. T. H. Watkins where rehearsals are taking place daily in the pretty dances of the Ballet of the Ages. Prof. Chance who is in charge of the chorus work, is very much pleased with the progress noted in rehearsal. It will be the most elaborate affair of its kind ever given in this city.

The innocent celebration of Hallowe'en has finally become a hoodlum celebration in even the most desirable portion of the city. It was necessary to call the aid of the police to protect property on one of the avenues of the hill.

Miss Bertha Galland will appear at the Lyceum next Thursday evening in "The Forest Lovers." She will doubtless be greeted by the largest audience of the season, in this the city of her birthplace.

Mrs. Everett Warren, who was at the head of the committee under whose auspices Ernest Seton-Thompson appeared at the St. Luke's parish house, Thursday evening, is to be congratulated for the success of that entertainment. It received the unqualified approval of all in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Brooks gave a theatre party in honor of A. E. Hunt, jr., on Saturday night, and the Phi Alphas will have a dinner in his honor on Monday night at the Country club.

Messrs. Clarence Learned and Maxwell, of East Orange, are guests at the home of James Archbald.

Mrs. E. B. Jermyn gave a luncheon on Monday in honor of Mrs. Downey, of Oswego, N. Y. The guests were: Mrs. Downey, Mrs. F. H. Jermyn, Mrs. P. B. Belin, Mrs. H. H. Brady, jr., Mrs. A. C. Twitchell, Mrs. Wainwright, Miss Dale and Miss Clare Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Frank Sisson have issued invitations to the marriage o their daughter, Josephine, to Edward Fuller Nettleton, the ceremony to take place in the Presbyterian church, Ithaca, N. Y., at half after six o'clock. The bride-elect is the sister of Mrs. F. D. McGowan, of this city.

Mrs. Frances B. Swan was one of the guests most warmly greeted on Hallowe'en night at the Country Club.

The marriage of Mr. Mark Edgar and Miss Adda Bone will take place on Wednesday next at noon, in Elm Park church.

Miss Helen Griffin gave a small and most informal musicale on Thursday of Mr. Burton Bloom, who sang delightfully several numbers.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by the O. M. P. club yesterday at the home of Miss Josephine Siebecker. At 5 o'clock refreshments were served.

Invitations have been received to the wedding reception of Miss Alice Louise Peck to Mr. Frank Andrew Kaiser to be held at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Peck, 1724 Monsey avenue, Thursday evening, November 12.

The Young People's society of Christian Endeavor of the Grace Reformed Episcopal church held the second social of the season on Hallowe'en at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pitman, North Irving avenue. Various amusements appropriate to the season were indulged in, and created great merriment. The excellent arrangements of the social committee of the society, seconded by the untiring efforts of Mr and Mrs. Pitman and their family, ensured the success of the gathering.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. E. Walters, Mrs. Davis, the Misses Davis, Evelyn Frear, Elsie and May Ace, A. Ansenian, Ida and May Eck, Laura Waugh, Mary McCulloch, Fannie Scott, Emily Hatch, E. Elliott, May and Minnie Mudley, Bertha Salmon, J. Anspuver, Lulu Wolf, Flora Sweet, Annie and Theresa Mayer, Bess, Grace, Beatrice, Frances and Florence Pitman; Messrs. W. T. Hackett, Henry Cardew, Fred Williams, Archie Whitsel, John Eck, Frank Bower, Will Klumsenreit, James Jordan, John Elliott, John Ridgeway, Joseph Yuenis, Willie Zehner, Harry Mayer, Samuel, John and Will Pitman.

Mrs. Palmer, the secretary of the Freedmen's work in connection with the Presbyterian Home Missionary society, probably made the most distinct impression on the general mind of any visitor at the recent meeting. Mrs. Palmer was a missionary, with her husband, in India for several years. Her five children died and are buried there; the two who still live were born in this country and have reached maturity, but have extremely delicate health. Mrs. Palmer is devoted, heart and soul, to her work among the colored people of the South and has been most successful in that field. During her stay in the city she was the guest of Mrs. James McLeod.

Miss Mabel Dershimer, of South Main avenue, gave a delightful Hallowe'en party to a company of friends, Thursday evening. The usual Hallowe'en games were enjoyed. Prizes were awarded to the persons guessing the contents of a pumpkin, biting apples, etc. Miss Gussie McCarthy, of Miners' Mills, was awarded first prize, a Haviland china rose; Jay Almy, of Peckville, was awarded the booby prize, a china pig, for getting the last apple. Those present were: Misses Anna Cahill, of Wilkes-Barre; Jennie Patten, of Olyphant; Joe Wescott, of Clark's Summit; Bess Almy, Edna Evans, Isabelle Tolemie, Emma Bennett, Lillian Miller, Clara Hughes, Martha Phillips, Miss Kellerman and Mabel Dershimer; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Kellerman, Messrs. Monthello,, of Hawley, and Almy, of Peckville; Robert Sykes, Fred Carpenter, John Gleason, John Williams and Mr. Burton.

Miss Susan Dickinson will give the second in her series of parlor talks, on Tuesday afternoon next, at the home of Mrs. T. H. Watkins. Miss Dickinson has been requested my many, who were unable to be at the first lecture, to connect the two in such a way as to make a satisfactory synopsis of the former for the benefit of those subscribers who were unable to hear the beginning of the subject. Egypt will be the topic considered on this occasion, and a great deal of interest is manifested in the result of the researches so delightfully described by Miss Dickinson. She makes the subject very modern and very much alive, despite the fact that it is rather dusty under the accumulation sifted down in five thousand years of time. Because this lecture is given in the afternoon does not exclude men from the audience. They are invited to be present, as it will be election day, when naturally they will have plenty of time.

A pleasant surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richardson at their beautiful residence at Chinchilla on Halloween, the day being the anniversary of Mrs. Richardson's birth. After a pleasant evening, refreshments were served, and the friends departed for their homes, wishing Mrs. Richardson the return of many happy anniversaries. Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Giles Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Snyder, Miss Bernice Hall, Mr. Nathan Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Ruble, Miss Eunice Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Trimby, Mrs. C. F. Kendall, Major A. I. Ackerley, Mrs. A. I. Ackerley, Miss Helen Leach, Mr. and Mrs. John McNulty, Mr. James Stone, Miss Alice Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leach, Mrs. Samuel Snyder, Miss Gertrude McGreevy, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Peace, Mr. Walter McNulty, Mr. W. N. Leach, Mrs. K. Q. Hawley and Mrs. Anna Krebs.

Movements of People

Mrs. L. G. Schantz, wife of Superintendent of Mails Schantz, is seriously ill.

Illustrated Lectures

by Prof. J. S. Salter (Univ. Paris), late instructor Columbia University, New York, at St. Luke's hall (opposite Lyceum) this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and this evening at 8

HER POINT OF VIEW

EVERY YEAR we say "We never, in all our lives, saw such an autumn as this, never!" We recall all the other autumns of the past when surely it rained or snowed or blew or did something disagreeable. This year it has done nothing but smile and glow and make us wish we could live forever and the day after and have just such weather every minute of the time.

I wonder why we do not stay out of doors more while these glorious days last. We should breathe in every draught of this air before the winter comes on when we shall begin to cough like Hiawatha's squirrel, and sneeze and sniff. For who hath redness of eyes? Why, behold everybody who tries to live in the climate of this particular region from Christmas to April first. It is most ill-tempered and pitiless and unkind to us and we should take every opportunity to improve the shining hour before the gloomy days draw nigh which pinch us with their rawness and deceive us with their falsemildness.

The open air is a great healer of all sorts of trouble and vexations. The wretched annoyances of domestic experience and household cares dwindle into faint grotesque images of what they were, if only one drops them all and starts forth on a little walk in the sunshine. There are a thousand things to divert one in nature besides the gentle excitement of counting the passengers in the cars. There is a group of chattering sparrows in a wrangle over a succulent bread crumb. There is a flash of color in a great clump of chrysanthemums which must unconsciously gladden the heart. There are the wonderful cloud shadows on our mountains to the westward where the soft haze makes dream pictures in these sweet afternoons. There goes a red-coated child a brilliant bit of flame to slip into the foreground of the picture like magic, and here, too, comes the friend you love, repeated often in your brief journey and you pause for a word with her and her kind down the street. Ah! it is a brave fleeing from trouble to flit out into the air on such a day as this. What if there is sewing to be done? What if there is dusting all undone? There will be garments and dust long after we are through with the one and fast sleeping in the quiet clasp of the other. Perhaps we shall not have another beautiful autumn day ever again in all the years. Let us live this glad sunshiny day lent from the vanished summer.

Much of the charm of autumn is the constant feeling in our hearts that every day must be the last, as if we are living on borrowed time and must soon creep desolately into the grave of winter. We forget Browning's dear prophecy that

"Spring shall plant
And autumn garner to the end of time" and say only forlornlingly "Tomorrow the chill will come and the dreary rain." Thus it is that every day seems so surpassingly fair and precious.

What if somebody in the close home life has been petulant and selfish and difficult to live with or without? A flitting into the air, beneath the lovely sky, will restore one's pulse and cause the matter to seem trivial, indeed. Then there are people who find it irksome to do anything for anybody else. To whom a favor to another is a great task and effort, and who perform a kindness so ungraciously that one would far rather have a flat refusal. And they are the kind to run away from, so far that the way back is forgotten. As a contrast the presence of such a walk outside is a paradisical diversion. If one doesn't take this antidote one is rather likely to fall into questioning whether, after all, the selfish person isn't the best off after all. She seems to get all she wants and to do little in return, and that little grudgingly. This system carefully pursued gives her time, saves her energy and the drain of sympathy so constantly in demand from the one who is quick to aid others. She has time for reading, which improves her mind, if not her disposition. She has time to embroider forget-me-nots round little holes she has snipped out of good linen. She has even time to gossip much about everybody she knows.

But then, after all, it is rather doubtful if she has a good time. Now, it isn't always certain, or even probable, that one will get thanks for the majority of things one does, or tries to do for other people. We all know that gratitude is a lively sense of things hoped for, and it is very sensible that most of us have little expectation of thanks. However, the one whose feet are swift to run to the assistance of others, who has a willing hand to extend to the stumbling, who doesn't think it a trouble to go far out of her way to do an obliging act, really has a pretty good time. The reflex action of that sort of life has a tendency to become a happiness manufactory for the owner, and whether such a system of living is ever truly appreciated by the ones who are constantly receiving, or by the world at large, there is reason to believe that one person is tolerably happy and that is the one who isn't thinking so very much about the pursuit of her own happiness.

It was a pleasant thing to hear a fair young girl exclaim the other night: "I like to have all the friends I can possibly get. It makes me perfectly wretched to know that anybody dislikes me."

That is a good start in the life of a young girl. She will succeed, because you know, in this old world of ours, people are rather nice as a whole. They are not apt to actively dislike a person without some tangible reason. This little maiden had solved the problem which many old ladies have never yet thought to be a problem at all. The idea that when she found somebody really disliking her, the fault must be in herself and that somehow she must be in the wrong.

I wish every girl and every woman would read Emerson's "Essay on Friendship" about once a day (to be sure, everybody has not a lovely copy done at the Roycroft shops, all in delicious tan suede as soft as a kitten's paw, such as lies on this desk the present minute), but the inner beauties are in every copy, however cheap, and we women need to count such treasures over often.

Saucy Bess.

UNIONDALE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Uniondale, Nov. 1.—Isaac Curtis is a visitor at the Pan-American. Michael Bradley returned Wednesday morning. Thirty-four of our townspeople have witnessed the marvels at the Pan-American, some having made the journey twice.

Lyman Norton, the energetic agent of the Montrose Democrat, left on a business trip Thursday morning.

J. P. H. Raynor, of Carbondale, who is always a welcome visitor, spent Wednesday night with relatives here.

Revival meetings are in session in the Methodist church. They are conducted by Evangelist Charles Newell.

Myrtis Dimmick, was lest week the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. M. Spoor, of Orson.

Miss Bessie Card, of East oMntrose, was lately entertained by Mrs. John Clark.

Otis Dimmick and son, Theron, made a business trip to Carbondale last Monday.

There will be a veritable avalanche in moving about the fifteenth of the present month. A certain family in Carbondale will make its exit, three families in the town will change localities and one family from Ararat will enter to make its future home here. All are dependent on the first family's move.

The youthful human goblings were exceedingly energetic on Hallowe'en; great many pieces of outof-door furniture were removed and given a new setting. However, the effect was more ridiculous than artistic, when the dawn came.

W. L. Lockwood of Deposit, N. Y., spent Sunday with his family.

Every man, woman and child who will not praise this ideal weather is a traitor to his country and race.

DURYEA.

Revival meetings are being held at the Methodist Episcopal church this week.

Miss Mary Nolan is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Wells, in Scranton.

Mrs. Minor Swingle was a caller at the home of Mrs. Ammerman, recently.

The funeral of Mr. John Leyshon took place on Wednesday, interment being made in Pittston cemetery.

When machine tapers commence to abuse Colonel Hitchcock and belittle his work for good government, it is evident that they are alarmed at the growing sentiment in favor of clean politics, which he represents. If every good man will vote his convictions, Colonel Hitchcock will be elected.

No vote is ever wasted, which carries a conviction with it. This is the way for American freemen to make themselves felt. Vote for Colonel Hitchcock for judge, and thus protest against existing villainous political methods.

Don't forget that the contest for judge is between Colonel Hitchcock and Mr. Newcomb. A vote for Hitchcock is a strike for clean politics and good government, and will certainly count for the right.

The brutality of the Republican editorial of Friday morning upon Colonel Hitchcock renders further notice, even of its gross misrepresentations, entirely unnecessary. To every fair-minded person his record speaks for itself, and upon that he stands.

Colonel Hitchcock will have no personal controversy with the Republican. He is in this fight to win a battle for clean politics and good government, neither of which, it is quite apparent, can be understood or appreciated by the editor of that paper.—Adv.
