"MABON" TALKS TO CARBONDALE MINERS

In an Earnest Address Delivered in the Grand Opera House the Great Welsh Labor Leader Urges the Men of the Mines to Form Boards of Conciliation to Redress Their Wrongs-Hon. S. S. Jones, Hon. James J. O'Neill, President Judge Edwards and Dr. H. J. Whalen Make Brief Addresses.

Hon, William Abrahams, the grea-Welsh labor leader, the beloved representative of the Welsh miners in the British parliament, who is endeared dresses were made by Hon. J. J. among his fellows by the title of "Ma-O'Nelll, Rev. Or. H. J. Whalen and bon"-- "son of his country"-- spoke last night to the United Mine Workers of Carbondalo:

The stormy weather militated against the attendance and kept many a miner from attending, whose home was on the outskirts and who would have had to trudge through snow and cold to reach the Grand opera house to hear the noted representative and leader of his own people. The miners and others a number of them prominent citizens. merchants, professional men, and the like, were inspired with enthusiasm. and as Judge Edwards aptly expressed it, the audience, like Milton's, though

The pith of Mr. Abrahams' talk wa the formation of boards of conciliation to redress their wrongs, and he urged, Mrs. W. L. Pierce), man would or could deny that the aims and objects of the united miners justitied the cause of their existence. Too often the law of supply and demand but the sinew and blood of the workingman on the low level of merchandise. When the workingman's life was continually endangered by his toll, it would be cruel to ank it as merchandise. By wages, h meant that portion which would not only allow the miners to feed and clothe and provide a decent habitation, but allow him sufficient to lay aside for his support for the days that he would no longer be able to earn by his daily this juncture. Mr. Abcahams delved into the pith of his talk, the settlement of industrial troubles by conelliation, and if not conciliation, aroutration, but never by the cruel lock-out or the foolish strike. The great trusts of the capitalists of this country are forming have no fear for him, he continued, for these would give the workmen all the more reason to become stronger and meet them on equal ground; that these great organizations of capital would find that their representatives would meet with the representatives of the workmen and by and of the sword of reason and cannon balls of common sense, understand the troubles and settle them without resort to the cruel law of retaliation.

There are two sides to every ques tion, and this is all that he would ask the great capitalists-that they would recognize the right of the workmen to show their side of the question: to meet around the table and, as to man, talk over their trouble sift them, conciliate them and settle

An important consideration was the language which the intners should use when presenting their requests. proach, he said, in a respectful way be gentlemen; use no threats, but depend upon persuasive remarks to bring about your employers to your way of looking at your troubles; then you will find that you will be met half way, it not more than half way.

Mr. Abrahams regretted that he did not see more of an equality in this country between the colliery owner and the colliery employe, and he sharply rebuked the former for his insistence in keeping away from his men and shatting his eyes to the recognition of their rights. This recognition was one of the principle things to be fought for by means of organization. He was glad to notice how this question of capital and labor was prominent in the sermons of the pastors in their Thanksgiving day utterances. He also noted the feeling of fear that ran through them all as to the results of the bargain that was to be struck next April between the anthraelte mine owners and their workmen. There scemed to be something in the very but, said he, with vehemener it will be the fault of the capitalists if they refuse to recognize the rights

One doctor of divinity, he continued criticises us severely because we say we have rights as workingmen. As to the present strike in Scranton I think it ought to be settled in a day. Probably the cause of the strike is not just; of that I cannot say, but there is no reason why these parties could not meet with each other. I hate the boycott as hard as any man can, but I claim the right of the workingman to defend the rights of his which this doctor would deny. This man says that idlers have no rights to live, but e is not speaking of idlers; he is peaking of workers. The alternative that he offers is that if you don't care o work for a man you have the right of liberty and can go where you please to work, but what about the black list' What is a man to do when he leaves e man's employment and his name is handed round to other employers o as to deny him the right to work Where is the liberty? In conclusion, he renewed his counse to the miners to unite for the formation of boards of conciliation which would remove their trouble. Prior to "Mabon's" talk, short ad-

M'COMB FAMILY REUNION

One of the Most Remarkable Gather ings in the City's History-Father, Mother, Seven Sons and Three Daughters, All Enjoying Good

The most remarkable family gatherng at a Thanksgiving day dinner, of which we have any knowledge, was that held Thursday, at the home of Mr. and street. Their names follow:

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McComb. of 21 Garfield avenue: Hugh McComb, jr., of the "sword of reason" and "cannon delphia; David McComb, of Scranton, balls of common-sense" to settle their Pa.; Henry McComb, of Brooklyn, N. A family of twelve, composed of ather, mother, seven sons and three daughters, all in good health and averaging in age 48 years, was gathered around a table sumptuously prepared for the occasion, while at an adjoining table were seated the wives, husbands and children of the boys and girls of the McComb family

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McComb came rom New York city to Carbondale in 1850, and for fifty-one years our city has been their home. John McComb was born in New York city. The other nine children first saw the light of day in Carbondale, two of whom were born in a dwelling which stood on the site of J. F. GREAT G. A. R. EVENT.

Davies' Post Inspection Proved to Be All That Was Desired to Make It Remembered as the Best Exemplification of Ritual Work Seen in This City.

On Wednesday evening Davies' post headquarters was crowded with comrades who had assembled to participate in the annual Grand Army Inspection Among the visitors there came from Scranton a large delegation from Ezra S, Griffin post to witness the work of Commander McComb, and to make a fraternal call on the members of the order in this city, From information gathered from rehable sources it is admitted that Colonel McComb has infused new life in city, and that during the last year he has performed the duties of commanded with more fidelity and military precision than has been manifested here n a score of years.

An inspection properly performed means that all of the forms and cerenonies pertaining to Grand Army work shall be fully observed, and that complete exemplification of all the fine ritual literature shall be rendered orally without the aid of any manueript or print.

Knowing Colonel McComb's ability to orate and declaim, his comrades felt that his rendition of every detail would be put to a high standard. They were gratified with what they saw and heard, and they attested it in unmistakable ways.

Commander McComb ascribes great praise to his comrades who assisted him in the interesting ceremony, and to Officer of the Day Christopher Shultz he makes special allusion for his efficiency and zeal.

A portion of the evening was devoted to an interchange of courtesies beween the local and visiting comrades. Inspector Officer W. S. Jones began a series of interesting talks. Cigars ere passed, and, as they were placidly incinerated, Comrades E. W. Pearce, Halsey Lathrope and G. S. The poor board met last night in regular session, Chairman Thomas being the only absentee. McCabe was made Mr. McCabe, for the farm committee, reported that he had been to the farm ith Director McMillan and found a leak in the dam, as much water running out as there was running in. The water in the front is now seven feet in depth, and if the leak is repaired the farm would have a dam to be proud of. Mr. McMillan thought that the dam should be attended to. Λ bill from the city was read for two years' rent, $120 for the year ending April 1, for that year having been lost and the bill never paid. An order was drawn, by motion, for $120, to be paid to the city for the rental in 1898.

Tax Collector Barrett was before the board and desired permission to secure legal opinions from the board's attorney with respect to the collecting of taxes on several properties. The mission was granted.

Mr. McCabe reported that he had been to see the attorney in relation to the bill of Mr. Kirby. The attorney's opinion was that the bill, which has been before the board for some time. e pald. On motion, a warrant was drawn for the amount.

One of the directors wanted something done in relation to the case of a voman on Fallbrook street who was sessiving ald from the poor board and was always drunk, leaving her children to be taken care of by the neighbors. The directors were of the opin on that this state of affairs should go on until the neighbors came before the board and stated the facts of the case

Another case which puzzled the members was a bill from L. Brauer for 34. The bill was for stuff given a woman who had made affidavit before one alderman, stating she was in She did not present the affidavit to any poor director, nor did any direc-tor authorize Mr. Brauer to give her stuff. A Balky Gun in the "Barbara Frietchie" Performance-Salary Bothers a Prospective Stage Light. Among the stories that are being discussed on the street is the incident or accident of the evening performance of 'Barbara" Frietchie" on Thanksgiving which was similar to the one in Katheryn Kidder's "Molly Pitcher" when the cannon's perversity spoiled the climax of the play.

In this case it was the cannon's younger brother, the army gun, that caused the trouble. At the end of the second act, when Barbara's lover is in danger of the sharpshooter she arms herself with a gun and before the latter has a chance to do his mischief she fires and wings him. Barbara pulled the trigger right enough, but there was no report; the cap was defective. The firing of the gun was supposed to furnish a strong climax to the scene, but when it falled to make a noise, the situation fell flat. Laughter tittered round the house, at the farce-like tabeaux. "Barbara," the sharpshooter and the minister's wife stood transfixed, waiting for the curtain to drop o relleve their embarrassment. The curtain man's cue was the firing of the shot. But there was no shooting street. and naturally no curtain came down. Finally the minister's wife in the extremity of the ordeal, exclaimed;

'Ring down the curtain!" By this time the stage hands realized there was something occurring that was not on the programme. It quired only an instant to take in the situation and to try to cover the balking of the gun somebody back of the scenes fired a shot that sounded more like a cap pistol than a gun. It seemed like the echo of a discharge a mile away. This was fully a half minute Davies' post since his return to our lafter "Barbara's" accident with her misbehaved gun. The curtain then came down with a lightning roll and just after it dropped there was a loud report, the shot that "Barbara" should ave fired which she didn't.

"The war's not over yet," said some one in the audience loud enough to explode the laughter that was being suppressed. In the next act when the poor sharpshooter appeared with his hand tied up in bandages everybody smiled again and wondered if "Barbara's" gun was not one of the new fangled kind that does damage with no noise,

This story recalls one that is connected with the production of "Lov-er's Lane" which will take place at the Grand during the coming week. Frank Tralles, who has charge of the supernumeraries or, in less elegant language, the "supers" for the valage scenes, encountered a lad who has been on the stage before and who has a fixed, definite idea of his stage presence. Mr. Tralles indicated to the young man what would be expected of him if he would be willing to take part in the play. The prospective Nat Goodwin gave no decided answer, but said he would consult his parents to get that permission. He turned suddenly, saying in characteristic style: "Say, if you're to get me, what's going to be the salary."

Delightful Social Gathering.

There was a happy gathering at the nome of Alfred Pascoe, on Thanksgiving night. It was really a hig family gathering. The members of the official board of the Methodist church were there to celebrate the seventieth birthday of Mr. Pascoe. They came unknown to him, but the surprise was such a genuine one that his welcome was all the warmer. It was at the solicitation of Mrs. Pascoe and children that the guests came and gave Mr Pascoe such a splendid surprise on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. After the party enjoyed a pleasant ocial chat, the dining-room was visited, where everybody found an inviting menu before him. A birthday cake was in the midst of the good things, with seventy lighted candles about it. ily, and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Edwards Speeches and felicitations followed. In the afternoon, the following gath-

AN OPEN LETTER

Addressed to Women by the Treasurer of the W.C.T.U. of Kansas City, Mrs. E. C. Smith.

"My DEAR SISTERS: — I believe in advocating and upholding everything that will lift up and help women, and but little use appears all knowledge and learning if you have not the health to enjoy it.

"Having found by personal experience that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine of rare virtue, and having seen dozens of cures where my suffering sisters have been dragged back to life and usefulness from an untimely grave simply by the use of a few bottles of that Compound, I must proclaim its virtues, or I should not be doing my duty to suffering mothers and dragged-out housekeepers.

"Dear Sister, is your health poor, do you feel worn out and used up, especially do you have any of the troubles which beset our sex, take my advice; let the doctors alone, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: it is better than any and all doctors, for it cures and they do not."-Mrs. E. C. Smith, 1212 Oak St., Treasurer W. C. T. U., Kansas City, Mo.

MRS. E. C. SMITH.

What is left for the women of America after reading such a letter as the shove, but to believe. Don't some of you who are sick and miserable feel how wicked you are to remain so, making life a burden for yourself and your friends when a cure is easily and inexpensively obtained? Don't you think it would pay to drop some of your old prejudices as Mrs. Smith says, and "Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is better than all the doctors for cures?" Surely, the experience of hundreds of thousands of women whom the Compound has cured should convince all women of the wisdom of taking the advice that Mrs. Smith offers in her letter above published.

Read What Mrs. Burnham says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: -Words fail to express how thankful I am to you for your advice, and I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham' Vegetable Compound. I was sick for three years with female weakness. I had dizzy spells, headache, backache, feet and hands were cold all the time, would get tired and faint very easy. I also had dropsy and was troubled with leucorrhœa. I suffered for two weeks before each menstrual period and my ovaries would swell very badly. I took lots of medicines from doctors, but received no benefit. To please my husband I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now a well woman, and your Compound slone did it."—Mrs. H. W. BURNHAM, Russell, Mich. (Jan. 31, 1901).

Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that these thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills. Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want —a cure. Moral — Stick medicine that you know is Best. Write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

AAA REWARD. — We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $500 which will be onld to any person who can find that the above testimonial letter are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special per mission.
