smashed them up. The defendant claimed that he only smashed the box in which the tools were kept, and that, at any rate, he had the perfect righ to smash the tools if he desired, because Mehklo had given them to him in payment of a debt.

Annie Wargo, aged 10 years, was tried on a charge of aggravated assault and battery, preferred by Mary Konier, aged 9 years. Both children live in Olyphant, and the prosecution sought to show that the Wargo child had turned the other girl around suddenly, causing her to fall and break her arm. The defense was that the child had broken her arm by falling from a pile of ties on which she was playing. Judge Edwards directed that a verdict of no guilty be taken, and said that the parents should be ashamed of themselves for bringing such little children into

Mrs. Margaret Jenkins was tried on the charge of assaulting her motherin-law, Mrs. Sarah Jenkins. Both parties live in Blakely in two houses on the same lot, and the alleged assault grew out of a quarrel caused by Jenkins leaving his wife and going to live with his mother. Mrs. Sarah Jenkins claimed that she went to see her daughter-in-law and that the latter knocked her down stairs with a broom Mrs. Margaret Jenkins claims that her mother-in-law slipped and fell down stairs. A THROOP CASE.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dickson, charged with assault and battery by Mrs. Margaret McMahon, and Mr. and Mrs. Barney McMahon, charged with assault and battery by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dickson, were all tried together before Judge Kelly. The evidence adduced would tend to show that all the parties concerned were intoxicated, and that the affair was a sort of general fight. All live on the boulevard in Throop. The jury was out when court ad-
