IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

The re-election of Elmer E. Garr as superintedent of schools of Carbondale or the term of three years, is a fitting recognition of a man who has striven with success, to dispose of the educational interests of this district in a satisfactory manner. When a public officer succeeds under adverse circumstances it is all the more to his credit, and Superintendent Garr can well feel the satisfaction that arises amid such dreumstances. No one will deny that his administration, when he came here

The True American is the oldest paper and it is the leading daily in the capital city of Jersey. This is the first time in its career that it has had an advertising manager. Heretofore the stress of competition in that field was not felt by this paper but now that there is a spirited rivalry on it was deemed expedient to create the position, which after deliberate consideration was offered to Mr. Jones, in preference to candidates for the place from New York city. This is quite a compliment to Mr. Jones, and t is pretty certain that the confidence will not prove to be misplaced. He will be given the widest intitude, the fullest opportunity to give play to his qualities. The field, therefore, is a promising one, and Mr. Jones' friends ook for him to capture all the faurels

IS IT TRUE, HONESDALE?

Some Maple City Sports Inform Us That They Have No Team-Tell Us It's Not So.

A meeting of the base ball enthusiasts will be held this evening. A captain and manager will be elected and other business transacted. If arrangements can be made the first game of the season will be played at Athletic Park on May 30.—Honesdale correspondent, Scranton Truth.

From what we have learned this year about Honesdale's base ball enthusiasts and her base ball team, we would say that advertising in this way for enthusiasts is about as effective a from a large firm in Miles City, Monmeans, under the circumstances, as tana, and is contemplating going west. any, to work up interest enough in the chestnut borough to warrant a team putting on suits as representatives of the Maple city.

It really jarred us the other day when we were informed by some Honesdale sport that there was no base ball team in Honesdale. We were hopeful of a game with the mighty Maple city players, for the honors, alone, of playing with them, even if our excited heads be lowered to the dust of the base ball diamond by the crushing defeat that the industrious, though perhaps overzealous correspondents, school-masters, etc., have worried us over. It was discouraging therefore, positively discouraging when the Honesdale young men, and they are active in Maple city sports, informed us that they knew of no team that Honesdale had this year. Shame on you, Honesdale kidding us and woe be to you if you have disappointed our hopes of the honor of a game with you. We pray once more that it is not so that you have deceived us and we pray all the harder that the challenge the Cresent's manager mailed to Honesdale a few days ago will be given some favorable answer. Our cup of joy will Inleed be overflowing when the honor will be ours of playing with the mighty Honesdale tigers.

The Wayne Independent of the fore part of this week has an article which confirm our worst fears. It says in answer to the challenge from the Cresents that a team in Honesdale is not possibility this season; that enthusiasm is wanting, that the ball grounds are in the land of nowhere, that-well, that there won't be any team. Too bad, Honesdale, that you won't have the opportunity to make us take the rear seat that your staff correspondents so generously pointed out to us. Too bad, again that we won't have the honor of playing with your all-powerful aggregation, that in the past brought so much fame to you. Queer isn't it, how such a base ball team, such as this one can go out of business so quickly in such a lively, ap-to-date place as Honesdale? Queer t is, no mistake.

MUST WORK TOGETHER. Three Partners Necessary to Durable

Business Success. From Andrew Carnegie's "The Empire of Bus

There is a partnership of three in th planned. The first of these, not in importance but in time, is capital. Without it nothing costly can be built. From matter, previously hert.

The structures reared, equipped and ready to begin in any line of industrial activity, the second partner comes into operation. That is Business Ability, Capital has done its part. It has proided all the instrumentalities of production; but unless it can command the services of able men to manage the business, all that Capital has done crumbles into ruin.

Then comes the third partner, last in order of time, but not least, Labor. If it fails to perform its part, nothing car be accomplished. Capital and Business Ability, without it brought into play are dead. The wheels cannot revolve unless the hand of Labor marts them Now, volumes can be written as to which one of the three partners is first second or third in importance, and the subject will remain just as it was be philosophers and preachers have been giving their views on the subject for hundreds of years, but the answer has not yet been found, nor can it ever be because each of the three is all-important, and every one is equally essential to the other fwo. There is no first, second or last. There is no precedence!

A little over a year ago the most remarkable "New or Temporary Star" of modern times appeared in the constellation Perseus. The star was not in any catalogue, and two days before discovery it was not bright enough to be shown on a photographic plate of the region containing stars which have but one one-hundredth of the light given out by the faintest star visible to the naked eye. On February 23, two days after discovery, it reached its greatest brightness, when it was as bright as Capella, the third star in order of brightness in the whole heavens. industrial world when an enterprise is It waned slowly and with several wellmarked fluctuations in its light, and in two months was on the limit of vis-Ibility with the naked eye. It is still it comes the first breath of life into easily visible in telescopes of small size. During its decrease in brightness it changed color from white to dull red, and is now somewhat greenish in tint. The spectrum was at first continuous, such as is given by the light from a glowing solid or liquid body or from a gas under pressure, then bright bands were formed, which later assumed the form and position of the bands in the spectra of nebulae. All these changes were expected as they followed closely the history of similar stars in recent

But within a few months most unexpected and startling changes have occurred which have made the star once more the chief object of interest in the sky. The nebula which surrounds the star, or into which the star has beene changed, has been successfully photographed at several observatories which power, and it contains several centres of condensation whose positions are can be detected in photographs taken but several days apart, Careful attempts to determine the parallax of the star show that it is inappreciable; the star, therefore, is at a very great distance from the earth. in the nebula is greater than anything heretofore detected. The velocity must graphed at several observatories which be as great as that with which light are equipped with telescopes of great travels, and the nature of such a motion is as mysterious as that of light itself. Already the theories which atshifting so rapidly that their motion tempt to account for the birth and life history of the various bodies in the universe are being remodeled to include these newly discovered facts, and the new theories will probably suffer later rejection when more facts are found which conflict with them. The mysteries of the universe become more unfathomable the deeper we are permitted to explore thm, and as knowldge in-creases the extent of that which still
