Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gillespie visited in New York city recently.

WIMMERS.

The Erie Railroad company has ig- nored an order changing the name of Elmhurst to Saco.

The contract at Saco were figuring getting through with their work at April 1. They received orders a few days ago to commence Myers' cut and arrange to extend the yard from Saco to Wimmers. This means about six months' more work for them and will require about one hundred more laborers.

Commencing April 1, excursion tick- ets will be raised twenty cents to Scranton.

John Wilson and George Larkson have resigned their positions with the Drake & Stratton company, and left for Middletown, N. Y., yesterday, to accept positions with a company at that place.

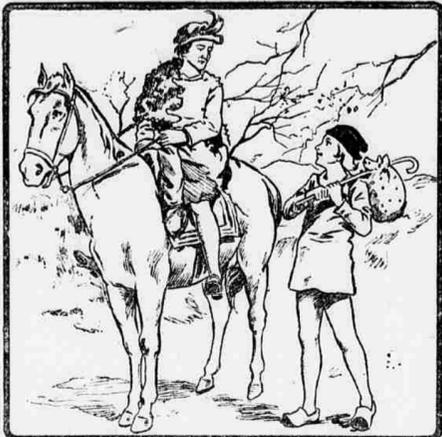

Several agents have left this station recently. The work is unusually hard, Mr. Burke still remaining. He seems to be the right man in the right place.

A. W. Drake, of Long Island, is call- ing on friends at Wimmers and Saco, for the first time in seventeen years.

PITTSSTON.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Pittston, March 30.—Ray Judd, son of H. D. Judd, at one time a furniture dealer, who is now engaged as a trav- elling agent for a telephone company, is visiting relatives here. Mr. Judd

PICTURE PUZZLE.

Find Jack's father, a dog, and a pig.

Monday, March 24.—Jack Hunter is to the left of the tree under the first limb and Tommy Gray is between the legs of the horse.

Tuesday, March 25.—The horn at the waist of the discoverer curves around the saddle. One foot is on the ground, the other next to the tree to the left.

Wednesday, March 26.—Jack Stuart is formed by the horizon line in the picture and the old man's ear to the right. The dog is at the base of the mast pole.

Thursday, March 27.—Hold the picture upside down, and Columbus' hair forms the hair of one figure, and very near this the tree from the other.

Friday, March 28.—One Indian is on the ground in lower left-hand corner. The right side of the tree breaks the other.

Saturday, March 29.—Hold picture sideways and one passenger with a large hat is near the large man's elbow. Another is between the two faces. The third is in the tree just above the large hat.

recently returned from a pleasure jaunt abroad, and tells his friends an interesting story. He started on his trip with ten cents and hired out as a work hand on a cattle ship, sailing from Boston. Arriving at Liverpool, he re- ceived from the paymaster of the ves- sel $2.50 as his wages for the trip.

While in his possession, Mr. Judd proceeded on a three-months' tour of England, Scotland and Wales, work- ing his way along and enjoying himself immensely. He managed to accumu- late enough money to bring him back to America somewhat earlier than he had gone across, and he landed in Bos- ton as a first-class passenger on the steamship New England.

A boy's choir has been organized in the Trinity church at West Pittston and made its first appearance this morning, rendering the Easter music. They are under the directorship of Prof. Henry Harries, of West Pitt- ston.

The public schools of Pittston and West Pittston are rehearsing com- mencement music.

Mrs. Henrietta Wilson has been spending this week in Scranton.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wrigley, of Casen- ova, N. Y., is spending her Easter vacation with her many friends in this place.

E. L. Watkins, our genial jeweler, has decided to leave this town, and will depart for Shickshinny next Mon- day, where he has purchased the stock of a jewelry store. Mrs. Watkins has gone to Jenningsville, to visit her parents, and will join her husband later on. Mr. and Mrs. Watkins leave many warm friends in this place, who ex- ceedingly regret their departure, but wish them happiness and success in their new home. Mrs. Watkins will be especially missed in the Methodist church and Sunday school, where she has been such a faithful worker.

Miss Blanche Stark will close a very successful term of school at the Glen tomorrow.

The Ladies' circle, Grand Army of the Republic, met last Tuesday evening and at the close of the meeting held a most enjoyable entertainment, consist- ing of music and recitations. The ladies then served warm sugar and other delicious refreshments.

The masquerade social that was to have been given by the Rebekahs this evening has been postponed indefi- nitely.

BRADFORD COUNTY.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Towanda, March 30.—A movement is being made by capitalists of Athens and vicinity to begin prospecting for gas in Litchfield. An expert in oil and gas oils, Henry Rogers, of Pittsburg, is endeavoring to create interest. The plan is to form a company with a cap- ital stock of $500, to be divided into 250 shares at $20 per share, and if suc- cessful it is expected to put down a well 2,000 feet, if a less depth should not be beneficial.

Rev. W. H. Demarest has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Bap- tist church, to take effect next month.

A village called Neniff in Tioga coun- ty, has been purchased at a foreclosure sale, by the trustees of the Ogdens- Arnot hospital of Elmira. The site comprises about 160 acres and its origi- nal conveyance dates back to 1760 to a man named Cuyler. There are at present located there, a Lehigh Valley milk station, store, postoffice, saw mills, creamery, cheese factory, Blacksmith shop and several dwelling houses.

The Murray mines, located near Looper, are nearly ready for work, after a delay caused by the non-arrival of the necessary machinery. It is report- ed the Williamsport and North Branch Railroad company has already con- tracted for the mine's output, which will insure a good business for the company.

Gerald E. Towner, of Sheshequin township, is among the missing, leav- ing a wife and four small children. This "sporting life" proves a bad thing, when one has to forsake his aged father, his name to notes and borrow money at banks, and then skip out and leave a shortage of nearly $2,500. Such is the record that this young man has made. His father is a stone dealer and well-to- do, but has already refused to satis- fy his son's bills. The fugitive at one time resided in Meshoppen, where he will be remembered by many as a slick appearing young man.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown, of Rum- merfield, are anxious to learn of the whereabouts of the 12-year-old son, named Foster, who disappeared from home about three weeks ago.

Theatrical.

Attractions Today.

LYCEUM—Mrs. Schumann-Heink and Miss Clara Moran, Night.

ACADEMY—Irma Myers company. Afternoon and STAR—Webber's Vaudeville company. After- noon and night.

Virginia Harrod.

The Lyceum theater tomorrow night will have a premiere event of double interest in Charles Virginia Harrod, General Clark was today a new play, the first being Virginia Harrod and the second, Edward E. Rose's dramatization of the late Maurice Thompson's romantic, colonial romance of "The American Soldier."

Seldom has there been offered in this city a combination of such strength and interest as this—a celebrated star, the work of a brilliant no- velist, and an outstanding dramatic talent and the beautiful production of a resourceful man- ager.

The play is described as a romance of the early days of Indian fighting in the American Northwest Territory. The plot deals with the defeat of the British at Vincennes by General George Rogers Clark. General Clark was today our first American explorer, for it was through his study, tireless efforts that the large section of country northwest of the Ohio river was secured for the American colonist.

Of the heroine are nobly drawn in the novel and as invitingly repeated in Mrs. Rose's adapta- tion, "Alice" is the type of womanhood which struggles bravely against adversity, and Miss Harrod makes her one of the most lovable young women known to the stage. Seats now on sale.

Eben Holden.

"Eben Holden" as a play will have all the advantages that are the right of this masterpiece of modern fiction. It has been cast and staged by Charles Frohman in the most liberal manner and will be presented at the Lyceum (return engage- ment) Thursday night next.

Edward E. Rose made the dramatization and it is to have been eminently successful in the trying task of interpreting the American story when William W. Brown, Eben Holden's protege, has just reached Mr. Rose's estate and is realizing his love for the charming "Hope." Their romance is not without its complications, but true love generally manages to reach the end of its course with a happy climax, and it does in this case, thanks partly to the sympathy and assist- ance which are accorded to the play.

"Eben Holden" is a play which has been happily in holding up the stage mirror in the characters of "Eben" so aptly described in Irving Bacheller's book. The original com- pany will be seen here, and the play, "Eben Holden" at the New Savoy theater, New York, for nearly one hundred nights.

The sale of seats opens tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

West's Minstrels.

The remarkable success of the negro minstrel in the old days may have been due to the minstrel himself, to the negro melodies he made known, or to the strange and novel instruments upon which he accompanied himself. It is beyond question, however, that not only the wide spread popularity but also the unprecedented suc- cess now accorded the minstrelsy of today has been due to the fact that the minstrel has been happily in holding up the stage mirror in the characters of "Eben" so aptly described in Irving Bacheller's book. The original com- pany will be seen here, and the play, "Eben Holden" at the New Savoy theater, New York, for nearly one hundred nights.

The sale of seats opens tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Little Irene Coming.

One of the season's events in the line of popular priced amusements is the annual appear- ance of that charming little child star, Irene Meyer, who begins a week's engagement at the Academy tomorrow afternoon.

Contrary to the custom pursued by the average popular priced attraction Manager Will H. Lawrence has adopted the principle of giving his patrons new and novel features each succeeding evening, and has therefore provided an almost new repertoire of plays, many new spec- tacular scenes, and a unique new variety of features of the plays to be presented this season, none more interesting than that of the popular and novel feature of "Little Irene." The effect of her parts affords a new and original feature in the play, and the variety in a manner that will surely be appre- ciated by her many friends and admirers, who have seen her prominently cast in every play. She will be seen this afternoon as "Rags in New York" and on the evening as "Peaches and Cream." A big advance sale of seats is expected.

Weber's Parisian Widows.

The appearance of Weber's Parisian Widows at the Star should be a big attraction for Manager Herrington. The Parisian Widows has been running since the beginning of the season, and Mr. L. Lawrence Weber, who through the entire burlesque and vaudeville stage has been so largely successful, has been so largely successful in the production of Weber's Parisian Widows as to have made it a success. The consequences of success after the late flood.

A happy feature of the Parisian Widows com- pany is its feminine charms and the typical beauty of its cast. The Parisian Widows is a grand array of artists headed by Mildred Murray, including the three great Navarro, Snyder and Buckley, Joslin and Welch, Garry Sisters, Gladys and Mabel, and the great New York success, "Empanada at West Point."

Howe's Imported Pictures.

An entire new series of pictures, depicting the most wonderful and heroic deeds of the world, will be presented in all their original splendor by Lyman H. Howe's Moving Picture company at the high school tomorrow night.

The only first class moving picture exhibition in America today is that of Lyman H. Howe, who is the pioneer of that particularly enter- taining and unique class of exhibitions. Beyond the least doubt his show for the season of 1901-1902 is the finest, best and most elaborate that time and money can produce. He leads and others make attempts to follow. He has many imitators, but no equals. His this season's ex- hibition at the high school is at all others in the city. The statement will be verified by his exhibi- tion.

STAGE NOTES.

May Buckley, who has been playing leading roles with the Fradley company on the Pacific coast, is expected to appear in Scranton and come east. A New York engagement is said to await her.

David LaRage, the actor of the Frank Dan- iels Opera company, has handed in his resigna- tion and accepted a part with "The Wild Rose," which George W. Lederer will soon present for the first time in Philadelphia.

Bob McVoy, a South comedian, has filed suit at Lockport, N. Y., contesting the will of his wife, Jessie May, who recently died. The pair were man and wife, but contested. Miss May's estate was valued at $8,000, all of which was willed to her mother.

Maudie Huth, recently of Clifford & Huth, has given out the announcement that she will be married to Thomas Ryan, the comedian, on the 30th of this month. Miss Huth was divorced from Billy Clifford last January.

During the trip from London to New York mine got into one of Corbin's traps and destroyed about 800 worth of silk lights. She has been en- gaged for a leading part in George W. Lederer's forthcoming production of "The Wild Rose."

THE SACRED COLLEGE.

Information About Cardinals Who Will Elect Leo's Successor.

From the Chicago Daily News. A new edition just published of the Catholic hierarchy gives the present position of the sacred college of car- dinals, interesting information when the occupant of the chair of St. Peter is at an advanced age, and, notwithstanding his wonderful stamina, in indiffer- ent health.

The college numbers at present sixty-six cardinals, of whom only three—Leo- ochowsky, Oreglia and Parrochi—sat at the conclave which elected Leo XIII. The oldest cardinal is Celeste, arch- bishop of Palermo, who is 92, and the youngest is Sarbatsky, archbishop of Prague, who is the purple last year at the early age of 28. Of the English-speaking prelates Cardinal Mor- roni, of Australia, has been a cardinal for seventeen years, Gibbons for six- teen years, and Vaughan, of Westminster, and Logue, of Armagh, for nine.

Twenty-eight cardinals reside at Rome, holding appointments of great trust and influence. The others live in their episcopal sees, scattered all over the world, but especially in Italy, which is parcelled into an extraordinary number of bishoprics, giving a prepon- derance to the Italian element in Vat- ican affairs, not only in case of emer- gency councils, but also in the next conclave, when the Italian voters could be forty this year and the non-Italians only twenty-six. A majority of two-thirds is required to elect a pope.

Under such circumstances it is more than probable that the next pontiff will be an Italian. Like all the pontiffs of the last three centuries, Vatican opinion, the only reliable authority, varies continually as to the name of the possible successor to the throne.
