THREE FIRES IN ONE DAY

DWELLING HOUSE IN LINCOLN HEIGHTS DESTROYED.

Second Fire in Same Building in Two Days—Another Fire in John H. Fellows' House—Other Fire on North Garfield Avenue—Disorderly House Raided by the Police—Two Accidents Yesterday—Events of This Evening—Other News Notes and Personal Paragraphs.

The Columbias were aroused by a still alarm at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, when a fire was discovered in the double house at the corner of South Main and Stratford avenues, Lincoln Heights, owned and occupied by John O'Malley and family.

Owing to the distance and the lack of water in that locality, the building was rapidly consumed, and everything was lost. A pipe line was run up from the Dodge and a force of water supplied, but this was insufficient. A fire was also discovered in the same house Wednesday morning, but when the firemen arrived the flames had been put out.

A barrel of oil in the cellar is said to have exploded, but just what caused the fire cannot be learned. The house was but recently built and occupied, and is a complete loss. It was partially insured.

While the occupants of a dwelling house at 212 Garfield avenue were thawing out a frozen water pipe at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning, the woodwork caught fire and was damaged to the extent of about $200. An alarm was sent in from Box 38, and Engine company No. 3 and Chemical company No. 2 responded and extinguished the flames with the aid of the chemical solution. The house is owned by Mrs. Phillips.

A still alarm was sent in to the Chemicals at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon from John H. Fellows' house, where flames were again discovered in the flooring. An application of the chemical soon subdued the flames.

Mr. Fellows' loss is placed at about $4,500, and he carried $7,500 insurance on the house and furniture.

THE HOMELIEST MAN IN SCRANTON

As well as the handsomest, and others are invited to call on any druggist and get free a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, a remedy that is guaranteed to cure and relieve all Chronic and Acute Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption. Price 25c. and 50c.

A $1,000 PRIZE.

A prominent manufacturer has offered a prize of one thousand dollars for the best essay on preventive medicine, "believing that a proper exercise of preventive medicine is of incalculable benefit to the human race." The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of influenza (grip), and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts the tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all druggists.

DUNMORE DOINGS.

Republicans Are Rallying to the Support of the Excellent Republican Borough Ticket.

The Republicans of Dunmore are showing great interest in the coming election and there is every indication that they will be victorious in the coming contest. The borough ticket nominated is a most excellent one.

Everyone of the candidates is a representative man well qualified to perform the duties of the office to which he seeks to be elected, and there is no reason if the Republican voters will do their duty and go to the polls and vote.

There is no doubt that a majority of the voters of Dunmore are Republican and all that is required is to get them out. The committee is doing everything in their power to interest and enthuse the party and their efforts will undoubtedly be crowned with success, if only the individual voters will do their duty. The Republicans of Dunmore can win this fight. All that is required is that they do their duty as Republicans should. Work should be your watch-word.

Last night the committee of the First and Second districts of the Sixth ward met and considered plans for getting a complete and authoritative list of the voters of the ward as a basis for the work of getting out the vote on election day.

UNCROWNED ENGLISH QUEENS.

No Less Than Seven Have Missed the Honor of a Coronation.

From the London Lady's Pictorial.

As a rule most English queens have been solemnly crowned, whether they reigned in their own right or as wives of royal husbands. To this rule, however, there are seven exceptions.

The first was Margaret of France, the young, plain, amiable second wife of Edward I. He had spent so much money in conquering Wales and in trying to conquer Scotland that he could not afford the expense of a coronation for his girl bride, and she had to do without the splendors of the pageant.

King Henry VIII. took care that Anne Boleyn should be crowned with extreme magnificence. He desired to show the world how much he loved her and how very much he defied the bishop of Rome.

The four wives who succeeded her were never crowned at all. For one thing, money ran short, and for another, there may have lurked, even in his masterful mind, a sense of the "fitness of things," which may have caused him to shirk from publicity crowning so many ladies in such very rapid succession.

At any rate, the beloved Jane Seymour, the despised Anne of Cleves, the girlish Catherine Howard and the wary Catherine Parr were never consecrated in public as queen consorts of England.

Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I., refused to be crowned. She was young, she was pretty, she was a French princess, and she declined to take part in a state function, which would compel her to partake of the sacrament according to Church of England rites.

Sophia Dorothea of Zell cannot be reckoned among the seven, because she was never called Queen of England at all. While George I. was being crowned, and annointed, and—bored, the lady of Ahlden was pining in her long, monotonous captivity.

Caroline of Brunswick is the last and most remarkable instance of the uncrowned English queens. Though George IV. had been forced from popular indignation to give up the bill of pains and penalties against her, nothing would induce him to let her, nothis coronation. She was not permitted to be present in Westminster Abbey at all.

Repulsed from all the entrances, she returned to her house, to die within three weeks of a violent fever, brought on by months of fearful excitement.

THE WILDCAT.

Cunning, Courageous and Dangerous When at Bay.

From the Boston Herald.

To say that a dog can "whip his weight in wildcats" is to pay about the highest tribute to his strength, courage and activity, and there are very few dogs that would care to earn such a tribute if they understood all it implied. Not that a wildcat is of a specially aggressive disposition; on the contrary, he would sooner mind his own business any time than fight. So anxious is he, as a rule, to keep out of trouble that he has often been accused of cowardice; but he has, on so many occasions, given evidence of the most desperate courage that I doubt if the accusation is a fair one. When wounded or at bay he is perhaps as dangerous as any creature of his size.

Lynx rufus was originally an inhabitant of the tropics, but he gradually worked his way north, and is now found in many of the states from Texas to Maine and also in several parts of Canada. In appearance at this time of year he is a reddish brown animal about three feet long, including a short tail, which is barred on top with rufus and black. The under surface of the body is yellowish white, spotted with black. In the spring the color of the upper parts will change to grayish brown. The female is much smaller and more slender than the male, and in looks and actions bears a stronger resemblance to the domestic cat. Her ears, like those of the male, are surmounted by tufts of coarse hair, less conspicuous, however, than those of the Canada lynx. The legs of the wildcat are long and the feet large and armed with strong, sharp claws. The hind feet are webbed. At its best it is a savage-looking creature, and when it is angry it growls, spits and rolls its blazing eyes in a manner which faithfully reflects the demon character within.

The food of the bobcat varies with the seasons. In the warm weather, when game is plentiful, he takes his pick, but in the winter he is often glad to take what he can get. He is fond of fish and frogs, and in the summer he follows the dry beds of the brooks and small rivers and fishes in the deep holes. He also eats hares, rabbits, squirrels and bats, and even beavers when he is luck enough to get them. He catches a good many birds, too, chiefly grouse, quail and other species which sleep on the ground. If the farmhouses are not too far out of the way he will visit them and carry off the poultry.

EUROPE'S FUTURE QUEENS.

Richest Is Princess of Denmark, the Prettiest of Roumania.

From the Boston Globe.

The future queen of Denmark is one of the richest princesses of Europe. She is the daughter of the late King Charles XV. of Sweden and Norway, and inherited enormous wealth from her mother, nee Princess Louise of the Netherlands. She possesses the distinction of being the tallest princess of Europe, and is a strong-willed woman with any amount of pluck and determination.

The prettiest of crown princesses is the wife of Prince Ferdinand of Roumania, in whom the English people feel a special interest, since she is the eldest daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

Prince Ferdinand is nephew to the present king of Roumania, who has no children.

Another granddaughter of Queen Victoria's, who is a crown princess, is the Duchess of Sparta, wife of the crown prince of Greece. Her mother was the late Empress Frederick, and she herself is, of course, sister to the German emperor.

Princess Sophia is tall and good-looking and of an amiable disposition.

A brilliantly accomplished woman is the crown princess of Sweden, who unfortunately suffers from delicate health. She is the daughter of the grand duke of Baden and Princess Louise of Prussia—an only daughter of the late Emperor William I and a sister of the late Emperor Frederick—and married Crown Prince Oscar Gustave of Sweeden in 1881.

Their marriage became quite unintentionally an act of historic restitution, for it happens that Princess Victoria of Baden is the great granddaughter of the banished Swedish king, Gustave IV (Adolf); and thus the great grandson of Bernadotte led back to Scandinavia the relative of the monarch whom his forefather had chased from the throne.

The fourth daughter of Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria—Princess Marie Gabrille—is also the wife of an heir presumptive.

A TEST EXPERIMENT

Peculiar Power Possessed by a New Medicine.

Of new discoveries there is no end, but one of the most recent, most remarkable and one which will prove invaluable to thousands of people, is a discovery which it is believed will take the place of all other remedies for the cure of those common and obstinate diseases, dyspepsia and stomach troubles. This discovery is not a loudly advertised, secret patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of wholesome, perfectly harmless vegetable essences, fruit, salts, pure pepsin and bismuth.

These remedies are combined in lozenge form, pleasant to take, and will preserve their good qualities indefinitely, whereas all liquid medicines rapidly lose whatever good qualities they may have had as soon as uncorked and exposed to the air.

This preparation is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is claimed that one of these tablets or lozenges will digest from 200 to 3,000 times its own weight of meat, eggs and other wholesome food. And this claim has been proven by actual experiments in the following manner: A hard boiled egg cut into small pieces was placed in a bottle containing warm water heated to ninety-eight degrees (or blood heat), one of these Tablets was then placed in the bottle and the proper temperature maintained for three hours and a half, at the end of which time the egg was as completely digested as it would have been in a healthy stomach. This experiment was undertaken to demonstrate that what it would do in the bottle it would also do in the stomach, hence its unquestionable value in the cure of dyspepsia and weak digestion. Very few people are free from some form of indigestion, but scarcely two will have the same symptoms. Some will suffer most from distress after eating, bloating from gas in the stomach and bowels, others have acid dyspepsia or heartburn, others palpitation or headaches, sleeplessness, pains in chest and under shoulder blades, extreme nervousness as in nervous dyspepsia, but they all have same cause, failure to properly digest what is eaten. The stomach must have rest and assistance, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give it both, by digesting the food for it and in a short time it is restored to its normal action and vigor. At same time the Tablets are so harmless that a child can take them with benefit. This new preparation has already made many astonishing cures, as for instance, the following:

After using only one package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets I have received such great and unexpected benefit that I wish to express my sincere gratitude. In fact, it has been six months since I took the package and I have not had one particle of distress or difficulty since. And all this in the face of the fact that the best doctors I consulted told me my case was Chronic Dyspepsia and absolutely incurable as I had suffered twenty-five years. I distributed half a dozen packages among my friends here, who are very anxious to try this remedy.

Mrs. Sarah A. Skeels,
Lynnville, Jaspar Co., Mo.
