EFFECTS OF FLOOD AT FACTORYVILLE

fce from Mathewson's Mill Dam Floats Down Tunkhannock Creek Sweeping All Before It.

Special to the Scranton Tribune Factoryville, March 3 .- The heavy downpour of rain last Friday, combined with the vast amount of snow that mantled the earth in this vicinity, caused the south branch of the Tunkhannock creek, which flows through the center of this town, to overflow its banks, doing a large amount of damage to property along the stream. All day Friday the water kept rising rapidly and people owning property along the banks began to get uneasy and remove their personal property to places of safety. About the middle of the afternoon a crash was heard and vast torrents of water and heavy ice came thundering down upon the town,caused by the mill dam of C. Mathewson giving away. This dam was about one hundred and fifteen feet long and nearly fifteen feet high. It held a large body of water which made Lake Nokomis, back of Keystone academy. The first building that the flood and lee struck was a barn of George Reynolds which it demolished. Next came the property of the Keystone Lumber company, where it did several hundred dollars' worth of damage by washing away lumber and flooding the machinery, including a dynamo.

The barns of C. A. Briggs and Charles Sisk were picked up from their foundations and carried down stream They struck the iron bridge in the center of the town and were then demolished, the bridge resisting the force and remained upon its foundation,

The rear end of the large hotel barn was torn to pieces by the ice and other debris striking it. Many other small buildings were also washed away, with several flocks of blooded poultry.

At 11 p. m., the large stone dam of B. S. Gardner & Son, located one mile above town, could not withstand the tremendous pressure and gave away with a terrible crash, the ice striking the handsome iron bridge erected a few years ago by the Lackawanna company, and carried it down the stream for over a quarter of a mile. It also tore away one corner of their large grist mill. The basement and cellar of the general store of Charles Gardner was flooded to the depth of several feet, doing much damage to the stock Many other cellars throughout the town were filled with water and mud, the water at one stage covering nearly half of the town. Several of the streets are ruined and impassible.

Most of the small bridges in the surrounding country are washed away and cross country traffic is cut off. Many fish are scattered along the lowlands in pools of water, and are being picked up by residents, one party getting two carp out of one small pool that weighed fifteen pounds each.

Sunday morning a heavy rain set in again and continued all day. About noon the streams again commenced to ing from the working on Sunday pumprapidly rise, and by night they were again over their banks and covering foot bridge was commenced on Saturthe lowlands, but so far no damage has been reported from the last storm. Never in the history of the town has it been visited by such a flood,

The "old depot" hill on North Main street was damaged to such an extent by the flood last Friday that it is almost impassible, and will require ; vast amount of labor and money to put it in shape. The old Benton road, near the Orin Browning property, is washed to such an extent that it is temporarily abandoned.

Mrs. V. R. Gardner is confined to her home with muscular rheumatism. The "Deestrick Skule," which was given at the Academy Friday night, was repeated by request last Saturday night and was one of the best entertainments given there this winter. The Misses Millie and Ora Stark, of hersines of classical plays, Mr. McCornick has written "Out of the Fold" to adhere closely to the teachings and sentiments of the Moo and Sankey poets, and uses Scriptural argument in bringing about the climax of his play Frank Kernan has twad his title clear to stellar honors in "Hon. John Grigsby." which can tured both critics and public at the Manhatto theater, New York, Previous sugagements conpelled Mr. Keeman to go on the road, otherwihe might easily have plated out the season. New York. However, it is an ill wind that blonobody good, and it is owing to this circustance that local theater-good will have pleasure of seeing Mr. Reenan, at the head the satisfactory interpretation of their respective late 'hories, with all the scenery, furniture and parts, individually considered, and their long properties, are historically correct to the period. Derothy Hunting is a comparative alranger the operatic stage, and yet from the fact that h mocces does not seem bounded by any geographical lines, it would seem that kirk La Shelle has acted with his characteristic wisdom in entrusting duction of "Out of the Fold." a new play by was immediately impressed, no less by the vol-Langdon McCormick founded upon the Moody and secretures of her voice than by her Sankey hymn, "Ninety and Nine."
