Lacking fourteen days, we were twelve years presided over as we are today. Of those who then answered "Here," six and fifty have bixconselled on the shore beyond, and all here unite some of its the shadows have a little longer grown. But we have been recruited by a younger, entured, promising force, and we are proud of them. We are winning, and have wen for our Lord. Our work we count delightful, as well as our unity. As a company, we are glad that we are here and that our name is "Wyoming." Time has touched lightly and kindly our good president since he went away long we had, we are chall; and we are countly. kindly our good president since he went away from us last. We are glad; and we are equally glad that he has come again. He will find us as he left us—loyal, brotherly, companionable. We love our work, and hence love each other. With the twinkle peculiar to the eye of our president, he may say that he hopes we will be as glad he came after he has told us where to go. But he will. After his councillings with these six elders whom he may trust, for we do. these six elders whom he may trust, for we do will find us with hats in hand, loyally waiting his words concerning our going. A brother's welcome is yours today, Mr. Chairman, for each of us and from all. Do not burry, Take your time. We are well housed and in no haste. At the parting we hope your memory will make you glad that you stayed a week among the sons of Wyoning.

The usual annual discussion took place regarding the distribution of the educational fund and Children's Day collections. The bishop said that the Discipline needed revision on this point. It was decided to divide the collections between Syracuse university and Wyo-

Estes, Beecher, a true mate for his mission, who survives, with two children, to lament their loss. He came into the Wyoming conference in 1866, had 12 charges, the last being Yatesville. When I first came to Elm Park I found the snow-white, kindly-looking brother nextled in the hearts of all. He was actually, although not nominally my assistant, and by his valuable voluntary efforts did multiply the pastor's success. He was one of the most comforting of visitors to the sick and the sad. Beside these household visits and hospital calls, he was much in the pulpit of all denominations, until his voice so failed that he could not preach,

It is our pleasure to testify to the wide regret when his courtly manner was missed from street and sanctuary, and when the fair angel could no longer bear his messages to the places of need. He was a fine specimen of the clergyman who retires to be sweet, and not a grumbler that he is no longer in the smiles of strength and success. Never meddlesome, always assisting, he left a vacancy in Elm Park church felt by everybody. He was not a great man-he was more; he was a good man.

That name he left through our entire city is an abiding testimonial in favor of our holy te-ligion. His long, last illness he hore with nationce-a gentleman to the end. With loving look he often told us how glad he would be to get to heaven.

Often in the prayer meeting we turn to that corner where he and others consorted to be in saying, "Nothing against them." But to the unfailing aids of the paster and feel as if some of us the shadows have a little longer Brother Hiorns was smiling as he did before he

THE MARKETS

Wall Street Review.

New York, April 16.—The stock market reverted to a more normal condition today, after yesterday's extraordinary movement in Southern Hailway. The transactions in that stock, although exarcely more than one-quarter of those of yesterday, still overshadowed the market and were on a scale beyond precedent, with a very few exceptions. Heavy profit taking was in evidence all day long, which kept the price almost constantly below last night's level. The stock's net less was $4. There was rome selling induced by the emphatic disclaimers on the part of Southern Railway interests of any participation in the Louisville and Nashville purchased, present or prospective. But the distinction drawn between J. P. Morgan & Co., as bankers and the same firm as the controlling influence in Southern Railway, seemed somewhat strained. The extensive power over the affairs of Louisville and Nashville allotted to the firm seemed sufficient security for its operation in harmony with Southern Railway. The brokers active in the selling of that stock today were those that were heaviest buyers yesterday and who have operated conspicuously for the so-called Gates element in all the recent large transactions in the market. They were sellers of other stocks which they have recently bought up to a material higher level. But they were also large buyers at new points in the market, having a large part in the advance of the boolers, both leard and soft. The buying of Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Baltimore and Ohio seemed to be based on the assumption that they should enjoy the same advantager as those of the Southern Railway in similar and neighboring territory. The Western and Pacific stocks as a rule were subjected to realizing, but there were a number of smaller railroads whose stocks were sharply advanced with an appearance of absorption for control, which readily induced a speculative following among the professionals, because of the prevailing feeling in Wall street that a "railroad cannot be left out over night without being
