FINED FOR BEING LATE

M'ELROY DELAYED THE COURT NEARLY AN HOUR.

Was Waiting on a Customer, He Said, and Could Not Leave to Perform His Duties as a Juror—Settlement Arrived at in the Wheeler-Barber Case—Case of Orlando Rozelle Against B. S. Lewis and Wife on Trial—Other Court Matters.

When court adjourned Monday afternoon there was on before Judge Wheaton in the superior court room, the case of Ida Kolonsork, of Carbon-dale, against William Fisher, of Greenfield.

At the opening of court, yesterday morning it was discovered that the jury was one short. The list was called and as the call of the names proceeded, it developed that M. J. Burke, a tailor, of Dunmore, did not respond. His name was called in corridor and main court room and finally there came a response. Mr. Burke was escorted before the bench and interrogated by Judge Wheaton as to why he had not taken his place in the box. Mr. Burke could not understand for some time just what the judge was driving at, but when it was made clear to him, he protested he had not been called on this jury and did not serve on it.

FURTHER INVESTIGATION. Then there was further investigation which disclosed the fact that Michael T. Lavelle, who was in the box and who served during the previous day, had not been chosen on the jury, but through some misunderstanding was occupying Mr. Burke's place. Judge Wheaton said that a juror should be withdrawn and the case continued, but the attorneys, D. B. Replege for the plaintiff, and H. D. Carey agreed to go on with the substituted juror, and Judge Wheaton acquiesced.

But the straightening out of the jury so that it would tally with the selected list was yet an unfinished task. The twelfth juror was still wanting. Comparison showed that the missing man was James McElroy, who works in Jonas Long's Sons store. Inquiry was made by phone for Mr. McElroy. The store office answered back that he would be sent up at once. Twenty minutes elapsed and Mr. McElroy was still absent. Judge Wheaton, with a show of impatience, ordered a tipstair sent to fetch him.

M'ELROY FINED. Soon after the tipstair started on his errand, Mr. McElroy came into the court room. Judge Wheaton wanted to know what had delayed them. Mr. McElroy explained that he was waiting on a customer and could not leave.

At the risk of being roundly censured like the Jersey Judge who fined a belated doctor-juror for delaying the court to attend to a critical patient, Judge Wheaton informed Mr. McElroy that he would be called upon to pay two days' pay for his tardiness. Mr. McElroy went into the box and the case was proceeded with. It resulted in a verdict for the defendant.

Judge Newcomb yesterday afternoon, entered upon the trial of the case of W. H. Wheeler against C. D. Barber. The parties live in Moscow. Wheeler worked on a farm owned by Barber and sued him for a balance of $162. After some testimony had been taken, the parties came to an agreement and a voluntary non-suit was in accordance entered.

At adjourning time the case of Orlando Rozelle against H. S. Lewis and wife was on trial before Judge Newcomb. They have a dispute over a four-foot strip of land lying between their adjoining properties.

All of yesterday was consumed before Judge Kelly in listening to testimony for the defense in the case of E. F. N. Edwards against Dr. S. P. Longstreet. It will take several days more to hear all the testimony.

Non-suits were taken in two cases because of the non-appearance of the plaintiffs. They were John N. Hang against Guernsey Brothers and Roche Brothers against Charles Teeter.

Perry Wants His Liberty. Habeas corpus proceedings were instituted yesterday by Attorney Daniels and Kelly in behalf of H. H. Perry, who was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the authorities of Oswego, N. Y., and committed to the county jail for thirty days because of the delay in the arrival of extradition papers.

In Orphans' Court. In the orphans' court yesterday, Judge A. A. Vosburg completed the hearing in the estate of the late Andrew Watts, deceased, and the hearing upon the exceptions to the account filed by P. J. Horan, trustee under the will of Bridget Ryan, deceased was continued.

This latter is a very complicated proceeding. Bridget Ryan died on October 26, 1881, making a will in which P. J. Horan was appointed executor and trustee. She left to survive her a husband and four children. Shortly after her death the trustee made an arrangement with the husband, Jeremiah E. Ryan that he should care for the children and collect the rents on the property, using the rents for the purpose of defraying the cost of maintenance of the children. This arrangement continued until January 1897. Some of the parties in interest now contend that these rents between those periods amounting to nearly $2,000 should be accounted for by the trustee on the ground that he had no right to make such an agreement with the father, who, they allege, was simply able to take care of his children out of his own means. The accountant claims that this was a proper arrangement and made for the benefit of the children.

It also appears that many of the bills paid by the trustee and by M. F. Wymba as guardian of the children have been upon the whole property, that which was devised to the children and that which was devised to the husband, and there is much contention as to the property which should be accounted for by the trustee and by the guardian. At the same time, credit claimed by the trustee is expected to and the items in dispute amount to a large sum in addition to the disputed items of rents of about $2,000. The hearing was not concluded. It will be taken up tomorrow. George S. Horn, T. P. Duffy and W. H. Jesurp, Jr., represented the various parties who have filed exceptions, and C. E. Fitcher and M. P. Cawley appear for the accountant.

At 9 o'clock today the hearing in the proceeding to remove the executrix in the estate of Frederick Simon, deceased, will be taken up.

STRIKE WILL GO ON AND ON

CARPENTERS AND BUILDERS CANNOT GET TOGETHER.

Negotiations Which Were Begun Some Two Weeks Ago Through the Central Labor Union Have Been Barren of Results—Contractors Refuse Absolutely to Grant the Demands Contained in Ultimatum of Carpenters—Negotiations Will Not Be Resumed.

The members of the Builders' Exchange at a meeting held yesterday afternoon decided to drop all negotiations looking toward a settlement of the carpenter's strike which has been pending in the city for the last three years and to refuse under any consideration to have further intercourse with Local Union No. 563, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

The negotiations for the settlement of the strike were begun some two weeks ago through the efforts of the executive committee of the Central Labor Union. At a joint conference held on Tuesday night the contractors and the following proposition to the carpenters with the announcement that it was their ultimatum and that under no consideration would they alter or amend it:

Provided all strikes and boycotts against the Builders' Exchange and its individual members are declared off at once, the master carpenters will declare an eight (8) hour day, pay a minimum rate of thirty (30) cents per hour to all good mechanics, and employ only fifteen per cent. of journeymen carpenters as apprentices, make no discrimination between union and non-union men; pay time and one-half for all overtime, and double time for all legal holiday and Sunday work; no strike nor boycotts, and agree to settle all disputes by joint conference. The same to take effect on August 1, 1902.

The original demand of the carpenters was for an eight hour day and a minimum wage of thirty cents an hour. The delegates to the conference wouldn't agree to the proposition submitted by the builders being particularly insistent that the eight hour day should go into effect on June 1 instead of August 1.

This the builders would not agree to because of the great amount of work now under way which was contracted for on a different basis.

ULTIMATUM OF BUILDERS

The ultimatum of the builders was presented at a meeting of the carpenter's union held on Friday night last. After some discussion the following counter-proposition was agreed upon and was submitted to the builders on Monday: Scranton, Pa., May 9, 1902. To the Contractors and Builders of the City of Scranton: Gentlemen: We, the undersigned, respectfully submit the following to your proposition, submitted through our committee.

We desire to say, we will enter into an agreement, provided it goes into effect June 1st, 1902, and that you completely unite all employees who work as carpenter work, or those who work at brick work in the mills. With the following rules submitted:

The rules submitted with this proposition provide for an eight-hour day; a minimum wage of thirty cents per hour for journeymen and thirty-five cents an hour for foremen; pay time-and-a-half for all over-time; double pay for legal holidays and Sundays; a pay-day every two weeks; contractors to be permitted to employ 10 per cent. of total number of employees as apprentices; transportation to be allowed according to established schedule when working out of town; disputes to be settled by joint conference and to be referred to three disinterested parties for final decision in case they cannot be thus settled.

The particular objection on the part of the builders to this counter proposition as developed at yesterday's meeting was the last clause which puts it up to them to employ none but union carpenters. This was deemed impossible of acceptance and the whole matter was dropped by a unanimous vote.

WHAT CONTRACTOR FINN SAID.

Contractor George Finn, one of the leading members of the Builders' Exchange and who has taken an especial interest in the negotiations now broken off said after the meeting in commenting on the action taken: "If we should agree to the carpenters' proposition to unionize all our employees it would place us in a position where we would be either obliged to discharge the men now working for us or force them to join the union if they desired to keep their jobs. That's so manifestly unfair a proposition that we cannot consider it for a moment. I'd sooner go out of business than do such a thing and I'm sure the other contractors feel the same way. "We believe that we should stand by the men who have stood by us since this strike began and who have seen fit to work despite the influences brought to bear against them. There are more non-union carpenters in this city at present than there are union carpenters and there is no good reason why the minority should seek to force its will upon the majority. We have plenty of carpenters—all we want—and we can get on very well if the strike isn't declared off."

THE NATION'S WARS.

Beautiful Allegory to Be Seen Free on Tuesday Here.

One of the most difficult things with which the managers of great shows, like the Adam Foreman and Sells Brothers Enormous Shows United, have to contend is to obtain a new idea for an attraction or a feature, whether it be for the parade or the performance. It is said that they have secured a new idea for their parade this year, that makes it not only miles of glittering splendor but also a long stretch of American history. Representatives of all the battles of the republic, beginning with the Revolutionary war and ending with the war with the Philippines and the Chinese, are seen in the parade wearing the correct uniform of the soldiers of the varying periods and wars they represent.

These soldiers of many wars mean an enormous cavalcade without the usual numerous features of the parade. A number of new chariots, cages and tabernacle cars have been added until now it is the most magnificent spectacle of pageantry ever witnessed upon the streets of American cities. It is not only a parade, but a pageant, and they do not do so now, as will be seen when they exhibit here on Tuesday, May 29.
