INFORMAL EVENT IN MEARS' HALL LAST NIGHT.

Attended by Fully Three Hundred Young People-Conservatory Recital at Simpson Church-Story of an Alleged Counterfeit Coin-A Coming Musical Treat-Royal Arcanum Mock Trial-Literary and Musical Social-Funeral of Mrs. Morgan-Notes and Personals.

When the members of St. Brenden's council, Young Men's Institute, undertake to entertain their friends they never do anything by halves, but always provide the best, and such was the case at Mears' hall last night, when "The Open Window Club," composed of forty members of the council, conducted their first informal dance.

dance is the music, and when this is B. Thomas and Mrs. Pierce T. Fellows: satisfactory, everything else seems to orchestra, of the Washburn Street harmonize. Bauer's men proved equal Presbyterian Bible school, fifteen to the occasion, and the selections they pieces, George Waters, director. The played were encored after every dance. The hall was prettily decorated, and in a few days. fully three hundred young people participated in the event.

Each member of the management committee wore a unique badge. It was the Chinese equivalent for "O. W. C.," hand-printed, on white satin ribbon, and proved to be a veritable Chinese puzzle to the guests. The promoters of the affair were the following well-known members of the council:

Edward McClain, Thomas Murphy, jr., Eugene Cosgrove, Richard J. Lonergan, James G. McAn-drew, Thomas McHugh, William Saul, Miebael Culkin, Robert E. Duffy, Patrick Duffy, Thomas McNamara, Edward J. It is seldom that such an artistic entertainment is given in West Scranton. The concert was a complimentary one to the Embury Methodist Episcopal church, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the purchase of a plano for the Sunday school. The programme as printed in The Tribune, with the exception of Miss Nellie Schlager, was carried out in its entiety. She was unable to appear. Among the West Scranton participants were Misses Laura de Gruchy and Ethel Watkins, both having distinguished themselves in a creditable manner. All of the others who took part in the concert also played brilliantly.

An Enjoyable Mock Trial.

George F. Eynon was the defendant in a "mock trial," and Victor H. Lauer the prosecutor, at the meeting of Lackawanna council, Royal Arcanum, In Ivorite hall last evening. A. E. Betterly sat as the judge, and the attorneys were John J. Davies and W. W. Davis, for the commonwealth, and W. W. Price and T. J. Price, for the defendant. The jurors were David O. Thomas, W. A. Browning and Mr. Levy. The charge was an alleged case of arson, growing out of a recent fire, and several witnesses were examined. The attorneys on both sides argued persistently and the jury, after due deliberation returned a verdict of guilty. The defendant was, however, recommended to the extreme mercies of the trial judge, and sentence was suspended. The trial proved to be very interesting and laughable, and created much fun for those present. Another such event will be held at some future date.

Funeral of Mrs. Morgan.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Jane Morgan were held yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 49 Archbald street, Bellevue, and were largely attended. Rev. Hugh Davis, pastor of the South Main Avenue Welsh Calvinistic Methodist church, officiated, assisted by Rev. Thomas de Gruchy, D. D., of the Jackson Street Bantist church.

A quartette from the latter church sang several appropriate hymns. The pall-bearers were Charles Smith, of

Ended in a Row.

The basket ball game at the Auditorium last night, between the Stars and the Crackerjacks, ended in a row, with the score 6 to 4 in favor of the Stars, according to the umpire. Tigue, of the Stars, threw a basket just as time was called. The ball was in the air when the call was made, and Umpire Batten gave the basket to the Stars, claiming the rules backed him up. The members of the Crackerjack team objected strenuously to the decision, and there promises to be a lively time when it comes to dividing the receipts. The line-up was as follows:

Miss Lucy Snyder, of South Webster Stars-J. McCluskey, right forward; evenue, was pleasantly surprised a few John Skiff, left forward: Tigue, center: hights ago at her home. The guests T.
