BLACKSMITH'S NARROW ESCAPE

DRANK CARBOLIC ACID IN MISTAKE FOR SNAKE ROOT.

Andrew Williams, of Stark Court, saved from an agonizing death by prompt assistance—William Raymond fractured his leg. Candidate Cawley ineligible for Common Council—Barrett held for further hearing—Events of this evening—Other notes.

Andrew Williams, of No. 10 Stark court, a blacksmith in the employ of Drayman Fred Post, took a dose of carbolic acid in mistake for snake root and whiskey yesterday at noon, and but for the nearness of Dr. D. J. Jenkins would probably have died.

Mr. Williams has been taking the mixture of snake root and whiskey as a precautionary remedy against cholera, and after drinking yesterday went to a medicine chest in the house for the bottle containing his medicine.

Alongside of it was a similar bottle containing carbolic acid, which his wife had been using as a disinfectant, and in his haste, Williams took up the bottle containing the acid by mistake, and drank a quantity of it.

He soon discovered his mistake, and his wife ran screaming from the house in search of a physician. Dr. Jenkins was passing by at the time, and hastily answered the call, and saved Williams' life. He is now out of danger, and will soon be around again.

Held for Further Hearing.

Patrick Barrett, of South Seventh street, who was arrested Monday night for abusing his family and for committing an assault on Constable Timothy Jones, who dined yesterday, was given a hearing in police court yesterday morning. He was held for a further hearing to await the result of Jones' injuries.

The latter was confined to his room yesterday, and may not be able to leave the house for several days. Barrett was also held without bail for his appearance at court on the original charge, preferred by his wife, of making threats and abusing her.

Cawley Ineligible.

Attorney Matthew Cawley, who was nominated for common council by the Republicans of the Fourteenth ward, is ineligible for the office, not having Vaccination. At Dr. Kolb's office 8 to 9 a. m.; 1 to 4 p. m.

NUBS OF PUFF. Mid-week services will be held this evening in the Hickory Street German Presbyterian church.

An important meeting of Division 22, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held in St. John's hall last evening.

The Athletic club's masque ball will take place February 5, and will be a grand affair. Lawrence's full orchestra has been engaged.

The eighth annual ball of the Star Social club was financially successful beyond the expectations of the members, and a neat sum was added to the treasury.

St. Aloysius Total Abstinence and Temperance union will meet in regular session tomorrow night.

At the last regular meeting of Lackawanna camp, No. 8717, Modern Woodmen of America, officers for the ensuing term were elected, as follows: Venerable consul, Fred N. Rose; worthy advisor, James J. Carroll; clerk, Jacob Heffelfinger; banker, Fred Gunter; escort, William Maus; watchman, William Greiser; sentry, C. C. Donovan; physician, Dr. John J. Walsh; deputy, A. J. Mulderig.

A happy party arrived home from Wilkes-Barre shortly after midnight last night, where the Junger Maennerchor and a party of friends had gone as the guests of the Wilkes-Barre Liedertafel society. Miss Lydia Sailer scored a distinct success at the Liedertafel concert, as did the Maennerchor, and every one of the numbers they rendered were encored.

BREATHING COMPRESSED AIR. Entering the Lock of the East Boston Submarine Tunnel. From the Boston Transcript.

We were in the tunnel, about fifty feet below ground, but still on dry land and in the ordinary atmosphere. It arched above us exactly like the subway. All over the bottom of it were rickety little car tracks, to carry out the earth which is still being excavated, and just beyond us the tunnel was partitioned off—bricked up with a solid wall—through which, however, ran a hollow cylinder about as big and as long as the boiler of a locomotive, and through that tube we were to go.

Another Journey Ended. All the Inhabitants of the Earth Traveled a Long Distance Last Year.

Again this comparatively insignificant globe of matter on which the human family resides and to which the members of that family are naturally attached by strong ties has completed its regular journey around the sun.

Just how many miles it has traveled since the last time we cannot ascertain from any data at hand; but if the reader cares to figure out the problem, here are some figures for a starter: The volume of the sun exceeds that of the earth about 1,253,000 times. The mean distance of the earth's orbit from the sun is 93,000,000 miles. Double that and add it to the sun's diameter and you have the diameter of the earth's orbit, or somewhere near one-third of the distance which our planet whirled through in the 365 days ending December 31. While going forward at the rate of about eighteen miles a second, as we recall the schoolbook figures, the earth was revolving on its axis at the comparatively small pace rate of 1,600 miles an hour, freighted in her hold with coal, oil, and other inflammable substances, and her internal fires were raging fiercely, as the output of her chimneys unmistakably indicated. But notwithstanding these complex and inconceivably rapid motions and this risky cargo, the voyage was made as safely as any of its millions of predecessors.

This annual trip of the earth was denoted by Brer Jasper when he lived on this sphere. The apparent motion of the sun he took for actual movement of that orb. "The sun do move," but not around our globe. In fact, the sun has at least three motions, and one of them is estimated at the rate of 50,000,000 miles per annum. We do not vouch for these figures, but an astronomer of our acquaintance has such faith in them that he refuses to discount a single one of them, and threatens a ruse as a result of more careful investigation.

At the Fair. Last evening was a dull one at the fair being conducted in St. Mary's hall by the various societies connected with the Holy Rosary church, on account of the weather. Several articles were exchanged off. Thursday evening an excellent musical programme will be rendered by some of our best local talent.

Every Tuesday and Friday nights will be devoted to dancing, and Monday and Thursday nights to musical programmes.

Three Funerals. The funeral of the late Mrs. Dominick Kline, of Cayuga street, who died after a short illness Sunday morning, will take place this morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Kline was an old resident of this place and was well known and highly respected by those who knew her. She is survived by a husband and one child. Services will be conducted at the Holy Rosary church, interment in the Cathedral cemetery.

The remains of William Parker, who resided in this section for the past ten years and was killed at Johnstown, arrived here Monday for burial. Mr. Parker for several years boarded on Wayne avenue. The news of his death was a great blow to many people here. He is survived by one daughter. Interment was made in the Washburn street cemetery.

TOLD IN A FEW LINES. Mr. Morgan, of Brick avenue, is seriously ill at his home.

The theme of the service this evening in the Providence Presbyterian church will be "The Christian's Duty." It will give a brief Bible reading on the subject. The public is invited to attend.
