Rorapough Arrested Again.

G. W. Rorapough, of 742 Adams avenue, known to the public as "Jack, the Huggler," was arrested again last evening, when he was caught at his old game of frightening women.

A few days ago complaint was made that Rorapough was lurking around in a suspicious manner in the vicinity of Main avenue and Lafayette street. Patrolman Bradshaw was detailed to watch him, and on Wednesday evening found him acting suspiciously near Dr. Hall's residence.

At that time he was warned to desist, under penalty of arrest, but did not seem to heed the warning, and was caught again last evening in the same locality. He was locked up and will be given a hearing this morning.

On January 9, Rorapough was arrested by Patrolman McColligan on Washington street, and at that time he was fined $25. The man is evidently demoralized.

The members of the Excelsior Glee and Social club and their lady friends made up a jolly party that enjoyed a sleighride party to Dalton last night, where they sang, danced, and made merry for several hours. The make-up of the party was as follows:

A number of pretty tableaux were given, illustrating patriotic subjects, and the remainder of the programme was made up of vocal and instrumental numbers and recitations.

Roy and Reba Williams played a piano duet, and James Lewis orated on Washington. Recitations were given by Paul Jenkins, Lillian LaBar, Bessie Richards and Alma Gealy. The soloists were Edgar Davis, Florence Thomas, Willie Reese and Stella Thomas. Mrs. D. H. Thomas and Elizabeth Hughes played a pleasing piano duet.

Before Alderman Lentes.

Dominic Mahon and his wife were brought before Alderman Lentes last night on charges preferred by William Firley, for assault and battery and threats. It appears, according to the testimony, that on Tuesday last Firley went for a pair of beer and on returning to the house where all the parties reside, at 203 Brook street, was flatly refused admission by Mrs. Mahan.

The delay caused the beer to turn flat and this riled Firley, who again attempted to reach his own doorstep, but reinforcements in the person of Mr. Mahon arrived, and he had to beat a retreat. This, in Firley's mind, was ground enough for action, and he preferred the above charges. After hearing the evidence, Alderman Lentes held the defendants for court in $700 bail.

BRADFORD COUNTY.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Towanda, Feb. 21.—The engagement of Susa and his band at the Steepleside Steel Pier, Atlantic City, by George C. Tilton, has upset the plans of the roadless running into this popular resort. In consequence of this there will be quite double the number of excursion trains arriving at Atlantic City every day than had been originally planned.

According to individual figures, the receipts last season on excursion tickets into Atlantic City were $1,000,000. Many people from this county visit this popular seaside resort every season.

Mrs. John H. Yeager, an estimable Towanda lady, died at Waynesville, N. C., on Sunday. Funeral was held at her late home today.
