In the Senate.

A lively debate was precipitated in he senate today by Mr. Pritchard (North Carolina) by some remarks he made on political methods in North Carolina, in the course of a discussion of the Philippine bill. He suggested that some of the methods employed by the opponents of the bill in this country ought to be reformed and told of what is called the "sand cure" in North Carolina, the victim having his face crushed into the sand to stifle his cries, while he was being beaten to intimidate him politically.

Mr. Simmons (North Carolina) declared that he never heard of such a practice, and the debate concerning Carolina politics was fully North launched. Mr. Pritchard charged that the "red shirts" rode over the state to terrorize Republican voters. Mr. Simmons denied that statement, and insisted that the "red shirts" never had committed an unlawful act, and, as a matter of fact, intended only to organ-ize the voters of the state. The debate waxed warm, Mr. Pritchard declaring that he had been approached by an emissary of the Democratic party with a proposition to drop the impeachment proceedings against Republican judges in North Carolina if he would nolle prosequi cases pending in the courts against certain Democrats for election frauds. Mr. Simmons unqualifiedly denied that such a proposition had been made by authority of the Democratic party.

The Rosebud Indian reservation bill and the sundry civil bill were again considered, but not completed.
