YOUNG PEOPLE'S ROMANTIC MARRIAGE

Miss Bessie Adley and Fred C. Moyles Avoid Parental Opposition and Go to Afton, N. Y., Where They Wed—Couple Receive Forgiveness and Wedding Supper from Bride's Parents.

Fred C. Moyles, of Belmont street, and Miss Bessie Adley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Adley, of Spencer street, are now Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Moyles and are at housekeeping on Belmont street.

This sudden transition from sweet-hearts to the state to which their inclinations leaned and their fondest wishes were directed, took place Monday. It was not in this city that they pledged the marriage vows that realized the happy moment they had so long anticipated, but in Afton, N. Y., whence they went to overcome the parental opposition on one side, and which gives a tinge of romance to the eventful happening of the young people's lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Moyles had been sweet-hearts for some time. The affection which they felt ripened into love, but as the poet says, "The course of true love never runs smooth," and in this case the young people had the objection of the bride's parents to their sweet dreams. The groom, fully believing that a "faint heart never won a fair lady," resolved on the daring and boldness of the true lover and proposed a quiet trip to New York state. Again the course of the ardent, true lovers was adhered to, and at 7 o'clock Monday evening the young couple were speeding on the journey to New York state. Afton was chosen as an acceptable place, and before noon Miss Adley and Mr. Moyles were united in the indissoluble bonds of wedlock.

The return trip was made in the afternoon, the newly wedded couple reaching here at 4 o'clock. The courageous spirit that guided the young bride and groom in planning and carrying out their cherished idea, did not forsake them when they were back in Carbondale, but was rather strengthened by the happy fact that they were now one, instead of two. They resolved on acquainting the parents of the bride at once, and they were rewarded with a spirit of forgiveness that, while hoped for, was not wholly expected. Mr. and Mrs. Adley, true to the traditions of the parents of such romantic youths, had smiles instead of reproaches and heartfelt wishes and blessings in place of certain lectures. In a short time the Adley home was a scene of festive joy. The near friends of the couple were assembled and all sat down to a wedding supper that was ruled by a spirit of felicity and joy that revealed the golden lining to the cloud of opposition that shadowed the young people's prospects. Happiness and joy reigned during the evening, and a chorus of good wishes reached from the hearts of the young folks who made up the gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. Moyles are housekeeping on Belmont street. They are both popular young people, and have the heartfelt wishes of their friends in their new life. Mr. Moyles is assistant driver boss at the Black Diamond colliery.

meet next Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reardon, on Canaan street.

The social under the auspices of the Crescent base ball club last evening held in Burke's hall was a flattering social success, and a neat sum was realized for the club. The hall was well filled with the friends of the club and made merry until a late hour. Prof. Firth, assisted by two violinists, furnished the dance music.

A SPLENDID RECITAL.

Rare Evening of Music by Pupils of St. Rose Academy Conservatory.

The musical recital given last evening in St. Rose hall by the pupils of St. Rose academy was a grand success in every particular.

The well-trained young musicians gave a very creditable account of themselves, and though the programme was a lengthy one, the large audience was still anxious for more of the charming music when the curtain went down. Each number deserved an encore, but the rule had been laid down that encores would not be recognized.

The work of the young students reflects most creditably upon the painstaking care and ability of the Sisters at the academy. It also proved that Carbondale has a conservatory of music, in the one at St. Rose, that is a credit to even a much larger city than Carbondale.

The audience was a large one, but few seats in the hall being vacant when the curtain rang up at 8.15. The chorus of forty well-trained young voices received considerable applause.

The programme was as follows:

IN THE SOCIAL WHIRL.

One of the most important events on the social calendar of the year—the annual dance of the Knights of Columbus of Carbondale—will take place in the Burke building this evening.

The enterprise will attract not only all the Knights in this city, but many from Scranton and other places along the valley. The manner in which the Knights here entertain has given them a reputation abroad that is the means of arousing the keenest anticipations when any affair of the Carbondale council is announced.

The hall tonight will be decorated so as to present a beautiful picture when the guests arrive. Fuhrman, of Scranton, has the decorations. Mrs. Wade has charge of the floral arrangements, and Thomas G. Coughlin has carried out a novel scheme of illuminations. All the indications point to a repetition of the earlier and successful successes of the Knights. Music will be by the Mozart orchestra.

Preceding the dance will be an entertainment which promises to be an enjoyable feature. The numbers will be: Address of welcome, by Grand Knight R. H. Kerwin; opening ode, by the council; baritone solo, John O'Rourke; selection; orchestra; piano solo, Nora Nelson; soprano solo, Annie Brown; duet, piano and harp, O'Rourke sisters; tenor solo, T. A. Kirkwood; selection, orchestra; address, Hon. James J. O'Neill; closing ode, by council.

The reception under the auspices of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association, in the Burke building on Friday night, is another social affair that is being eagerly anticipated. The decorations will be done by Prof. Firth and the Graham sisters, violinists. Many patrons are expected from points between Susquehanna and Scranton. The progressive Euchre coterie will be present.

A CHINA HEAD.

Comes from Tea Drinking.

A lady writes from Shanghai, China: "In the summer of '98, husband and I were traveling through Southern Europe, and I was finally laid up in Rome with a slow fever. An American lady gave me some Postum Food Coffee which I began using at once. It was my sole breakfast and supper. In a short time the change in my physical condition was wonderful to see. I will never travel again without Postum. When we arrived in Shanghai we were in an English community and found ourselves in the midst of the four o'clock tea custom. Before long we began to have sleepless nights and nervous days as a result of our endeavors to be amiable and conform to custom. As soon as it could arrive from San Francisco we had a large supply of Postum Food Coffee and began its use at the four o'clock tea table. I cannot tell how popular the coffee table became for afternoon callers. In fact a number of the business men as well as missionaries, use Postum now wholly in place of tea and the value of the change from coffee and tea cannot be estimated." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FORMER TOWNSMAN WEDS.

Samuel F. Lingfelter, of New Jersey, Returns to Marry Mrs. Mina Dilts.

There was a pretty wedding ceremony yesterday afternoon that united Samuel F. Lingfelter, of Elizabeth, N. J., a former well-known Carbondalian, and Mrs. Mina Dilts, of this city.

The nuptials were celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Stansbury, on High street, at 4 o'clock, in the presence of a few of the relatives and intimate friends of the principals. Rev. Charles E. Lee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, solemnized the ceremony. There were no attendants. The bride wore a handsome tailor-made suit of garnet Camdensia cloth, with hat to match, that combined to make her a radiant bride.

There was a reception and supper. Rev. Charles E. Lee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, solemnized the ceremony. There were no attendants. The bride wore a handsome tailor-made suit of garnet Camdensia cloth, with hat to match, that combined to make her a radiant bride.

The news of Mr. Lingfelter's marriage will send a ripple of pleasure among a wide circle of friends in Carbondale, who have an affectionate regard for him. Mr. Lingfelter was one of the best known residents in this city during his residence here, where he lived for about twenty years. The greatest part of this period was spent as an engineer on the Delaware and Hudson, where he was regarded as one of the most competent engineers in the company. He left here a number of years ago to accept an advanced position with the Worthington Steam Pump company, at Elizabeth, N. J., and has since continued in its employ. Mr. Lingfelter had a distinguished record in the Civil War. He was a General Grant in his campaign and was conspicuous in the battle of Chancellorsville. Though he has been absent from Carbondale, he has lost nothing in the friendship of those in Carbondale who knew him, and now on this favorable occasion they heartily welcome him to come.

Mrs. Lingfelter shares in the wishes that are extended at this happy time. She has been a resident of Carbondale since girlhood, and has grown in the respect and friendship of her associates. A splendidly furnished home in Elizabeth, N. J., awaits Mr. and Mrs. Lingfelter.

Beats Changed Again.

The order changing the beats of Patrolmen McAndrews and Huddy, which went into effect last week, has been rescinded, and last night the patrolmen were back in their old places. Patrolman McAndrew on South Main street and Patrolman Huddy on Belmont.

Good Looks for Bait.

The friends of Prof. Will Collins and Constable E. J. Neary will have speckled beauties for their meals for this week at least. Whether it was the good looks of the two fishermen or the high grade of their bait is a matter of conjecture—probably the former—as to the why and wherefore of the rush of the trout to find a place in the pair's separate baskets. The catch was made along the banks of trout streams of Thomson, and the farmers in the near vicinity stood with wide-open countenances as the baskets began to get heaped with the speckled trout.

Continues Its Success.

The Harry Jenkins company continues to win the favor of the Grand patrons. Last night a good sized audience enjoyed "His Lordship and the Senator." The specialties were the feature of the performance. The dancing of the McCann family is one of the best novelties of its kind ever presented here. Will F. Burke was as enjoyable as usual in his artistic singing, and the comedy of Frank Lynch was keenly enjoyed.

There will be a matinee today, "A Romance of the Adirondacks." The repertoire for the rest of the week is: Wednesday evening, "Wicked London"; Thursday evening, "Under Two Flags"; Friday evening, "Berksire Hills"; Saturday matinee, "His Lordship and the Senator"; Saturday evening, "Way Down in Maine."

Must Settle Today.

Today is the limit for the parents to settle, who were fined by Alderman Baker for the violation by their children of the compulsory education act. Unless the fine and costs be paid today the parents will be sent to jail. Patrick Barrett, of Powderly road, and Mrs. Hall, South Church street, have not paid as yet.

JERMYN AND MAYFIELD.

By the changes made at the Wyoming conference on Monday, Jermy and Mayfield, who go to Court Street church, Scranton. The news which was first learned through the morning papers was rather unexpected by the congregation, who had hoped to have Mr. Fuller for another year. During his pastorate here the church has continued to flourish and when the doctor and his estimable wife take their departure they will leave behind a number of warm-hearted friends who will regret their leaving. Rev. C. C. Lyman, who succeeds Mr. Fuller comes from the Court Street church, Scranton, and like his predecessor, is a veteran of the Civil War. The funeral of the late John Grady, held yesterday morning, was one of the largest ever seen in Mayfield. The school where deceased had been a student was closed for the day, all his former playmates attending the funeral in a body. The St. Aloysius Cadets also attended. At 9.50 the funeral cortege moved to Sacred Heart church where a mass of requiem was said over the remains. The pall-bearers were as follows: Joseph Grady, John Harte, from the Cadets; Harry Gibson and Harry Duffy, acolytes, and John Donnick and Joseph McCarty, school pupils. The handsome casket was literally covered with floral designs of the most elaborate character. The display of flowers was of the finest ever seen in the borough. Within the church the regular pall-bearers led behind and the six altar boys carried the casket to the altar rail. Father Dunn conducted the services and spoke upon the many noble traits in the deceased. The remains were taken from the church to the cemetery where they were lowered in their last resting place. A large crowd from Carbondale attended the last sad rites.

Wheeler, of the committee, submitted a plan for constructing a culvert on South Second street. He recommended the culvert to be forty-five feet long, five feet wide and four feet high to be paved on bottom and side wall to be laid in cement. The constructing of the culvert to be under the supervision of Supervisor Martin McAndrew, and he is to be under the street committee. It was decided to receive bids for the culvert according to plans and specifications submitted by the street committee. The secretary was instructed to have the notices posted up in town. All bids to be handed in on or before Friday, May 2. Council reserves the right to accept or reject all bids.

The Jermy Milling company received their new attack yesterday, which is to replace the one recently blown down.
