Eloquent Addresses by Colonel F. J. Fitzsimmons, and Wesley E. Woodruff, of Wilkes-Barre.—Recitations by Dan L. Hart, of Wilkes-Barre, and Miss Bessie Sloat.—Musical Numbers by Bauer's Orchestra and Others.—Exercises Conducted by Exalted Knight Sol Goldsmith.

Scranton lodge, No. 125 Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, conducted its annual memorial service, or lodge of sorrow, yesterday afternoon in the large meeting hall of the Elk club rooms, on Franklin avenue, in the presence of a full membership and many lay and other friends of the organization.

Formerly, these exercises were held in the Levant and were attended by usually a throng that crowded the theater. This year the committee decided to make the services more private, and accordingly arranged to hold them in the meeting room and to have each man

THE CONCLUDING SERVICE.

Held in the Church of Good Shepherd Yesterday.

The final services in connection with the thirty-third anniversary of the Church of the Good Shepherd, was held yesterday at 10:30 a. m. at Rev. Leighton Coleman, D. D., bishop of Philadelphia, presided, the sermon from the text, "Lord what will Thou have me to do?"—Acts 9:6. Bishop Coleman also addressed the Sabbath school, and the Bible class of the Young Men's club in the afternoon.

The evening service was by the pastor, Rev. Francis A. Bateman. The text, "Arise and go into the city and it shall be told what thou must do," taken from the same verse as the morning text.

THE BOYCOTT AND THE BLACK LIST

Referred to by Bishop Hoban in His Sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral Yesterday.

In the course of his sermon at the High Mass at the cathedral yesterday (Nov. 25), Bishop Hoban took occasion to refer to the so-called "black list" which is being circulated in various parts of the city and referred to the same as the "black list" of the city.

There are occasions when the most that can be said against a boycott is that it is a breach of Christian charity. Again there are occasions when the boycott is justified, as in the case of the boycott of the goods of the South African Republic, which even this cannot be rightfully alleged. For instance a person who is egregiously wronged by some merchant is justified in refusing to trade with him, and not that he is boycotting.

MAN'S DEBT TO ALMIGHTY GOD

SERMON BY REV. BISHOP LEIGHTON COLEMAN.

The Head of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware Preached Last Night in St. Luke's Church—Emphatically Declared That a Tenth of Every Man's Gross Income Belongs to God—Sabbath Observance of Present Day and of the Long Ago Compared.

Rev. Bishop Leighton Coleman of the Episcopal diocese of Delaware, a Christian who has a national reputation as a theologian and nation builder, delivered a sermon last night in St. Luke's church, in which he eloquently and forcefully explained the real meaning of stewardship and exhorted his listeners to render unto God what is His.

There are in the world today two ideas which are warring one with the other, each seeking supremacy. These are the ideas of proprietorship and stewardship. The idea of proprietorship is the idea which finds an abiding place in the heart of every man.

There are too many in these days who are living on this idea of proprietorship and who grow restive when told that they are not members of a voluntary society in which they can do as they please, but rather of the kingdom of heaven here on earth.

HIS GREATEST THOUGHT.

One of the greatest of Americans, Daniel Webster, was once asked what was the greatest thought he ever had. He replied, after a moment's hesitation, "The thought of my individual responsibility to Almighty God." It is a great thought, what do I owe to God? That is a question that will not down. Men may seek to stifle it, to smother it away with platitudes and pompousness, but it must of necessity arise. It demands an unswerving answer.

In considering this question, one of the most important things which must be taken into consideration is its relation to the observance of the Sabbath. What an utter ignorance of the sacredness of the Lord's day can be found today among professing Christians—disciples, followers, also, even imitators of Jesus of Nazareth. How shameful the inconsistency of these people. How shameful the contrast between the observance of the Sabbath in the early days of this great country of ours and its observance today.
