NORTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA

PITTSTON.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Pittston, Oct. 31.—Harrison McKeehy and G. B. Robinson, both of Fairdale, Susquehanna county, are visiting at the home of their brother-in-law, W. W. Olmstead, on South Main street, this city. The former has just left the Mercy hospital, Wilkes-Barre, where he underwent an operation for the removal of a portion of one of his hands. Last spring while operating a corn-stalk cuting machine one of his fingers were amputated and with a portion of the hand. Mr. Robinson is here arranging to embark in the meat business.

Mrs. Jacob Leppert, aged 29 years, died this morning at her home on the back road near the Butler mine. She had been ill but a week with pleurisy. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon with interment in the Market stret cemetery.

Daniel Collicot, aged 22 years, died this morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Henry Bauer, on Montgomery street, West Pittston. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon.

A buggy which was stolen from the barn of Paul Bohan on October 18 was last night found in the possession of Patrick Middleton. He was arrested and held under $200 bail by Alderman Barrett.

Charles H. Memory, of West Pittston, has resigned his position as auditor for the Temple Iron company with headquarters at Scranton, and has accepted a similar position with the Webster Coal and Coke company with headquarters at Cresson, Pa.

George L. Hauser, for a number of years a resident of Upper Pittston, during which time he was forwarding agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad company at Coxton, but who of late has resided at Mauch Chunk, where he was employed with the Valley company, will be Mr. Memory's successor.

HONESDALE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Honesdale, Nov. 1.—Quite reigns in the oil region, with the exception of the would-be speculators.

The Nina Dramatic company will hold the boards of the Honesdale opera house all of next week.

The Honesdale Presbyterian church will receive $1000 from the estate of the late Miss Caroline N. Torrey.

An organ recital will be given in Grace church Sunday evening. Mrs. Walter A. Wood will give vocal selections.

Work has been commenced on the Union chanel at Seeleyville. R. H. Brown has the contract.

Misses Carrie Weston, Clara B. Torrey and Amy Clark will serve refreshments on the golf club grounds this (Saturday) afternoon.

As the eve of election approaches, the success of the Republican ticket in Wayne county seems assured. The candidate for county treasurer, C. M. Betz, is asking for the office, because he has earned it. As a citizen, as a business man and as one who can conducts the business of the office as successfully as he has his private business. He asks for the office because he wants it and is ready to walk in. The office of coroner will be ably filled by Dr. F. W. Powell, who is a young man of large experience, and well known throughout the country.

GIBSON.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Gibson, Nov. 1.—Commissioner Harrington was in town on Thursday.

The entertainment at the Methodist Episcopal church was well attended, and they cleared about $10 for the flag.

Mr. Allie Clark and family are visiting his sister, Mrs. Warren Smith, of Union hill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hulbert go to Connecticut this week to visit friends.

F. W. Barrett was in Susquehanna, Monday.

E. L. Hill and R. I. Wescott were in Montrose, on business, Monday.

A number of our people attended the hop at Harlie Thatcher's, Friday night.

Mrs. Charles Empet, of New Milford, is visiting friends in town.

There will be a dance at Alfred Belcher's, Friday evening.

There has been three husking bees the past week, one at B. I. Morgan's, Urlie Craft's and George Morgan's. They husked about 100 bushel of corn at each place.

Curtiss & Potter have dissolved partnership and Curtiss will put a portable mill on his lumber tract.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Houghtaler visited at the home of W. H. Estabrook this week.

Miss Helen Taft, of New Milford, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. C. P. Edwards.

THOMPSON.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Thompson, Nov. 1.—The sportsmen of Jackson have their annual hunt today with supper this evening at "The Central." This is a great day for the boys and it includes a "crackshot" or two from Thompson.

The Revs. French and Skillitt and other delegates from here went to Lawsville today to attend the Free Baptist quarterly meeting there.

Rev. J. F. Warner, P. E. Honesdale district, holds quarterly meeting services for this charge at Starrucca next Sabbath evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Turrell, son and daughter, of Wake, N. Y., Mr. Charles Turrell, wife and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Rhinerault, of Franklin Forks, Davis Turrell of Upsonville; Mr. and Mrs. Austin Thomas, of Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Dey Turrell and Mr. and Mrs. Oren Shaw and child of Binghamton, enjoyed the Turrell reunion at the pleasant home of Mrs. Ada Turrell in this place yesterday and a fine time was had.

Mrs. Ada Turrell and her cousin, Davis Turrell, of Upsonville, are at Buffalo, having left on the night line last night, where they propose to see the closing of the Pan-American.

Artist A. E. Smith, of Heart Lake, visited Prof. J. M. Compton today and photographed his school.

Rev. Leonard Cole is giving us a happy surprise these fine days by walking our streets. The first time he has been able to do so since his prostration in August, 1900.

BREAKS UP CATARRHAL

COLDS

A Cold partly suspends animation, the spirits droop, languor displaces energy; this is the effect of a Cold on the stomach, liver and nervous system—numbed vitality.

The use of Dr. Humphreys' Specific "Seventy-Seven" restores the numbed vitals, makes the blood tingle, relieves the congestion; arouses the sluggish liver, permits the system to cleanse itself, and "breaks up" the Cold.

At all druggists 25 cents, or mailed on receipt of price. Doctors' Book mailed free.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

ATTRACTIONS TODAY.

LYCEUM—"Toll Gate Inn." Afternoon and night.

ACADEMY—Jessie Sawtelle Dramatic company. Afternoon and night.

STAR—European Sensation Burlesquers. Afternoon and night.

"Quality Street."

Maude Adams scored an unquestioned triumph at the Lyceum last night in "Quality Street," the new play written for her by J. M. Barrie, author of "The Little Minister." Never has she appeared to more perfect advantage and never has the Lyceum been the temporary home of a play more enjoyable. What sentiment! What pathos! What comedy! In the instant the laugh is dissolved into the tear of pity, and the tear gives way again to the ripple of mirth as the comedy turns to pathos and back to comedy again with the business of light. The story is a quaint one and has to do with the inhabitants of Quality street in an old English town for some years prior to the battle of Waterloo.

Napoleon is just beginning his conquest of Europe when we are first introduced to Susan and Phoebe Tressel, who live in their own little cottage in Quality street. They are demure and old-fashioned women, leading shall we say lives, and guided mainly in their thoughts and actions by a coterie of more or less old-maidenish females who live in adjoining cottages and who keep close and relentless scrutiny on all their neighbors. The aim of the coterie is to stifle all gaiety sentiment and to discourage any and every tendency towards the tender passion. So it comes to pass that any coupling of a young man's name with a young woman's causes consternation in Quality street, and is a circumstance to be talked, or thought, or dreamed of only with dread and botton. But all the same the little winged chap with the bow and arrows who scatters joy and sorrow as he goes thus his way into the Tressel cottage and takes a hand in giving another hue than grey to the lives of the interesting and old maidens. An affair to love is excited, that is a figurative affair, in the blue and white sitting room of the sisters.

Phoebe, the younger, Phoebe of the Ringlets, not yet out of her teens, and with all the brightness and merriment of her nature held in restraint by her surroundings, falls in love with Valentine Brown, a young physician. She tells Susan, who, in expectation of an offer of marriage from Dr. Brown to her sister, makes Phoebe a present of a wedding gown, prepared for herself eight years before, but never worn, because the faithless suitor saw some else he liked better.

Phoebe is in raptures over the gown and her ringletted little head is full of sweet and glorious dreams. But, alas, when Dr. Brown calls, as Susan and Phoebe both fondly hope, to propose, he has a different story to tell. He has enlisted in the army and is to be off on the morrow to fight the great Napoleon. He simply calls to say good bye and this he does in a quiet, matter-of-fact way. He goes to the war, breaking one heart and sadly disappointing another. Just previous to his departure the news comes that half of their small hoard invested by Dr. Brown for them has been swept away, leaving them comparatively poor and making it necessary for them to adopt some sort of a livelihood. They do not tell Dr. Brown of this, nor do they let him know what other misery his going away will cause.

They turn their white and blue parlor into a school room; Phoebe hides her luxuriant ringlets under a hideous cap, and they enter with a serious purpose and cheerless prospects on the career of schoolma'ams. For nine years they teach, acquiring tired eyes and bursting headaches and occasionally hearing in a friendly way from Dr. Brown. At the end of that time he returns to Quality street and the Tressel cottage. He finds Phoebe very much changed and tells her so. Both he and she are older than they were, he says, and he does not wonder that the tired and wornout schoolma'am does not care to go to the ball in honor of the returned soldiers, to which he has invited her and Susan.

But they do go. Phoebe, doffing her school mistresses' cap, releasing her ringlets and attiring herself in youthful raiment, convinces Captain Brown that she is not Phoebe, but Phoebe's niece, very like the Phoebe he had known, except that she flirts violently with the officers at the ball, something Phoebe never would have done. The Phoebe he sees in the guise of the niece brings home to him the virtues and goodness of the Phoebe of his earlier years, and he discovers he is very much in love with her. After some delightful comedy scenes he is accepted and Susan's wedding dress finds a wearer.

Mere words are weak and poor to do adequate justice to the beauty of Miss Adams' characterization last night. She illumined comedy as it has never before been illumined here, and astonished ever her warmest admirers by the beautiful lights and shades she threw on the character of Phoebe Tressell.

Miss Adams has the support of a magnificent company, which has for its leading members Ida Waterman, Sara Perry, Helen Lowell, Marion Abbott, Sarah Converse, Sydney Brough and Joseph Francoeur. They gave the star the discriminating and artistic support which makes "Quality Street" the delightful play it is.

The staging was beautiful and correct, as it always is in the plays produced by Mr. Frohman, and the incidental music by William Furst was very appropriate. The audience broke all previous records at the Lyceum.

Tonight the company will be seen in Wilkes-Barre. Next week will be spent in New York state, and Monday night, Nov. 11, "Quality Street" will have its first New York production at the Knickerbocker.

"Toll Gate Inn."

Those who remember the beautiful colonial play, "Toll Gate Inn," which scored such an immense hit here two seasons ago, will be glad to learn that it is to be seen at the Lyceum again this afternoon and evening.

"Toll Gate Inn" tells a story of the revolutionary days. It is founded on the battle of Bennington and is easily the best colonial play ever produced. The scenery and costumes are historically correct, and the cast this season is said to be even stronger than before. It will be headed by William Beach, formerly leading man for Joseph Jefferson, John Mathews, Nat Goodwin and other high class attractions.

"Lost River."

Nevertheless instances can be cited of leading men who gave rich promise of a great future in their profession being ruined intellectually by the vanity engendered through the admiration and fulsome praise of matinee maids and matrons. It is a pleasure to see that matinee idol, Paul Gilmore, forging steadily ahead and achieving success.

Last season as King Charles in "Mistress Nell" the matinee contingent at Wallack's, on Broadway, would have turned the head of a majority of players with their flattery and gush, but Gilmore survived the ordeal and is making a big impression as the hero of Joseph Arthur's pastoral melodrama, "Lost River," which had a six months runs in New York, and will be seen here at the Lyceum next Tuesday night with a cast of thirty-five people.

"Brixton Burglary."

The excellent company of comedians, which includes no less than three legitimate stars, and which will present "The Brixton Burglary" at the Lyceum theater next week, is to be kept intact by Manager Shubert for the annual production of a new comedy.

It is already announced that the next comedy will be "In the Soup," which succeeded "The Brixton Burglary" at the Strand theater, London, after duplicating its predecessor's run of over 200 consecutive nights. At the Lyceum next Wednesday afternoon and night.

Election Returns by Special Wire.

Full and complete election returns from all parts of the county will be read from the stage of the Lyceum theater Tuesday evening (election night) during the action of Joseph Arthur's latest and great success, "Lost River," by special direct wires.

Greater Than Madame Sans Gene.

Every report that has reached this city concerning "Molly Pitcher," Kathryn Kidder's new play is of a most flattering nature. It is freely predicted that Miss Kidder's success will be greater even than that she attained in "Madame Sans Gene."

Miss Kidder's managers have surrounded her with one of the strongest companies organized this season. Miss Kidder in "Molly Pitcher" will shortly appear at the Lyceum.

Academy of Music.

The Jessie Sawtelle Dramatic company played "An Egyptian Princess" yesterday afternoon and "The Long Strike" last night before two large audiences. Both performances gave great satisfaction and were well staged.

Interesting and clever specialties were introduced between the acts at both performances. This afternoon the bill will be "Country Courtship" and tonight attraction is "The Golden West."

The Huntley-Harris Stock Company.

The Huntley-Harris Stock company will open a two weeks engagement at the Academy of Music on Monday evening in "An Innocent Sinner," a scenic production well and favorably known here by their splendid production last season. This company will give twenty-three performances during their stay in Scranton, changing the bill at each performance, with an extra vaudeville attraction between the acts. At the different performances some of the largest scenic productions will be presented, including "For Liberty and Love," "The Commodore," "An Innocent Sinner," "Davy Crockett," "Knobs O'Tennessee," "The New Dominion," "The Fatal Card," "A Southern Gentleman," "Because I Love You," "The Degenerate," "Pink Dominoes."

Those who remember the performance of "The Tornado," "The Fast Mail," and "The World" last season by this company will not doubt it when they say that they carry a car-load of scenery and effects, with everything complete for each production. The past two seasons reputation of this company is a positive guarantee of their present worth.

Watson's Oriental Burlesquers.

The Star offers for its attraction next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Watson's Oriental Burlesquers, said to be one of the best organizations of its kind extant. The company is composed of comedians who are funny and who do not have to resort to anything suggestive to give their work a funny semblance.

The performance begins with a farcical burletta entitled "In Ladysmith," in which all the latest musical successes are incidentally introduced, followed by an olio of vaudeville acts in which are cast Jeanette Dupree, Charles Johnson and company, Belle Gordon, John Weber, Howard Earle, Laxard Brothers, Kittie Clements, West and Williams.

The performance concludes with that up-to-date extravaganza, "The Buffaloes," a side-splitting finish to a very laughable evening's entertainment.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Nov. 1.—The prevailing unsettlement of speculative sentiment was well illustrated by the widely diverse opinions expressed as to the effect of the renewal of government bonds purchases by the treasury. The wavering sentiment shifted somewhat to the optimistic side late in the day when it became known that the offerings of bonds at the sub-treasuries already amounted to $1,282,000, thus promising considerable relief to the money market. There was a rather animated buying movement in the last hour, which turned the market strongly upward and left prices at the top level of the day. A few stocks showing striking gain and the leaders in activity are a point above yesterday in a number of cases. Baltimore and Ohio was conspicuous in the late dealings and it rose 2¾ without definite news. Pennsylvania had the benefit of the extra dividend declaration, thus making the return to shareholders 6 per cent. for the calendar year, or the same as last year. The preliminary figures of the movement of cash disclosed the fact that the current of the interior movement had turned toward New York, the net gain as a result of the direct express shipments amounting to $1,870,877.

There were a number of conspicuous movements. Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie rose 4, the preferred, 10; Peoria Marquette, 4; New York, Chicago and St. Louis first preferred, 3½; Glucose, 2¾; National Salt preferred, 4; New York Central Coal company and Wells-Fargo, 5. Northern Pacific preferred gained 2, and Great Northern preferred, 1¾. The local tractions were strong and the Southern railway stocks, Louisville and Nashville, New York Central, Hocking Valley and the stocks of car companies showed strength. Sugar was heavy on the cut in price by a competitor, Evansville and Terre Haute dropped 1. Total sales today, 657,900 shares.

Railroad bonds were quite active and irregular. Total sales par value, $2,880,000.

United States 4s advanced ½, the remaining 2s and old 4s, ½, the 5s, ¾, and the new 4s ½ per cent. on the last call.
