Musical Crossip.

THE NAME of Miss Sadie Estelle Kaiser, of Wilkes-Barre, one of the best known and most accomplished of the talented musicians of Northeastern Pennsylvania, is perhaps more familiar to many of the readers of this Tribune on account of her charming letters upon subjects in London from her pen, which appear in its columns some time ago.

"I do not know why," she writes with pathos, "that it is very hard for me to keep any clothes. They steal my coat from the works and sometimes when I go home at night I haven't any overcoat to wear."

"They come to our house and get my flannel nightgown, and now and then I find my cap gone and have to walk out in the cold bare-headed."

"Yes, 'am. It would be more convenient for me if you would give me a little piece of your own flannel and I will wear it a day or two and then you can lay it along your back bone. That's what they all tell me is the best. They do say it takes away scatica and rheumatism. I'm sure I don't know how I do it," and she pleases to mention that she has been comfortably with a yard or two of white flannel wrapped up in a parcel, to wear for the great lady of the house whose hands she has been holding rather awkwardly for the last half hour.

"Is it true?" Is anything true? I'm sure I don't know. I haven't rheumatism, but there is one man in this town who thought he was dying with it, and the elderly man rubbed his arms for a few minutes amid anathemas from the patient, and the pain left while he was breathing out threatenings and his nerves returned.

There is no doubt at all that if this Santa Claus kind of a "healer" would set up a shrine somewhere up the Lackawanna road, along which he resides, he might start a fashion for pilgrimages which would rival some of those pertaining to meagre and treacherous relics of history, and he would be a bonanza for the Lackawanna route, too. Saucy Bess.

Medrum, Scott & Co. "Never Too Late to Mend"

Seems a little out of place in these days of matchless hosiery and money-saving prices. Who likes a mended stocking, anyway?

The new stockings are embroidered, lace affairs, with either the simple monogram embroidered just above the ankle or some dainty floral design. One especially pretty fancy is a rosebud pattern, which appears as if tiny buds had simply dropped there from the minute.

Prices, 50c, 75c, $1, $1.25 a Pair. Silk Hosiery has the power to make one feel perfectly dressed from head to toe.

$1.00, $1.25, $1.50 $2.75 a Pair. NEVER were styles so pretty. NEVER have we shown so many. NEVER were prices so reasonable for superior quality.

Views of a Woman

She was a jolly, pleasant faced lady, and in the course of conversation she said that the way she began to work among flowers came about because of ill-health, when she found it necessary to have more air and light than she could get from the door of her room.

"I have always loved flowers," she said, "and from a child could never see a humble house and garden without a pang. To this day, if I go to my refrigerator and find that some of the roses have not been placed in the water with care and are showing their drooping leaves, it is not for the financial loss that my first feeling of sorrow and annoyance comes, but because the poor roses say to me: 'We would have been as fresh and lovely as our sisters if we had been given their opportunities; but now they are withered and you have us for, we are dying.'"

"I never can throw away a flower that has any semblance of beauty left," she continued. "Often I take these that are just beginning to reach the end of their brief loveliness and I freshen them up and wire them carefully and send them out to those who never can have a flower in their room for a few hours only, they have brightened some humble home and gladdened some heart. I know, too, that they are appreciated," she added, "and that is more than you can say of some of your luxurious gifts."

And I thought that she, who can pause in her busy life to expend time and taste in arranging a winter bouquet for some sick child or some crowded hospital ward, is doing every day what that nearest to her hand what many of us never do in all our futile, busy, restless, and unproductive lives. We may not even pause to say: 'I am glad you are in the world,' to somebody who is weary and discouraged, but we give gifts that we may receive them again and say soft words to those whose lives are full of soft words and gentle looks and rich comfort.
