LECTURES ON VARIOUS POLITI-CAL ISSUES.

Celebrated Nebraskan Tells a Fairsized Audience at the Lyceum About the Causes, Effects and Cures of the Evils That Beset the Nation and Points Out a Course of Conduct That Would Make the United States the Exemplar of the Whole Universe.

In a lecture on the subject of "A Coniering Nation," Hon, William Jennings Bryan, last night, at the Lyceum gave to a fair sized audience the views that now obtain with him on how the United States should comport itself. It was rather as an economic student than a political advocate that he, ostensibly, framed his discourse, (200000000000) but there was not a single utterance of his more than two hours of a speech that was not as partisan as he would be expected to make it were he a candidate in the midst of a campaign.

All the leading questions of the day, and some that were not questions of the day, came in for treatment. The main variation between his political speeches and his lecture is that the tone of his delivery is a bit more subdued in the latter. Possibly it was because the audience was not large and not very responsive that he did not evince more spirit. Whatever it was te seemed to have been wanting as a lecturer in the spirit which animated his campaign addresses. That it was a treat, as a lecture, of course, goes without saying.

His theme was the Jeffersonian maxm of "Equal rights for all; special privileges to none." He began by sayng that he has come to think of late that there is too much pecuniary interests evidenced in the application of principles of government. The moral side of the question is not given the consideration it deserves.

A PERFECT STATE.

To have a perfect civilization it i necessary to have a state perfect physically, mentally and morally. The noral elements is not only important but paramount. If the time ever comes when this nation will go downward, it will be when it disregards morality. This is the history of dead nations. Justice is the foundation of permanent government. In proportion as injustice finds its way into the foundation of a government just in that same proportion is the foundation made in-

It is laudable to be ambitious, to be great. The measure of greatness is found in the Master's utterance when the disciples engaged in that unseemly quarrel as to which should be the servant of all," This is always true. Service is the measure of greatness. It is also the measure of happiness. What we do for thers or give to others is more gratifyng to us than what is done for us by r given to us by others.

Many good men have been trying to that is, it works both ways. The chances are at least sixteen to one the oper way to do good is along the line of "Be not overcome by evil; overome evil with good." Here Mr. Bryan took up the quesion of anarchy. He said he believed in suppressing it, but he also believed a going farther. Teach the anarchist, he said, that government is a necessity and that ours is the best government among men. He does most to destroy anarchy who does something to better government. He increases anarchy ho perverts a government for his own

When a government says to the citizen that he shall not redress his own wrongs and then fails to redress them for him, and permits the great powers it makes possible to heap wrongs upor him, it is not strange that there are some who will listen to him who will say that it is right to attempt to cure this wrong by even resorting to the removal of a ruler by violence. MEASURE OF GREATNESS.

If an individual's greatness is to be Maldwyn Evans, second tenor; Howard | measured by service, Mr. Bryan went Stewart Barnett, baritone; Urban Leo on to say, a nation must likewise be Alkire, basso; Helen Faye, soprano, measured as to its greatness by its services. The United States has great opportunities for service. Because of its opportunities a great responsibility is weighing down upon us.

The Declaration of Independence declared that it is a self-evident truth soon. If it is false, let us seize the opportunity the coming coronation offords of declaring our mistake of one hundred and twenty-five years ago and asking the forgiveness of the old

Has Entire Charge of Mining and Sales Departments of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company's Coal Business-His Successor Is Colonel R. A. Phillips, of This City, Who Has Been a District Superintendent-C. E. Tobey Made Assistant Superintendent.

The successful management of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company's coal department by Superintendent E. E. Loomis during the past three years has not only carned for him recognition from the officials but also deserved promotion, and the announcement has just been made pub lic that he has been appointed manager of the coal department with hendquarters in New York.

The appointment was made on Wednesday by President W. H. Truesdale, and Mr. Loomis has already established his headquarters in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western building at 26 Exchange Place, New York. The first formal announcement of the appointment of Mr. Loomis was received yesterday in the following circular: The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, Office of Manager of Coal Department, 26 Exchange Place.

New York, March 5, 1902.

Mr. R. A. Phillips is hereby appointed superincendent, and Mr. C. E. Tobey assistant superincendent, and Mr. C. E. tendent of the coal mining department. E. E. Loomis, Manager Coal Department.

W. H. Truesdale, President. LOOMIS' SUCCESSOR.

It will be seen from the above that R. A. Phillips succeeds Mr. Loomis as superintendent, and C. E. Tobey be comes assistant superintendent of the coal mining department. Another appointment was made public yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the pro motion of Mr. Phillips. It is as fol-

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, Coal Mining Department, R. A. Phillips, Superintendent. Scranton, Pa., March 7, 1902.

Mr. H. G. Davis is hereby appointed district superintendent, and will have immediate charge of both inside and outside work at the following mines: Diamond, Brisbin, Cayuga, Storrs, Man-ville. R. A. Phillips, Superintendent.

The appointment of Mr. Loomis carries with it the management of the sales and operating departments of the entire coal mining business of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, and places him in one of the foremost positions in the anthraite coal trade.

Mr. Loomis came to the Lackawanna ailroad on June 16, 1899, succeeding W. R. Storrs and W. H. Stors, as superinendent of the coal department. Prior o that time he was superintendent of the New York, Susquehanna and Western, and Wilkes-Barre and Eastern railroads, with headquarters at Jersey
