

An Excellent Combination.

The present method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectively, dispersing local conditions, so frequently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its action on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are removed their medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.

Bronx by all Druggists.—Price, per bottle.

The opening of the Winter Season should tell you considering home comfort and enjoyment. Nothing adds more to cheerfulness and beauty of the home than an artistic array of pictures appropriately named.

We have the largest and finest line of Pictures and Frames in the city.

Jacobs & Fasold.

209 WASHINGTON AVENUE.

We will continue giving to each lady visitor this week, absolutely free, a handsome Platinum Reproduction.

City Notes.

BALL TONIGHT.—The third annual ball of the Manhattan Social club will be held at Appleton Hall tonight.

MUET TODAY.—The Central Women's Christian Temperance union will meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the hall.

NOT WITH MALONEY COMPANY.—The John Maloney arrested Saturday for assault and battery was not employed by the Maloney Old company.

REV. CLIFFORD'S LECTURE.—At the Callicoe Historical Society and Newman Magazine club this evening Rev. C. Clifford will deliver a lecture. He is a gifted orator and an eminent scholar.

INQUEST POSTPONED.—The inquest on the case of James Curran, which was to have been held last night in the court house, was postponed until tomorrow night on account of the absence of several witnesses.

STUDENTS IN MEMBER POOL.—The pools of No. 35 school made three worthy members, based on Thanksgiving by sending them very liberal donations of groceries, canned goods and vegetables, and also some money.

THANKSGIVING CONTRIBUTION.—The Home for the Friendless, along with gratitude, the receipt of $187 contributed as a Thanksgiving day offering to the congregation of the Welsh Congregational church of Providence.

ALL DAY SCHOOLS.—An all day meeting of the Christian and Disciples of Christ will be held today in the George Tabernacle, Second Avenue, Dumont, Nov. 3, H. Ballou, of Dumont, N. Y., will be the speaker. Sessions will begin at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

MARRIED AT CHURCH.—Robert Hunter, Jr., of Ashley, and Miss Rose Hart, of Scranton, were united in marriage on Thanksgiving eve at the rectory of the Holy Cross church by Rev. W. P. O'Donnell. They were attended by Thomas Statt, of Dumont, and Miss Margaret Burke, a sister of the bride. They will reside on Elmwood street.

NON-BIBLE STUDIES.—Arrangements have been made for Monday Bible studies at the Hall and Young Men's Christian Association Tuesday and Friday, beginning today. Hot coffee will be served without cost. The study will be held from 12:15 to 1:15 o'clock. We shall be glad to see you on "non-bible" Tuesday evenings. W. B. Stone will lead on Friday with a study of "The Sunday School Lesson."

TALK POSTPONED.—The incident which has prevented the attendance of the local number of ladies holding camp tickets for Miss Susan E. Dickenson's parlor talks at the closing eve of the series on Saturday afternoon, those present thought well of a postponement of the talk to a more favorable day. It will be held on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Eaton, and the cost of admission will be 50 cents. It is expected that the room on that day shall not prove scarce. It should be so the talk on Babylonian and Assyrian literature will await another audience.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.—The state convention of the Knights of Columbus will be held Dec. 1 and 2 next in this city, when upwards of nine hundred delegates, representing twenty-one councils with a membership of about 9,000, will be in attendance. A special meeting of Scranton council will be held tomorrow night, when a vote will be taken on the convention with the understanding that if a majority of the delegates shall not be elected, it is proposed to combine the council's annual dinner for this year with a reception for the visiting delegates.

MINISTERS MEET.—The Methodist ministers association, consisting of twenty-nine ministers, met yesterday evening at the First Methodist Church, 10th and Franklin streets, and the services were conducted by Rev. E. P. M. D. Miller, of Dumont, who gave an address on "Some Socialistic Thoughts That May Please Us." The address provoked some whole-some discussion. Members present were Revs. E. P. Miller, T. R. Miller, J. Remond, J. Madison, W. H. Parker, J. R. Parker, W. M. Moore, A. B. Gage, C. M. Gilmer, G. H. Clark, S. C. Shapley, A. C. Cox, D. S. Bradley, T. Kendall.

TEN NOW AT WORK.

Trolley Company Is Gradually Re-entering Its Force from the Ranks of the Strikers.

Ten of the former employees of the street car company who were on strike are back at work on the cars, four more are to return today, and the company says there are thirty applications now on file from men who will likely be put to work as fast as places can be found for them.

Cars were run late last night on the South Main, Providence, Green Ridge Peoples, Green Ridge suburban Quincy avenue and Petersburg lines. Late cars will be put on the Laurel Hill and other lines in the course of a few days.

The company claims the patronage on some of the lines has now resumed almost its normal proportions, and that on some lines there is a gradual but constant increase.

At the meeting of the strikers yesterday morning the written proposition of the company resulting from the conference of Saturday afternoon was submitted to the men and rejected by an unanimous vote. The proposition will be recalled, contained simply a reiteration of the offer the company has held out all along, that is, that it would take back as many of the men as were suitable and for whom it had places. The strikers propose to make a counter proposition, it is said, returning their ultimatum, that all the men must be taken back in a body, as a union at a flat rate of twenty cents an hour.

Cars were run late last night on the South Main, Providence, Green Ridge Peoples, Green Ridge suburban Quincy avenue and Petersburg lines. Late cars will be put on the Laurel Hill and other lines in the course of a few days.

The company claims the patronage on some of the lines has now resumed almost its normal proportions, and that on some lines there is a gradual but constant increase.

At the meeting of the strikers yesterday morning the written proposition of the company resulting from the conference of Saturday afternoon was submitted to the men and rejected by an unanimous vote. The proposition will be recalled, contained simply a reiteration of the offer the company has held out all along, that is, that it would take back as many of the men as were suitable and for whom it had places. The strikers propose to make a counter proposition, it is said, returning their ultimatum, that all the men must be taken back in a body, as a union at a flat rate of twenty cents an hour.

Memorable Gatherings.

The eighth convention was held in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 11 to 14, 1888, and is memorable for the large number of delegations and the large number of speakers on the platform, and the adoption of the resolution of the Knights of Columbus.

Arrivals Last Night.

Last night's arrivals included the following: William Peleg, of Chicago, who was elected president of the Seamen's union at the convention just ended in Buffalo; William H. Frazer, of Boston, secretary of the seamen; W. J. Spencer, of Chicago, general organizer of the plumbers; Frank P. Coles, of Idaho, president of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers; John H. Kennedy, of Toronto, first vice-president of the sheet metal workers; E. J. Lynch, of New York, president of Metal Workers' Federation; H. G. Hart, of Utica; John L. Kerr, of Syracuse; and W. L. Motz, of New York, delegate.

The convention is to be a boy's feast by any manner of means. According to the utterances of the vanguard of delegates, it is to be one of the liveliest sessions the federation has ever had.

"Autonomy" is to be the big bone of contention. The principal fight will be between the miners on the one side and the stationary engineers and firemen on the other. C. L. Shamp, of Chicago, international secretary-treasurer of the miners, whose controversy with President T. J. Nichols, of the United Mine Workers, is still fresh in the mind of newspaper readers, said last night that this dispute will be the main item of business for the convention's consideration. The firemen, he said, will go into the convention determined to secure recognition of the autonomy of each trade, and the promotion and advancement of such bodies and the ending and extinguishing of the labors of America.

The second convention of the American Federation of Labor, but the seventh consecutive and gathering of delegates from trade and labor unions, was held in Baltimore, Md., Dec. 15, 1887. This convention represented 2,011 unions or branches, and a total membership of 600,000 members in good standing, as against 300,000 of the year previous, thus vindicating the wisdom of the change adopted at Columbus, O.

Memorable Gatherings.

The eighth convention was held in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 11 to 14, 1888, and is memorable for the large number of delegations and the large number of speakers on the platform, and the adoption of the resolution of the Knights of Columbus.

Arrivals Last Night.

Last night's arrivals included the following: William Peleg, of Chicago, and A. Furniss, of San Francisco, comprise a delegation of the Seaman's union, who are vigorously opposing attempted encroachments on their jurisdiction. The hotel and restaurant employees are demanding jurisdiction over the cooks and waiters on ships, and the firemen and engineers want to take from the engineers and boilermakers employed on ships. They do not propose to have these things done, and are on hand early to campaign against them.

A Reception and Smoker.

Postmaster Ripple will be the opening number of the entertainment programme. The Central Labor union will march in a body to Hotel Jermyn headed by Lawrence's band and escort the officers and delegates to the hall. General Secretary-Treasurer Max Morris, of the clerks' association will be one of the principal speakers.

Saturday night there will be a mass meeting at Music Hall, at which President Gompers will be the central figure. The general public is invited to attend this meeting.

A complimentary concert to be conducted by Haydn Evans will be tendered the delegates at the Lyceum Sunday night. Many of the city's most celebrated vocalists and instrumentalists will participate. Tuesday night the delegates will be given a banquet in the University college hall. Banquet orchestra will finish the music.

The tenth annual convention was held in Detroit, Mich., on Dec. 8, 1890, and remained in session six days. One hundred and three delegates were present, representing eighty-eight organizations, and the total number of trade and labor unions reported having established 95 branches in the same time; these were successful, 56 bad and 39 discontinued. All reported an increase of wages from seven to twenty-five per cent, except one, which was 10 per cent. The amount of increased compensation, amounting to $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.

Luther Keller didn't believe it would be right to make the property owners in the central part of the city, who have already paid for pavements, pay for the permanent repair of streets in other parts of the city. It would be a double tax, he said. Mr. Roche answered this argument by saying: "That's it, there's too much building after individual interests and not after the interests of the city at large. That spirit is what has retarded the growth of Scranton more than anything else."

The director then went on to explain that the issue of $300,000 worth of bonds at four per cent for thirty years would result in an annual charge of $22,000 or about the same as the amount now appropriated for repairs. Continuing he said:

"Good streets reduce the expense of every business man; lessen the cost of repair to vehicles; reduce the time of delivering of merchandise; diminish distance; increase the value of property; add to the pleasure, comfort and health of the residents; make the city more attractive and desirable as a home; invite the favorable attention of visitors and establish beyond question the progressiveness, prosperity, good taste and public spirit of the citizens of a city."

There was a general discussion of Director Roche's paper and considerable opposition to his plan was manifested.

J. A. Lansing thought that the only satisfactory solution of that problem lay in the paving of as many of the city's streets as possible.