J. V. RICHARD, Editor. U. F. BYRBE, Business Manager.

New York Office: 150 Nassau St. S. S. VRELAND, Sole Agent for Foreign Advertising.

Entered at the Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., as Second Class Mail Matter.

When space will permit, the Tribune is always glad to print short letters from its friends bearing on current topics, but its rule is that these must be signed, for publication, by the writer's real name; and the condition precedent to acceptance is that all contributions shall be subject to editorial revision.

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISING.

Table showing advertising rates for various display sizes and durations, including Daily, 100, 250, 500, 1000, 2000, and 5000 impressions.

For cards of thanks, resolutions of condolence and similar contributions in the nature of advertising, the Tribune makes a charge of 5 cents a line.

SCRANTON, APRIL 25, 1902.

For governor of Pennsylvania, on the issue of an open field and fair play, JOHN P. ELKIN, of Indiana, subject to the will of the Republican masses.

Timely Counsel.

The Olympian Record strongly advises against the proposed incursion of the Central Labor union into politics on a separate labor party basis.

One of the most dangerous tendencies in a country like ours is the effort to divide the population into classes. Our government in its entire makeup is hostile to such an idea. Caste distinction cannot prevail here successfully and it would be a very sorry day for the country if it ever should. The wage-earner today is often the employer and capitalist of tomorrow, and every ambitious toiler should see in every attempt to divide our population into classes a menace to his hopes and to his liberty.

It was a foregone conclusion when E. L. Fuller started to get control of the Western Maryland railroad that he would get it. It is a way he has.

Figures Worthy of Study.

SOME interesting deductions are drawn by Bradstreet's from the recent report of the commissioner of labor dealing with the statistics of strikes and lockouts. First and chief is that the strike as a weapon of offense by the employe is at least as dangerous and costly to the employer. It is true, in many instances, but infinitely more costly to the employe, not only because of the fact that the statistics show that the employe in the mass loses two dollars to the employer's one. Another conclusion is that the risk of friction, in other words, the danger of strikes occurring, seems to increase as the number of hands employed in an industry increases.

It is shown by the report that 6,610,000 employes were thrown out of employment by the strikes and lockouts of the past twenty years, 92 per cent. by the former, and the loss in wages by employes in that time was upward of $200,000,000. In addition, the strikers, or those locked out, obtained nearly $20,000,000 from other organizations, which was presumably used in supporting the strikers. The loss of employes by the strikes and lockouts was over $142,000,000, so that the troubles may be said to have been twice as costly to the operatives as to the employers.

Pennsylvania, New York and Illinois have naturally figured largely in the matter of number involved, with 27, 19.5 and 14 per cent., respectively, of all those thrown out of work. Thirty-one per cent. of the strikers were in the coal and coke industries, 11 per cent. in the building trades and 8 per cent. each in metals and in transportation. Of all the strikes which occurred only about one-half succeeded, 13 per cent. were partially successful and 34 per cent. failed entirely.

We notice that certain Democratic journals are charging that President Roosevelt had a hand in Quay's ingratitude to Elkin. They would like to get Teddy mixed up in a state quarrel, but their animus is too apparent.

Senator Beveridge's Speech.

THE OPENING note of the Republican national campaign of 1902 was sounded at Indianapolis Wednesday in a speech of great power by Senator Beveridge, the greater part of which was devoted to a consideration of the legislative problems growing out of what are popularly called "trusts"; in reality, combinations of capital and enterprise for works primarily or incidentally of public benefit.

The farmer slips his chain to distant points, hundreds, thousands of miles away. He needs cheap rates and quick despatch. Short and separate lines of railroad were inconvenient, high rates prevailed. Here in Indiana segregated lines were consolidated into the "Big Four" lines. The old "J. M. and L.", "Winesburg" and "Vandalia" were absorbed by the Pennsylvania. What followed? Improved service, increased employment of labor, higher wages, regular pay, reduced rates on freight, lower fares for travel, directness, speed and safety.

Another much-attacked specimen of the industrial tendency to bring together manufacturing processes under centralized direction is the steel trust. Senator Beveridge was not afraid to tell the truth about the steel trust.

Has this general movement toward concentration by consolidation upon the whole oppressed the American people? Senator Beveridge thinks not.

Bradford Stands Firm. In a fair and temperate article in his last issue the Bradford Republican in discussing the political situation in this county says: "Bradford county's delegates are instructed for Elkin, and if they stand by instructing to the state in the convention, whether he is a candidate or not."

A Beautiful Scheme, Until It Failed. It is announced on apparently reliable authority that Senator Quay offered to support Henry W. Oliver, the Pittsburg millionaire, and leader of the "Millionaires' Combine" in Allegheny, Pa. It is also intimated that the deal which involved the treasury to aid and sacrifice of Elkin carried with it the election of Cameron to the governorship and Oliver to the senate as Quay's successor.

common brotherhood of service make of the American people not only the most powerful but happiest of nations. Had these the "Big Four" clubs hated and to "muzzle human greed." But he made no concession to popular prejudice. He refused to play to the galleries. "The Republican party," he declared in his peroration, "is the organized spirit of American progress. We dare not stoop to demagogic devices; that is the role of the opposition to the government. We dare not trick up fictitious issues to catch temporary applause. We dare not be insincere to capture this or that coterie of voters. We dare not counsel with fear or compromise with reaction. Our success—our very life—is in harmony with the progress of the American people toward their natural supremacy."

It is inspiring to hear such candid and hopeful talk in place of the flabby demagogism so often palmed off by false politicians on a long-suffering public.

THE announcement that the beef trust has cornered the poultry in Chicago will no doubt be heeded by the intelligent farmers of the East. Now is the time to get the setting hens opportunity. Chicken raising may prove the most profitable of agricultural pursuits hereabouts this season.

Governor Odell announces that he has no present presidential aspirations but would like to go as a delegate to the next national convention so that he may cast a vote for Theodore Roosevelt to succeed himself. No doubt this can be arranged.

The fact that the claims of missionaries in China for property destroyed by Boxer amounts to $2,000,000 shows that the contents of the contribution boxes must have been more valuable than we have been led to suppose.

The limit of the woes of Paterson seems to have been approached. With afflictions of fire, water and anarchy following in close succession, the good citizens must begin to realize the feelings of Job.

It is expected that on June 25th the northwestern corner of the Commonwealth will jingle with patriotism and modern Jeffersonian simplicity.

It is unfortunate from an anti-imperialistic standpoint that the much talked of "water cure" is an invention of the Filipinos.

THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE.

Elkin's Candidacy Growing in Favor. From Chambersburg Public Opinion.

All reasonable persons who have watched the campaign of the Honorable John P. Elkin for the nomination for governor of Pennsylvania must be impressed with the fact that he has long before any of the primaries were held announced himself as a candidate, thus opening him up to a fair field for a fair race. The result is that in almost every county where the nomination has been held either delegates have been selected who are surely Elkin men or the ones chosen have been instructed for him.

The attorney general has practically won his fight before the Republican voters of the state. He has virtually secured his nomination. Shall he be wrested from him now? Still he has turned down at the behest of a few of his prominent enemies in Pittsburg and because of the business dealings of a young man to whom the Republican party owes absolutely nothing.

Bradford Stands Firm. In a fair and temperate article in his last issue the Bradford Republican in discussing the political situation in this county says: "Bradford county's delegates are instructed for Elkin, and if they stand by instructing to the state in the convention, whether he is a candidate or not."

is groping in the dark for a candidate who will have sufficient strength to make possible his nomination with the aid of the personally-owned delegations from Philadelphia and Allegheny.

HOW FORAKER JOINED ARMY. When the senate committee on military affairs was recently considering sundry bills to correct the records of soldiers who had served in the Civil War there was some sympathy expressed for pension applicants who had been disappointed through technicalities. "I know how it is," said Senator Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, "I might be debarréd myself if I applied for a pension. When I tried to enlist I was only 16 years old. They told me that 18 years was the limit. I wanted to get into the army, and as I looked to be older than I was, I confided my troubles and my desires to an old sergeant who was attached to the recruiting office. 'Here,' he said, 'you take this chalk and make '18' on the soles of your shoes. Then, when the recruiting officer asks how old you are, you can say you are over 18.' It was quite a stretch for my conscience, but I did it, just the same, and was duly enrolled as 18 years of age. Now, my record in the field is all right, but my official record is not, and, therefore, I might have a lot of trouble if I tried to get a pension."

Each contestant failing to secure one of the scholarships as a special reward will receive ten per cent. of all the money he or she secures for The Tribune during the contest.

Special Honor Prizes.

A new feature is to be added this year. Special honor prizes will be given to those securing the largest number of points each month. Just what the prizes will be are to be announced later, but they will consist of valuable and useful presents, such as watches, books, etc.

The best explanation of the plan of The Tribune's Educational Contest will be found in the rules, which are here given:

RULES OF THE CONTEST. The special rewards will be given to the person securing the largest number of points. Points will be credited to contestants securing new subscribers to The Scranton Tribune as follows: Points. One month's subscription... $1.50 1 Two months' subscription... 2.50 2 Three months' subscription... 3.50 3 Six months' subscription... 6.00 6 One year's subscription... 10.00 12 The contestant with the highest number of points will be given a choice from the list of special rewards; the contestant with the second highest number of points will be given a choice of the remaining rewards; and so on through the list. The contestant who secures the highest number of points during any calendar month of the contest will receive a special honor reward; this reward being entirely independent of the ultimate disposition of the scholarships. Each contestant failing to secure a special reward will be given 10 per cent. of all money he or she turns in. All subscriptions must be paid in advance. Only new subscribers will be counted. Renewals by persons whose names are already on our subscription list will not be credited. The Tribune will investigate each subscription and if found irregular in any way reserves the right to reject it. No transfers can be made after credit has once been given. All subscriptions and the cash to pay for them must be handed in at The Tribune office within the week in which they are secured, so that papers can be sent to the subscribers at once. Subscriptions must be written on blanks, which can be secured at The Tribune office, or will be sent by mail.

Those desiring to enter the Contest should send in their names at once, and they will be the first to receive the book of instructions and canvasser's outfit when the contest opens on May 5. All questions concerning the plan will be cheerfully answered. Address all communications to CONTEST EDITOR, Scranton Tribune, Scranton, Pa.
